

THE MYSTERY MAN

Secret Uncovered At Senate House

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON

The Senate House has given up one of its most closely guarded "secrets," the portrait of an unidentified man by an unidentified artist found hidden (or lost) beneath the roof of the building when its 55-year-old copper roof was stripped off last month.

Museum officials, perplexed about the origins of the 11-by-21-inch oil painting, aren't leaping to any conclusions as to its potential value, but there's always the possibility of a major find.

"It's a very exciting thing," said James Gold, site manager at the Senate House.

Gold, who immediately dispatched the painting to state historic experts for evaluation, did some checking of his own on the portrait of a man obviously from the turn of the 19th century.

"It's not a portrait of Van Buren or Burr," Gold said. "We've checked against known portraits and we haven't seen any similarities." Neither is the portrait in the Vanderlyn style. "That would be too much to hope for," Gold said.

The portrait is only half the story. On the reverse side a pencil or charcoal unfinished work of art was discovered. Gold said it appears to be of a religious theme.

The painting was uncovered by accident when Bill Caven, a carpenter working for the Palisades Interstate Park Commission and assigned to the Senate House restoration project, discovered it as he was removing some sheathing boards under the copper to examine rotten wall sills on the Clinton Avenue side of the building.

Gold reports that at first Caven thought it was just

County Needs State's Sales Tax OK

By Jon Powers

KINGSTON

Despite some emphatic objections by taxpayers at Monday's budget hearing, there still appears to be substantial bi-partisan support in the Ulster County Legislature for a one per cent increase in the county sales tax.

Sentiment in the state legislature, however, may be somewhat less than lukewarm. Without state approval, the county can't increase the sales tax.

County Legislator Louis M. Klein (D-Dist. 6), who first floated the sales tax increase idea last week, said contacts have been made with Ulster County's four representatives in the state legislature, but that county officials haven't yet received any concrete indications as to how such a proposal would be received in Albany.

Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101st Dist.) said Wednesday that it is "hard to say what the climate is for a sales tax increase," but he did point out that a similar sales tax proposal for New York City was recently rejected by the legislature. On top of that, the state is talking of adopting new state-wide taxes of its own, possibly early next year.

"If the county really wants the increase, if it is a better alternative than a large property tax increase, and if the budget increases are really unavoidable, then I would certainly try to get it passed," said Hinchey, "although it would be against a background of the legislature's recent defeat of a similar proposal for New York City."

The combined state and county sales tax is Ulster County now stands at five per cent; the figure for the City of Kingston, which has a two per cent sales tax of its own, is seven per cent.

A one per cent increase in the county sales tax would probably generate at least $4.2 million in additional revenues, an amount that could go a long way toward reducing a projected 58 per cent property tax increase should the county's tentative $58.5 million budget be approved without change.

Klein said he is hoping for an early indication from the state about the sales tax proposal; with the county budget due to be approved by Dec. 20, he readily admitted that time is running out.

'Cut It 10 Per Cent'

KINGSTON

The Finance Committee of the Ulster County Legislature, in a major move designed to reduce the county's tentative $58.5 million budget for 1976, has sent a memo to each department head in the county government requiring them to make additional 10 per cent cuts in their budget requests.

The decision was made at Wednesday's committee meeting. No departments were exempted from the order. Department heads must return the revised budget figures to the Finance Committee by Monday.

"I'm hoping that the state will give us the prerogative to increase the sales tax," said Klein, "then we can continue to work on the budget and after we've made all the cuts we can, we can see what kind of property tax increase we're faced with. If it's an unreasonable increase, then we can consider the sales tax."

"Right now, without prior approval from the state, we're foreclosed from any possibility of choice," Klein added.

Klein who will take over as minority leader of the legislature on Jan. 1, said that an informal survey of his colleagues on the legislature indicates majority support for the sales tax increase proposal, but only if the county faces a substantial increase in the property tax.

Unless there are significant reductions in the tentative budget, it appears almost certain that the property tax hike will, in fact, be substantial. A number of legislators are saying privately that they'll be satisfied if they can hold the increase to a figure below 30 per cent.

Many of the residents who spoke at Monday's budget hearing expressed opposition to the sales tax increase proposal, suggesting instead that the county legislature make a meaningful effort to reduce expenditures.

Much the same sentiment has been expressed by leaders of the local business community, and they're the ones who stand to lose the most under a sales tax hike. Bernard Singer of the Ulster Business and Professional Association said that group would be strongly opposed to any tax increase—sales or property.

"Any tax increase is going to cut deeply into the purchasing power of the consumer," said Singer, "and that's going to hurt the businessman."

In fact, it's safe to assume that any large property tax hike is going to catch the consumer coming and going. Singer acknowledged that many businessmen, faced with increased taxes on their own property, are going to try to recoup some of those losses by charging higher prices for goods and services.

Neither the Ulster County Chamber of Commerce nor the Uptown Businessmen's Association have taken any stand, as yet, on the sales tax issue, but Glenn Fitzgerald, president of the Central Businessmen's Association, pointed out that an increase in the county sales tax will further magnify the two per cent difference that currently exists in the sales tax in and outside the city. The result: more consumers will do their shopping outside the city.

In the meantime, the county is waiting for some word from the state, and hoping that enough cuts can be made in the tentative '76 budget to delay sales tax talk for at least another year.

Cross Country in Four Months

PORT EWEN

A trip from Oregon to New York that was supposed to last for only about a week has finally ended after more than four months for 73-year-old Daniel A. Downes.

Downes left Oregon on July 7 by bus to come to the wedding of his grandson, Daniel Naccarato, son of Mrs. Barbara Naccarato of Port Ewen, which was held on July 19. Downes never made the wedding and his family had no idea of his whereabouts until Nov. 15, when it was learned he was at a Chicago-area nursing home. He made it to New York, at long last, on Nov. 29.

Downes, who is now staying in Port Ewen with Mrs. Naccarato, cannot remember everything of what happened to him after he left Oregon in July on his ill-fated trip. He apparently either suffered a stroke or was mugged or both, sometime during the trip, causing him to lose his memory about part of what happened.

"I remember Chicago; that's when I came out of the fog," Downes told the Freeman. He recalls being driven to a nursing home by a police officer, apparently sometime in August.

He also remembers quite clearly the nursing home where he was kept, and where he says he was threatened by nurses, forced to sign welfare checks over to the home, not given any medical treatment and either tied or handcuffed to a bed for three days.

Downes spent more than three months in the nursing home on the outskirts of Chicago, unable to recall his exact home address. It was only by luck that a misaddressed letter reached the apartment complex where he lived in November, setting in motion what could be described as Downes' release from virtual bondage.

"I'd still be there if I didn't remember something (of his address)," Downes said.

Downes description of the treatment received at the nursing home is a virtual horror show.

He says three male nurses threatened him shortly after he was brought into the nursing home after he "came out of the fog and gave them a fight."

He says he was confined to a bed for three days. The elderly persons, men and women, at the home were kept in one huge room, "like a dormitory," with only curtains to pull around their beds. He was not once allowed outside the building during the entire period he was there. Residents of the home were forced to bathe three times a day; the method: nurses scrubbed them down with mops. "We were fed the same garbage every day," he said, explaining that the food was so scanty and left the people so hungry that fights would erupt over the food. Somehow welfare checks began arriving at the home in his name, and he was forced to sign them and turn them over to the home.

"They have a wonderful racket there," Downes said.

"The old men and old women really take a beating there."

When Downes' whereabouts were finally learned, his daughter, Lois Draper of Salem, Ore., spoke to him by telephone. Two of his Social Security checks were sent to him, amounting to more than $450. The home kept the checks, saying he owed them the money for clothing, according to the Drapers, who were forced to send another $150 for plane fare back to Oregon . . . plus $25 for taxi fare to the airport (the home would not take Downes to the airport, and would not release him without the money).

When Downes arrived in Oregon he was wearing two slippers which did not match, obviously second-hand clothing that didn't fit, and no coat, even though it was November. He had lost more than 25 pounds since he disappeared in July, and no longer had his glasses or his false teeth.

Downes family has had him checked by doctors, and he has been pronounced physically all right, although they are told he may occasionally suffer lapses of memory. He came east by plane on Nov. 29, although he expresses a reluctance to travel after his ordeal. He wanted to see the grandson whose wedding he missed, as well as the rest of his family.

Mrs. Naccarato, her son Daniel, and other members of the family met him as he got off the plane in Newark. (He was the last one off the plane, causing a few moments of fearful uncertainty on the part of his family.) He attended a family reunion in Mineola, L.I. on Nov. 30, and, more than four months later, finally made it to Port Ewen this week.

UPI DATELINE

Terrorists Shoot Hostage

BEILEN, The Netherlands — South Moluccan terrorists today shot one of 38 hostages they are holding in a hijacked train in retaliation for a Dutch refusal to bow to their demands.

Police said the gunmen, holding the hostages in a train they seized outside this town three days ago, shot a man in the doorway of a coach shortly after a mediator had informed them of the Dutch government's refusal to meet their demands.

Price Index at Same Level

WASHINGTON — The Wholesale Price Index for November remained at the same level as October because of a drop in food prices, the Labor Department said today.

The change in wholesale prices was the best inflation news in six months. Wholesale prices declined 0.1 per cent in June, but surged up steadily until peaking at 1.8 per cent in October.

Two Appointed in Laos

BANGKOK, Thailand — The Pathet Lao appointed two of its top officials as president and prime minister of Laos today, forging the final link in the Communist takeover of Indochina.

In a broadcast monitored here, the Pathet Lao said in Vientiane that Prince Souphanouvong, the nominal Pathet Lao chief, would serve as president of the new Peoples' Democratic Republic of Laos.

Kaysone Phomvihane, a Pathet Lao politburo member and Marxist hardliner close to North Vietnamese leaders, was named prime minister.

House Takes First Step

WASHINGTON — The House has taken the first step toward passage of a bill to revise taxes and extend 1975's recession-fighting tax cuts through 1976, effectively daring President Ford to veto the bill.

A post-Christmas congressional session may be necessary if there is a veto. In the absence of some action, taxes for the more than 80 million individual American taxpayers would rise by about $13 billion next year.

Portugal Begins Probe

LISBON, Portugal — The policy-making Revolutionary Council today began preparations for the prosecution of left-wing military men involved in last week's abortive coup attempt.

The council ordered military police to begin preliminary investigations of those accused of taking part in the rebellion, which was crushed by pro-government forces.

It was the council's first meeting since the revolt was put down.

Mother Charged

The mother of a 2½ year old boy who died on Oct. 28 as the result of an alleged beating and her boy friend were arrested late Wednesday afternoon as they were apparently attempting to flee from the area, authorities said today.

Taken into custody by state police at about 4 p.m. were Bonita Shultis, 29, of Route 9W, Glenerie and Ward Yerry Jr., 35, formerly of Sawmill Trailer Park. Mrs. Shultis was charged with second degree murder in the death of her son, Paul Robert Shultis. Yerry had previously been charged with murder in the death of the child.

The arrests Wednesday resulted from an unusual series of events which began last week.

District Attorney Francis J. Vogt explained today that Yerry, who was charged with murder in the case on Oct. 29, was released from jail in his own recognizance about a week ago on the recommendation of the district attorney's office. Acknowledging that such a move is "most unusual in view of the charge," Vogt said it was hoped that through Yerry's release he and Mrs. Shultis would engage in conversation which would enable authorities to learn more about the incidents which led to the child's death.

While Yerry had been in jail, a court order was obtained to install an "eavesdropping device" in Mrs. Shultis' residence, Vogt said, and such a device was installed.

"Yesterday, information was received (through the eavesdropping device) which led state police to believe they (Yerry and Mrs. Shultis) were fleeing this jurisdiction, and they were observed putting suitcases in a car," Vogt said. State police followed the pair for a short distance before stopping and arresting them.

Mrs. Shultis was arrested for murder "as a result of information uncovered by the investigation," Vogt said, declining to go into further detail. She was jailed without bail. A bail revocation hearing for Yerry was slated for today.

Total Nears $6,000

KINGSTON

The city-wide fund-raising campaign to help the Children's Library get back on its feet after its recent fire continues to grow as area groups continue to respond.

Immanuel Lutheran Church, 22 Livingston Street, just contributed a check for $47.35. The donations were collected at the Thanksgiving Eve vespers held during "Beggars' Night" which launched the local drive.

In making the donation, the Rev. Gary L. Mehl, pastor, said: "The people of Immanuel urge all Kingston area churches to make it possible for their membership to contribute to the library fund during the holiday season . . . certainly, this is one way to put faith into action."

The campaign total to date is $5,911.27. Donations will be accepted through Christmas Eve at the Daily Freeman on Hurley Avenue, fund drive headquarters.

Celebrates 105th Birthday

William Davis, a resident at Ulster County Infirmary on Golden Hill Drive since 1971, observed his 105th birthday Tuesday. Born Dec. 2, 1870, Mr. Davis was a resident of Eddyville for many years and was a self-employed carpenter. Outliving his friends and most of his relatives, Mr. Davis enjoys talking about the "old days" with his visitors.

Failing eyesight requires him to listen to the radio to keep up with current events. Two of his favorite pastimes are chewing tobacco and rocking in his rocking chair. The Activities Department in his unit hosted a party in his honor. Mr. Davis received gifts and congratulatory cards. Here, Mrs. William Helmrach, social worker, presents a birthday cake to the honoree. as Mrs. Elnora McSpirt, associate director of nurses, looks on. (Freeman photo)

Guilty Plea in Burglary

KINGSTON
A 21-year-old Stone Ridge man faces a possible maximum prison sentence of 25 years following a guilty plea in Ulster County Court on Wednesday. Jeffrey Brown, of Atwood Road, pleaded guilty to first degree burglary before County Judge Raymond J. Mino. The charge stemmed from an alleged incident last June when Brown was arrested after allegedly breaking into the home of James Price of Vista Drive, Town of Ulster. Price arrived home and was allegedly confronted by Brown, who was carrying a knife. Price was able to keep Brown's deputies arrived to arrest him. Brown was indicted for first degree robbery and burglary in connection with the case in August. He was represented by Attorney Charles Saccoman.

Pressmen's Slowdown

NEW YORK (UPI) — Managements of The New York Times and the New York Daily News say a work "slowdown" by union pressmen may force the two newspapers to suspend publication if it continues.

William Kennedy, president of the New York Pressmen's Union, denied earlier there was a slowdown and said delays had been caused by the use of old paper — the result of a paper production strike in Canada. The old paper, Kennedy said, is brittle and breaks easily.

In memos to their staffs Wednesday, News president and publisher W.H. James and Times publisher Arthur Ochs Sulzberger said the pressmen's actions, in their fourth day today, pose "a serious threat to continued publication."

James called it "a deliberate

and organized campaign of slowdown and harassment."

The pressmen belong to New York Newspaper Printing Pressmen Union No. 2, which represents some 826 men. The union has been working under an extension of previous contracts which expired last March 30. Little progress has been reported in negotiations.

James said a "partial strike" prevented the printing of 300,000 copies of Wednesday's editions, resulting in an estimated loss of $140,000 in advertising and circulation revenue. The News' weekday press run normally averages about two million.

Long Distance. It's cheaper than you think.

Calls you dial yourself, without operator assistance, are surprisingly cheap. Evening rates are 35% less than daytime rates. Night and weekend* rates are 60% less than daytime rates. When you dial direct, the new initial rate period anytime (day or night) is now one minute rather than three minutes. So you can have more control over your long-distance costs. Additional minutes cost less than the first minute.

Check the charts below for periods covered by the new rates and examples of the first-minute cost of some frequently dialed cities.

Christmas Fund Drive

Fatal On The Thruway

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON
A Quebec, Can. man was killed early today when the car in which he was riding overturned on the New York State Thruway about two miles south of Kingston. Yves L. Perron, 36, who died a short time after arrival at the Benedictine Hospital emergency room, became the fourth person to die as a result of Thruway traffic accidents in Ulster County in less than a month.

While full details on the 7:20 a.m. fatal crash were not immediately available, it has been learned that Perron was a passenger in a car driven by Dennis Martin, 42, of Montreal, Can., which was travelling north on the super-highway.

According to troopers, Martin apparently fell asleep at the wheel of his car, which rolled over several times, ejecting Perron.

Perron and Martin were rushed to Benedictine Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance. Perron died a short time after arrival, according to a hospital spokeswoman. Martin was reportedly in fair condition.

Armed Robbery

Meanwhile, in other area police matters:

Police roadblocks were set up in the area Wednesday following an armed robbery at a New Paltz motel room.

State police, said two men knocked on the door of a 27-year-old female guest at the Huguenot Motel at about 9:40 p.m. Identifying themselves as police officers, the men asked to be admitted to the room. After admitting the men, the woman, who was not identified, was confronted with an "antique-type pistol," police said, and the two men ransacked the room.

Apparently finding nothing of value, the men fled in a blue car with a black vinyl top.

Police said one of the robbers was white, about 6-feet tall, and wore a brown coat. The second robber was described only as being black.

Seek Trio

Kingston Police Department detective are seeking three black males who mugged a 24-year-old city resident on the corner of Iwo Jima Lane and Greenkill Avenue Wednesday night.

Police said the victim, Richard Middaugh of 33 Cedar Street, told them the men struck him over the head with a bottle wrapped in cloth and cut him on the wrist with a piece of glass because he would not turn over his wallet (which he was not carrying). A quantity of pills was reportedly taken from the victim, detectives said. Middaugh was treated and released at Kingston Hospital following the attack.

The three suspects were described as all being over 6-feet tall, with afro hairstyles. One had a goatee, the second had a mustache, and the third had several days' growth of facial hair.

Three Charged

Three young Tivoli residents were charged with fifth degree criminal possession of a controlled substance, a felony, Wednesday night after an estimated 1½ pounds of marijuana was allegedly found in the vehicle in which they were riding in Red Hook. Rhinebeck State Police said the car was stopped for speeding. Arrested were: Nancy Furstinger, 20; Fred Miller, 23; and Joseph Navins, 26. They were jailed in lieu of $2,500 bail each.

Officers Injured

Two New Paltz police officers were injured early today when their car was struck in the rear by a speeding auto. Police said the patrol car, operated by Patrolman Dennis Tasker, was going north on Route 32 at about 2:10 a.m. when a car driven at an allegedly high rate of speed by Stephanie Reposky, 21, of Rosendale, slammed into the rear of the patrol car and forced it off the road into a ditch. Authorities said the patrol car was going at "normal patrol speed" when the crash occurred. Tasker and Patrolman George Miro, who was a passenger, both suffered back and neck injuries. Neither as hospitalized. The Reposky woman was charged with driving while intoxicated, reckless driving and speed not reasonable or prudent. She was jailed in lieu of $100 bail.

U.S. Relations with China Are Now 'Full of Vitality'

PEKING (UPI) — With warm backing from the Chinese, President Ford said today U.S.-Chinese relations are good and will get better despite such unresolved disputes as America's pursuit of detente with Moscow.

Exchanging champagne toasts at the formal conclusion of Ford's four-day visit, acting Premier Teng Hsiao-ping agreed that relations between the two are "full of vitality" — and he dropped all mention of the detente issue that so angers the

Chinese, instead referring softly to "differences of principle."

The Chinese took pains to support Ford's assessment that his visit was a success even without progress on specific issues like detente or any official communique to back it up.

Earlier, at the start of his final talks with Ford, Teng said the visit had both strengthened ties and introduced "a new style" of discreet secrecy in Washington-Peking relations.

Conceding in his banquet toast that China and America "naturally have differences of principle," Teng said, "but at the same time ... our two nations have problems of mutual concern and have many common points."

He said both sides still regard the 1972 Shanghai communique issued at the end of President Richard M. Nixon's visit as "the basis for U.S.-Chinese relations."

"It remains full of vitality today."

Ford hosted the farewell banquet in The Great Hall of the People, where a party of 700 dined on consommé, fried duck cutlets, braised shark's fin and strawberry mousse washed down with California champagne.

"It has been a significant visit," Ford said, lifting a glass in toast to the Chinese at a farewell banquet he hosted.

"The wide-ranging talks which I have held with Chairman Mao Tse-tung and with Vice Premier Teng have been friendly, candid, substantial and constructive."

"We discussed our differences, which are natural in a relationship between two countries whose ideologies, societies and circumstances diverge. But we also confirm that we have important common points ..."

"Although our relations are not yet normalized, they are good," Ford said. "They will be gradually improved ..."

There was a small diplomatic bouquet for the Chinese among the "common points" of interest Ford mentioned — a confirmation that — like China — the United States opposes "the efforts of others to impose hegemony (military domination) in any part of the world."

In U.S.-Chinese diplomatic parlance, "others" are the Soviets.

Both the United States and China agreed to this point in the 1972 "Shanghai Communique" that ended President Richard M. Nixon's visit, and Ford said U.S.-Chinese relations would continue to be guided by that document in the absence of any communique from this visit.

"The United States is committed to complete the normalization of relations," with Peking, he said, simply omitting any reference to U.S. support for the Taiwan government which blocks establishment of full relations with China.

Report Adds Little

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — A state auditors' report on the state lottery adds little to the shortcomings noted by several previous investigations, but does seem to support some of the contentions offered by ousted lottery director Jerry Bruno in his defense.

Gov. Hugh L. Carey last Friday announced Bruno was being fired along with 317 other lottery employees as part of a thorough overhaul of the problem-plagued operation.

At that time, Bruno complained that many of the problems stemmed from areas now controlled by the Racing and Wagering Board or from actions taken prior to the time he took over the $1 million-a-week operation.

The state comptroller's office Wednesday issued a report citing several examples of mismanagement and misrepresentation of the now-suspended lottery.

Comptroller Arthur Levitt urged that before any new lottery operations were undertaken, lottery personnel be required to prepare written procedures to avoid the same problems in the future.

The report blamed one key problem — the issuance of duplicate tickets for the final Colossus Game — on "a lack of adequate supervision" over changes in a computer program run by the Tax Department.

The duplicate ticket problem led Carey to suspend the lottery Oct. 22.

Among the problems cited by the Levitt report were:

— An excess cash balance of $1.1 million remained in a noninterest bearing bank account for 20 months.

— Advertisements for the Independence Day Special drawing said 40,000 prizes would be awarded, based on the sale of 5 million tickets, but only 4 million tickets were sold with a possibility of 32,000 winners.

— Prizes for the Independence Day drawing exceeded revenues for prizes by $500,000 in 1975 and $600,000 in 1974, with the difference made up by "various financing techniques," mainly through investment in securities.

— Unsold tickets were not accounted for for up to four weeks after some drawings, meaning "a great many people" had access to winning tickets that had not been sold.

— Expenditures to run the lottery can run up to 15 per cent of gross sales, but in the fiscal year ending March 31, operating costs were $15.1 million, or $1.4 million over the maximum.

"Although much of the criticism voiced about the lottery operations has been directed to the current administration," the auditors said, "many of the problems were inherited from previous administrations which operated under the guidance of both the Department of Taxation and Finance and the Racing and Wagering Board."

"If lottery operations are resumed, the organization problems and conflicts currently existing between the lottery and the Racing and Wagering Board must be resolved," the report said.

Not Happy With the Sheriff

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The state Commission of Correction is not happy with Dutchess County Sheriff Lawrence M. Quinlan's apparent failure to post grievance information on procedures for inmates of the county jail.

The commission Wednesday made public a letter to Quinlan containing a thinly veiled warning about the matter.

The letter from Herman Schwartz, chairman of the commission, to Quinlan stated that the sheriff had refused to post information from the prison watchdog agency.

"We hope that we will not be forced to conclude that your refusal to post the notices is because you do not want the inmates to contact us," Schwartz said.

"As soon as we make that determination," Schwartz said, "we shall contact you."

Quinlan had notified the commission that he was waiting information on how the commission would investigate any grievances filed before he would post the notice.

New Landfill Plan

Mayor Francis R. Koenig's plan to have private contractors truck the city garbage and refuse to a site outside the city and solve the continuing landfill crisis has a lot of merit.

But, there are still some unanswered questions on the issue and until they are answered, the proposal has too many flaws.

For instance: If the contractor who is awarded the bid compacts the city's garbage and takes it to a dumping site, where will this site be located? Since there are no locations available in the city, the dumping site will have to be located outside the Kingston City limits.

Another question is over the centralized "transfer station" within the city limits. The mayor didn't specify where in the city this "transfer station" would be located. He envisions a cost of $30,000 for the building of this station but that price is not firm. It could conceivably go much higher.

The third and probably most important question concerns the so-called "deal" hinted at by Conservative Candidate Bernard Singer during the election campaign.

Singer accused—and both Koenig and running mate T. Robert Gallo denied—a deal by the city administration with a person in the Town of Ulster to dump Kingston's garbage there. Was this plan, announced this week by the mayor, the culmination of that alleged "deal"?

With time running out at the Kingston Point Landfill site, there is no doubt that a quick alternative is needed.

After the way residents in the Wilbur area turned out en masse to halt the city's planned construction of a landfill site in that area, this new plan by the mayor certainly deserves a lot of consideration.

However, until the questions listed above are answered, the Freeman reserves decision as to whether or not it will endorse the plan.

At first glance, it looks like a sound one. But, let's have all the answers first.

Kennedy Library

It took 14 years of searching, politicking and bickering, but the University of Massachusetts at Boston has finally been selected as the site of the John F. Kennedy Library.

Members of the Kennedy family and the JFK Library Corp. decided on the site after considering that and another alternative—Harvard. President Kennedy's alma mater was Harvard. He drew many of his advisors from that cauldron and he picked that site personally for his library.

But to give Harvard the nod meant that the private archives portion of the library would come under the aegis of the venerable university while the museum would have to be built elsewhere.

An important reason for selecting the University of Massachusetts is because the site is easily accessible for Kennedy admirers. Though born of wealth and educated at an elite college, President Kennedy tried to be and was looked upon by many as the people's president. It is fitting his library should be at a public university and easy to get to.

Slow Reaction

Editor, The Freeman:

This letter is being written in respect to the "prompt" actions of our New York State Police upon the report of a deer which has been shot and left dead.

Sometime, either the day before Thanksgiving or that Thanksgiving Day, 1975, a hunter was out and shot an illegal buck. For that reason, rather than taking the chance of being fined, he left it lie dead to rot. Our neighbor discovered the deer, which was lying right off the side of the road practically in full view at a glance, and mentioned it to my brother. He in turn went to my father and they both went back to take a look. It was quite obvious that the meat could not be saved because the deer had not even been gutted, but we thought that the skin might possibly be saved. So I, like a responsible citizen and obeying rules and regulations, called the New York State Police—Hurley Barracks.

I didn't give my name, because that was not my obligation to them. I reported what had happened and where, and I was told that the Highway Department would be sent out to check it out. I asked the trooper if he would like me to have someone there to point out the carcass, but he said that it wouldn't be necessary because it would be a while. So, naturally we assumed they would be up within the next 2-3 hours. Well, it's been 4 days at the writing of this letter, since the deer was spotted and it is still there. Of course, the skin is not even salvagable any longer because an animal, most likely a racoon got at it during the night, and it is totally ruined.

Is this the kind of reaction our State Police have been taking? If not, is this what we can expect in the future? We, as citizens, feel we are obligated to report cases such as this deer rotting, in hopes of maybe saving a part of it such as the skin, only to come to the conclusion that maybe the State Police did not feel as obligated to us to take the proper action. I think it is a shame that this has happened, and I would go so far as to say it is not the first time it has.

Maybe this is why the conservation officers find so many carcasses in the woods left dead. People wonder what the sense is in reporting these cases because they know that it will go no farther than a brief telephone conversation. I would really like an explanation as to exactly why this has happened.

What can you tell me, State Police? How many citizens out there have already had this experience? I feel we have a right to know.

Supports Paid, Vols

Editor, The Freeman:

Re: Your Sunday Readers Write Column, and the first letter titled "Bury the Hatchet" and signed by a Vernon J. Lewis:

"Bury the Hatchet" I say too—BUT!!—Mr. Lewis, before writing his article and saying "he'd lost a lot of respect" for the paid (fire) department, should have thought a lot more about his very first sentence—"alleged" attack on a volunteer fireman! He would surely never have lost "respect" if he'd seen the many times the paid department risked their own lives to rescue a child or adult who otherwise would have turned to death or died of asphyxiation! He stated he recalls

"a fire"—at how many fires where you actually present Mr. Lewis? The paid department responds to every single reported fire!!

As for losing anyone else's respect,—speak for yourself Mr. Lewis—I'm sure anyone with an ounce of common sense knows better than to make such a statement, until the facts are all verified at least! And I for one, do not believe they will be "silenced and swept under the carpet."

Keep up the excellent team work, both paid and volunteer departments and God Bless You All—

Most Sincerely,
MRS. KATHRYN DART,

Excellent Films

Editor, The Freeman:

What is happening top our town. Believe it or not two excellent movies just shown at the Community Theatre, The Hiding Place and Benji.

I was told by an employethat just about every show was crowded. I and my children were delayed for one hour at one showing because the show ahead of us was delayed due to the crowd.

Shouldn't this and the box office receipts and the sight of families going to the movies again tell the management something.

We have waited long enough for some family films.

Parents unite and let the movie management know your feelings.

Sincerely,
Ann Dachenhausen,

Ford vs. NYC: TKO

By William F. Buckley Jr.

Concerning the turn-around of Mr. Ford, a few observations:

1. Did he do the right thing? Here is an example of the use of litotes — He did not do the wrong thing. My own feeling is that New York and the country would have been better off tasting the ignominy of bankruptcy.

This is not said out of any fatuous desire to cause people to suffer. It is said out of a concern that a lesson necessary to future health should be completely learned. During the siege of Khe-sanh there were a few of us who proposed the use of tactical nuclear weapons not so much because these and only these could save Khe-sanh — as much and more firepower was available from our B-52's. We felt it important to establish that these weapons would not trigger a world-wide nuclear war.

The notion that the bankruptcy of New York City would bring unemployment in Düsseldorf is a mischievous superstition it would have been to dissipate, and could have been if New York City had simply defaulted on its bonds, invoked the bankruptcy laws, and a court appointed a trustee. The technical amendments to that law, as suggested by Senator James L. Buckley and tacked on as amendments to the proposed banking bill, were sensible and helpful.

2. At this point President Ford was playing the role of the Intransigent. He would not "bail out" New York City. In retrospect there is little doubt that, finally, the power-brokers in New York began to believe him. For one thing, they had lost the confidence of critical members of the Senate by crying Wolf metronomically — and then finding ways to take care of their own problems.

The two critical capitulations were made in Albany, and in the headquarters of the major city unions. Albany, invoking a precedent dating back to the great depression, and done then for the benefit of homeowners, decreed that there would be a moratorium in cashing matured bonds. The difference between this and default is entirely technical; that is to say, the creditor with the matured bond sees no difference between default, and the substitution of another bond at a pre-stipulated rate of interest redeemable some day in the future.

It is important to understand that the City has in fact defaulted. That what it hasn't done is "defaulted" under the traditional law — which law was changed for the occasion. And the labor unions agreed to purchase several billions dollars of city bonds with their pension funds.

3. At this point President Ford faced what was really a psychological problem. If he had refused to authorize what is really only the swing money to keep New York City in operation, he'd have emerged as an unreasonable man. He had won his principal points. New York had trimmed its budget, agreed to raise additional taxes, set up a board not entirely immune to political pressure but one step removed from it to govern matters relating to the budget; and Ford's own Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to stop federal payments — which in any case are to be reimbursed — any time New York runs behind in its scheduled obligations. It was not a clean theoretical victory, but it was an empirical victory. Leaving, however, a few unanswered questions:

4. Will the new state board prove to be sufficiently independent of direct political pressure to effect genuine reform? To talk back to the teachers' bureaucracy? to the sanitationmen? to the city's civil servants? What will the bond-buying public do when the city and the state issue their next set of bonds? How will they greet the phrase, "promise to pay" now that it is established that a promise by New York City to pay is as easily coped with as by postponing the due date by simple act of the legislature?

My guess is that future bond-buyers are going to be much more cautious, and might express that caution in demanding a premium rate of interest. And, finally, what will be the long term effect of the new taxes? A successful writer the other day explained that at this moment, he pays 50% federal tax, 14% state tax, 4% city tax, and 4% unincorporated business tax. That man is going to have to pay still more. One can only predict that the excesses of Paree are going to drive people back to the farm.

Maryland's Fishy Justice

a public servant or a neighbor but not illegal.

Track Record

What this twerpish governor is charged with is helping his pals get more racing days for their track from the state legislature. In return Mandel is supposed to have gotten a cut in several of his pals' businesses.

Among the crimes a governor might commit, those Mandel is charged with appear as vague as they do inconsequential. What if he is guilty, what if he did help manipulate a few racing dates around? So what? It doesn't cost the public a dime.

Let's not ask if he's guilty, let's ask why states determine racing dates. Gambling, horse racing and the like are healthy enough to be allowed to be unregulated private enterprises. If the people who own a racetrack know so little about their businesses they can't determine when to open and close them, let's nationalize racing and end the temptation to steal a bribe that way.

Former Illinois governor, former Federal appeals court judge, former jailbird and ex-distinguished citizen Otto Kerner went to the big house on charges arising out of a racetrack situation. Racetrack legislation is but part of a whole, large category of laws that have no other real

Mr. and Mrs. America: A Winchell Tribute

WASHINGTON — When Walter Winchell died in 1972, he left behind a collection of last gripes and reminiscences. These have just been published by Prentice Hall.

"Winchell Exclusive," as the book is called, recalled for me one of the unforgettable characters of my early muckraking years.

Winchell was a New York City urchin, on his own at 13. By 19, he was a song-and-dance man on the Orpheum circuit. He entered "newspapering" as an indefatigable ad salesman and collector of show biz items for an obscure Tin Pan Alley rag.

Out of it all — the clackety-clack of iron wheels on endless rails, the one-night stands on a thousand Main Streets, the tense, terse pace of Manhattan and its gladiators — Winchell got into his bones an instinct for the rhythm, the sense of expectancy, the titillations and gut interests that moved America during the second third of this century.

He carved out for himself a beat at which the threads of mass interest intersected: Broadway, Hollywood, Gangland, G-men, spies, night club "souse-ieté" and the emotional fever zones of national politics — FDR, anti-Hitlerism, anti-communism.

With a dot, dot, dot to separate subjects, he would dash from inter-national catatylisms to trivial gossip; he knew that there were millions out there who really wanted to know that Mr. and Mrs. so-and-so were "infanticipating."

To this beat he brought a new style, a staccato delivery, yet a voice so artistically honed as to be able instantly to shift into a mellow, one-on-one intimacy.

To fit his frantic pace, he coined new words: "debutramp," "playbore," "swelegant," "Chicagorilla." And he created an image he never tired of playing — the brash, shirt-sleeved, cigarette-drooping, hat-pushed-back, Front Page newshark, pounding a telegraph key, racing the clock.

When things got dull at the Stork Club around 4 a.m., he would prowling the streets in his car, tracking the calls on his special police radio. The echo of the siren was in his phrases. Above all, he gave daily answers to the big question — "What's going to happen tomorrow?" — which moved his generation much as ours turns on "What went wrong yesterday?"

Winchell and his era are put in focus by a fascinating introduction to the book written by the noted newsmen and personality, Ernest Cuneo. Winchell's street-educated mind, Cuneo says, was narrow but almost preternaturally incisive.

On a chance encounter with the British ambassador in the days before Munich, WW asked: "What is Great Britain going to do about Hitler?"

"We shall try to fatten the tiger without strengthening him," was the reply.

Winchell snorted "I've seen some big tigers and some little tigers, but I've never seen a fat one." His next column capsuled the coming world tragedy in two Winchellian sentences: "Britain will marry Hitler in the fall. The marriage will blow up in a world war."

In his heyday, Winchell is said to have reached 9 out 10 Americans by radio and to have had 50 million readers for his daily columns. His ego exceeded even his circulation.

I was once imprisoned in a taxicab for 45 minutes with the great man; by the time we got out, I was almost asphyxiated from the nonstop litany of his triumphs over perfidious foes, his betrayals at the hands of ingrates, his prodigious benefactions to mankind.

For all the sharpness of his instincts, Winchell was content to stay on the surface of events. "He was not interested in the story, only the headline," Cuneo says.

My mentor, Drew Pearson, was Walter Winchell's great rival for top dogdom in theradio-newspaper whirl. Pearson, though a fierce competitor for the headline, was committed to the issue behind it. For him, the headline was just a skirmish in the unending battle or what he saw as the good cause against the bad.

For years, the two maintained friendly relations, watched each other like respectful hawks and often collaborated, or as Winchell said "patty-caked" with one another.

When in the late 1940s and early '50s, Pearson took on the whole snake-pit of Red-hunting demagogues, the time came when McCarthy and his allies ganged up in retribution, pushed Pearson off the radio and threatened to destroy him.

Drew called Winchell and asked him to join the battle while there was still time. But the headlines were coming from the other side then. Winchell refused and ran with the McCarthyites until their string ran out.

Cuneo, who was close to both, compares them in an apt metaphor: Winchell was a racehorse; Pearson was a war horse. But taking Winchell as he was, what a race horse!

"Winchell Exclusive" recaptures the flavor of a time gone by, a time of preposterous spectacles, sizzling feuds, ignoble follies and noble struggles.

Walter Winchell played a part in the lives, and remains in the memories, of most of us past 40. And there were occasional moments, as on the issues of world fascism and national rearmament, when he rose above the gossip and the ego, and shone as a beacon for "Mr. and Mrs. America...and all the ships at sea."

NEW RESTS ON OLD

PEKING (UPI) — Notebook items from President Ford's trip to China:

A reporter who asked Ma Yuchen, Chinese information director, if it was possible U.S. journalists could meet with Chairman Mao Tse-tung got this response:

"Your wish is impossible to fulfill. Your question is impossible to answer."

The Chinese are showing great curiosity about the presidential aspirations of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who is challenging Ford for the GOP nomination, and Sen. Henry Jackson (D-Wash.). Both Reagan and Jackson — like themselves — are strong critics of U.S.-Soviet detente.

They also have asked many questions about Ford's firing of Defense Secretary James Schlesinger, whom the Chinese admire for his strong warnings against Soviet defense policies.

Reporters say the quality of the food served at the Great Hall of the People and at the Minzu Hotel where they are staying has dropped precipitously since President Richard M. Nixon's visit in 1972.

They now rate the cooking "half a star."

One reporter mused that Chinese anger over U.S.-Soviet detente has reached all the way down to the exotic cuisine.

Mrs. George Bush, wife of the chief U.S. liaison officer in Peking, has learned her diplomatic P's and Q's.

Asked about her husband's meeting with the Ford party Tuesday at the home of Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, she looked aghast. In China, apparently, one never speaks of Mao.

"Why don't you ask George," she snapped.

Reporters have gone on a Christmas shopping spree in Peking. Among the best buys are cashmere sweaters, both cardigan and pullover styles. Two ginger jars go for $12. But most correspondents are still finding jade a little out of their price range.

Ready for Bicentennial

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Because they not only crowd cupboards and attics but serve as reminders of vacations past, souvenirs are stacking up.

FOR FREEMAN HOME DELIVERY
CALL 331-5004

ing a major dollar claim on the nation's bicentennial billions.

Appropriately, one of the manufacturers of official souvenirs for Bicentennial 1976 in six of the original 13 states is a family-owned Columbia, Pa., firm with roots in Pennsylvania's early iron-mining industry.

Wilton Brass Co.'s bicentennial souvenirs combine a 12-year-old, pewter-like metals mixture with the world's second oldest form of molding — sand casting.

"Only pottery is an older form," said Wilton's master molder, Red Hancock, 68, who demonstrates the deft casting of molten armetale, the company's 10-metal secret alloy.

Out of shattered sand blocks come the cooled plates, tankards, breakers and auto tags bearing the individual bicentennial designs of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Georgia, North Carolina and Virginia among the original 13 colonies, plus Florida, Indiana, Alabama, Kentucky, Louisiana, the District of Columbia and New York City.

A 5 per cent royalty on sales paid to the Pennsylvania Bicentennial Commission by Wilton and one other Pennsylvania firm already is nearing $300,000.

"People congratulate us for getting ready for the Bicentennial in good time," said Steve Wilton, 29, company advertising manager and one of three brothers working with their father, R.P. (Bud) Wilton, in the firm.

"The fact is we've been ready for years since most of our 450 different armetale items are copied from museum and collector pieces that were part of colonial America."

The Wiltons began mining iron near Marietta, Pa., in the early 1800s, turned to sand-casting iron, then brass, then armetale 12 years ago as a less expensive, more durable and useful product with some of the gray luster of pewter.

In two years the marketing success of armetale reproductions of colonial mugs, tankards, flatware, plates, porringers, tureens and candlesticks led Wilton Brass to halt brass casting.

Wilton foundries in Wrightsville and Florin, Pa., and the Columbia headquarters for sales, shipping and design employ 400 persons with Fred Wilton, 32, as manufacturing head and John Wilton, 25, production chief.

Though distinguishable from the colonial favorite, pewter, armetale's melting point of 1,500 degrees — compared with pewter's 800 — makes it stove and oven proof.

"It's also dent, break, chip and crack proof," said Steve Wilton, "and doesn't require polishing unless put in a dishwasher."

Occasionally someone uses a Wilton product as a mold for some competitive castings, including a copy of Wilton's decorative auto plate featuring the Pennsylvania coat of arms.

"But the instances have been few — and the shrinkage from using our tag meant their tag holes wouldn't fit any car," Wilton said.

Air Crash Narrowly Averted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Transportation Safety Board says two airliners carrying more than 300 persons may have missed a collision by as little as 20 to 100 feet over southern Michigan last week.

Transcripts of ground-to-air conversations indicate quick action by an air traffic controller may have avoided a tragedy.

The board said in a preliminary report Tuesday that American Airlines Flight 182, bound from Chicago to Newark, N.J., was flying at 34,953 feet and an oncoming TWA flight from Philadelphia to Los Angeles was cruising at 35,000 feet, a vertical difference of 47 feet.

The American Airlines, with 194 persons aboard, dived suddenly to 33,000 feet to avoid a possible collision, the report said. Twenty-four persons were injured in the dive, three of them seriously. There were 114 persons aboard the TWA plane.

"Both aircraft were flying in conditions of limited visibility," the report said. "The captain of AA 182 (the American flight) stated that the two aircraft came within 20 to 100 feet of each other."

"At the time of AA 182's immediate descent, the seatbelt sign was on and a meal was being served. It was reported that all unsecured, or not properly secured, persons and objects floated to the ceiling and, subsequently, fell to the floor."

The board said its investigation is not complete. It released a preliminary transcript of recordings of the conversations between the pilots of the two planes and the Cleveland Control Center.

One minute and five seconds before the incident, it said, the Cleveland controller who had been handling the American flight "was relieved by one of his colleagues to take a break."

The new controller asked the American flight what its altitude was and was told:

"Passing 34.7 (34,700) at this time. We can see stars above us but we're still in the area of the clouds."

"AA 182 descend immediately to 3300," came the urgent reply from the controller.

"Descending to 3300 at this time," the plane responded. A few seconds later the captain of the American flight asked Cleveland:

"What altitude was that other aircraft at?"

"He was at 35 sir," the controller responded.

"I'd check on that," replied the captain.

'Pathways of Judaism'

Kingston Chapter of United Synagogue Youth will host an intercity conclave Dec. 5 through 7 with more than 20 USY members from throughout upstate New York attending services and workshops. Theme for the weekend is The Pathways of Judaism. Discussing final plans are Jeffrey Gally (L), chapter president and co-intercity chairman; Kirk Barnes, Zionist rally chairman and Barry Goldschlag, Saturday night program chairman. Mr. and Mrs. Barry Lebart are advisors. Barbara Salomon is co-intercity chairman.

Protest Rally Sunday

A rally protesting the recent United Nations General Assembly resolution on Zionism will be staged Sunday by United Synagogue Youth Intercity Convention hosted by the Kingston Chapter USY.

Combined upstate groups estimated to number more than 200 members will assemble at Congregation Ahavath Israel, 100 Lucas Avenue, at 10 a.m. and proceed to Academy Green for the rally at 10:30 a.m.

Among the dignitaries expected to attend and speak are Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr., State Senator Edwyn E. Mason, Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn of Temple Emanuel, Rabbi Basil F. Herring of Congregation Agudas Achim. Rabbi Aryeh Lev Lupkin of Congregation Ahavath Israel, Rabbi Harry Z. Schectman, formerly of Ahavath Israel, and David H. Greenwald on behalf of Zephaniah Lodge 131, B'nai B'rith.

Kirk Barnes, USY rally chairman, said that in case of inclement weather the rally will be held 10 a.m. Sunday at Ahavath Israel.

The Intercity Convention will include services and workshops on the theme Pathways to Judaism. The public may attend the various services Friday through Sunday and the rally on Sunday.

Synagogue News

Ahavath Israel

Religious services will be conducted at the conservative synagogue, Congregation Ahavath Israel, 100 Lucas Avenue, Friday 8 p.m. followed by an Oneg Shabbat being co-sponsored by Barry and Eileen Lubart, USY advisors with the Sisterhood. Saturday services will be 9:30 a.m. followed by a Kiddush.

At both services the mourner's prayer will be offered for the following departed whose Yahrzeits will be observed during the coming week: Paye Brossman, Rose Kirschner, Moishe Itelson, Bessie Millens, William Field, Karel Colen and Samuel Gold. All religious services are conducted by Rabbi Aryeh Lev Lupkin. This weekend however the United Synagogue Youth will be hosting the Intercity Convention for upstate members under the theme Pathways to Judaism and will conduct orthodox-type Friday night service; conservative Saturday morning and afternoon service and a Reform Havdalah.

A rally protesting the recent United Nations General Assembly resolution on Zionism will be held Sunday. The group will assemble at Ahavath Israel at 10 a.m. and proceed to Academy Green for the rally at 10:30. In case of inclement weather, the rally will be held at Ahavath Israel at 10 a.m.

Temple Emanuel

A Religious School Family Sabbath Service will be held Friday 7:45 p.m. at Temple Emanuel, 243 Albany Avenue. All interested families may attend. Services will be conducted by Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn, Cantor John Park and Barbara and Leonard Zimet.

Sabbath candles will be kindled by Marlene Feldman. The Kiddush will be led by Dr. Abraham Feldman and Nathan Feldman.

During services memories of the following persons will be invoked: Rachel Katz, David Newland, Herman Sadowsky.

Mortimer Fink, Rabbi David Wolff, Al Sauerhaff, Abram Markson, Alex Semilof, Isadore Marcus and Jacob Litsky.

The congregation may attend the Oneg Shabbat co-sponsored by Dr. and Mrs. Abraham Feldman and the Temple Religious School after services.

The adult education class, Lifetime of the Jew, will meet Monday 8 p.m. Jewish views on death and dying will be discussed. All interested persons may attend.

Agudas Achim

The seventh Hanukkah candles will be lighted tonight. Friday eight candles will be lighted and then the Sabbath candles 11 before 4:09 p.m.

The weekly Oneg Shabbat at Congregation Agudas Achim, 254 Lucas Avenue, will be 7:30 p.m. Friday. Rabbi Basil Herring will deliver a sermon. Refreshments will be served. Services Saturday 8:30 a.m. will be led by Cantor Herman Slomovitz.

The featured movie of the month Saturday 8 p.m. will be Journey to Jerusalem, the story of Leonard Bernstein's visit following the Six-Day War.

A demonstration against the Zionist resolution in the United Nations will be held Sunday 10:30 a.m. at Academy Green. Adult education classes will be held Monday and Tuesday 7:30 p.m.

Services every day are at 7 a.m. and 7 p.m.; Sunday 8 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Food Policies Scored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional investigators released a report today charging many of the world's hungry nations follow policies that discourage production of the food their people need.

Fonated food from nations such as the United States has discouraged food production in needy nations "by keeping down prices and by permitting governments to postpone needed agricultural reforms," the report said.

The report by the General Accounting Office said administration officials should take a tough stance in requiring nations which get American aid to sweep away "disincentive" policies such as artificially low farm prices.

Also, the GAO said, American officials should do all they can to build similar tough requirements into international aid programs, such as a $1 billion International Fund for Agriculture currently under consideration.

The GAO operates as a watchdog for Congress over operations of the executive branch of government. It said administration agencies — including the Agriculture, State and Treasury Departments and the Agency for International Development — agreed more effort should be made to eliminate policies that suppress food production in such needy nations as Indonesia, Tanzania, India and Pakistan.

Some of the agencies, however, said some of the criticism in the report was too broad. In at least one case, the Agriculture Department flatly opposed a GAO proposal that it ban Food for Peace shipments to countries that do not adopt satisfactory production-boosting policies.

An Agriculture official said the agency already requires recipient countries to include statements about planned "selfhelp" measures in Food for Peace agreements and claimed a tougher policy would be neither "practical or desirable."

The GAO report said developing nations have held down food production through price ceilings, export taxes that discourage farmers from expanding output, trade policies that make food imports attractive, restrictions on moving food from surplus to deficit areas within needy countries and substandard farm extension and credit policies.

Yule Safety Check

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission has decided to crack down on hazardous Christmas tree lights. At the same time it has reaffirmed its belief that toys this year are safer than ever.

The agency ruled Monday that the lights as a class of product pose an unreasonable risk of injury from fire and shock and that safety rules will have to be drawn up to make them safer.

Such rules may be a year or more in the making, but in the meantime the agency said three major distributors of imported, miniature lights — the kind in which most of the problems have been uncovered — are voluntarily making corrections on an unknown number of lights to eliminate potential hazards.

The companies are Advance Imports, ACLA Inc. and the Miles Kimball Co. Various brands are involved but no brand names were made public. In many cases the problems will be corrected before the lights reach store shelves.

The action does not affect any lights sold in previous years.

The major problems with the lights have been exposed wires as the base of the cup into which the light is screwed or inserted.

Commission Chairman Richard O. Simpson also issued a five-page statement explaining why the commission is not publishing its annual list of banned hazardous toys this year.

Not only was the list confusing and possibly misleading, he said, but the agency has over the past year proposed regulations dealing with sharp points, sharp edges and small parts in toys and feels that approach is more useful.

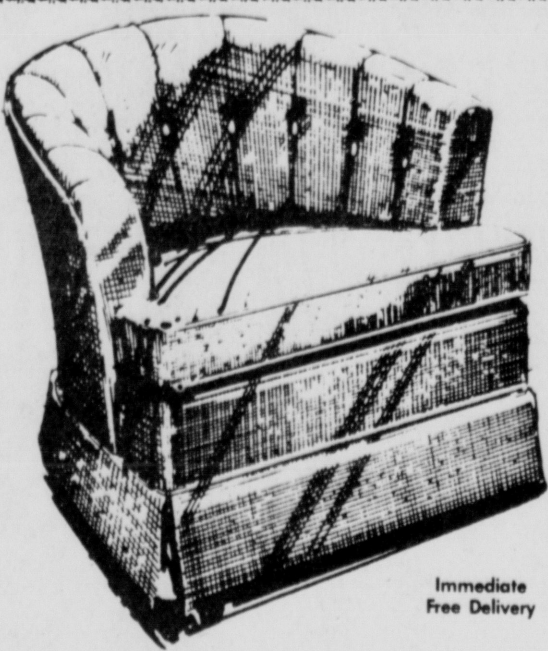

He also said action by manufacturers and retailers, in addition to commission enforcement efforts, resulted in the list having already served its purpose because the toys on the list "have virtually disappeared from the marketplace."

Students' Art Experiences

WOODSTOCK

Students in the Woodstock Elementary School have been involved in a variety of art experiences under the direction of Gladys Plate, their art teacher. The excellent photography, which illustrates this art work, was done by Alex Marcus, a State University College at New Paltz student who is presently doing his student teaching at the Onteora Central Schools.

"The Spee" is a delightful nonsense poem that was read to Mrs. Ann Brophy's fourth grade class. The first stanza is: "Have you every heard of the Spee

The strangest creature you'll ever see?
This head is pointed like a cone
His whiskers are shaped like a wishing bone."

Peter Rosu's illustration of the poem captures the look and spirit of "The Spee."

The sixth grade classes had several lessons on the realistic rendering of beads. In the next lesson they used photographs from magazines to a surrealistic image, something more emotional—more meaningful to them. Many students did fascinating pictures. James Klika's work shows his reaction to the world we all live in.

A variety of squashes, tomatoes and other vegetables and fruits were arranged around the room in still-lives. The colors and shapes were an inspiration for many beautiful pictures done in chalk and pastels. Sixth grader Judy Owens' work is an example of the work done.

Handel's 'Messiah' . . . a Pre-Christmas Treat

KINGSTON

A pre-Christmas musical treat is in store for area music lovers at Fair Street Reformed Church on Sunday, Dec. 7, when the Kingston area massed choir will present the Christmas portions of Handel's "Messiah."

Accompanist for Sunday's presentation will be Gloria-Jean Sparks, organist at Fair Street Reformed who has become well-known for organ work, particularly through the tonal use of the instrument, in recital and with the choir.

Her background in the music field is solid—she studied at the Julliard School of Music, and with Captain Davis on the famous West Point organ and continued her studies at Baldwin Wallace College in Ohio.

And the local accompanist has served many churches in addition to Fair Street—Reformed Church of the Comforter, Old Dutch Church, the Choes Presbyterian and Port Ewen Reformed Church.

Sunday's "Messiah" presentation will be conducted by Percy W. Gazlay II, minister of music at Fair Street Reformed Church.

The appearance of Gazlay and the massed choir on Sunday certainly promises an outstanding musical treat for as one singer who has participated in earlier concerts with Gazlay said:

"He insists on technical preciseness clean, clear tones with every eye on him; then there's the extra touch, the sensitivity, in the interpretation that makes the music an inspiration and singers anxious to do the work 'just so.'"

Sunday's musical offering of the "Messiah" during the candlelight vesper hour at 4 o'clock will benefit a good cause as well.

Of course, there will be no charge for admission, but the offering proceeds will go the city-wide fund-raising campaign, initiated by the Daily Freeman, to help the Children's Library get back on its feet. The Children's Library was recently hit by fire, destroying not only the building but many of the books and materials stored there.

Incidentally, the "Messiah" was first performed in 1742 at a concert given for charitable purposes. And once more Handel's notable works will be done for charitable work.

Charity Night Tonight

'Scrooge' Opens in New Paltz

NEW PALTZ
Tonight marks the opening of 90 Miles off Broadway's production of Mr. Scrooge, a musical adaptation of Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol. Proceeds from this performance will go to charities and service organizations indicated by ticket-buyers. Members of the New Paltz theatre group have proposed this "Charity Night," as a holiday gift to their community.

Other performance dates will be December 5 and 6, and December 7, at 2 p.m.

Richard Morris and Ted Wood wrote the book for Mr. Scrooge, and Dolores Claman wrote the music. Robert Grosshans is directing the show, his second such effort for 90 Miles. He also directed The Night of January 16, and has numerous other college, community, and professional theatre productions among his directorial credits. Audrey Gardner is musical director and Maxine Bacon is choreographer.

Mr. Scrooge is faithful to Dickens' original tale of Ebenezer Scrooge's Christmas Eve conversion from a stingy, grasping miser, to an open-hearted humanitarian. All the ingredients are there — Marley's ghost, the ghosts of Christmas Past, Present, and Future, and the Bob Cratchits, with Tiny Tim. John Price heads the cast in the title role, and is supported by such regular 90 Miles as Pat Yaeger, Hal Marsh, Leni Heroy, Tome Green, Julie Isaacson, and Steve Ford. Many young faces fill out the rest of the cast, an excellent show for children, as well as for adults.

Tickets may be purchased at the door (New Paltz High School), or reserved ahead of time by calling the box office at the Little Red House of Gifts.

Chaplin Comic Art In Lecture Series

NEWBURGH

The serious art of the funniest man of our time will be the subject when Mount Saint Mary College English Professor, Richard Campion, examines the Comic Art of Charlie Chaplin, Dec. 10 at 12:30 p.m., at Aquinas Hall on the Newburgh College campus. Campion will be the third speaker in the Roland M. Whittaker monthly lecture series where faculty speaks to faculty with students and the public urged to attend.

To illustrate his theme, Campion will show the silent film, THE RINK and excerpts from THE GOLD RUSH where the "Little Tramp" displays his extraordinary agility and mastery of expression.
Campion believes that the genius of Charlie Chaplin stems from his identification with ordinary men and women as they struggle for survival.
"Charlie Chaplin is excruciatingly funny," Campion said, "because we see ourselves in each of his hapless encounters with the mundane things of daily living."

Campion, who earned his M.A. from New York University, is a collector of silent films. He is book and film reviewer for FILMS IN REVIEW Magazine.

There are three more lectures scheduled for the 1975-76 Whittaker Series. On Feb. 12, 1976, William McDonough, director of Placement and Career Guidance at the college, will address the subject:
Job Opportunities Open to College Graduates.
Sister Kathryn Lindemann, Philosophy Professor at the Mount, will discuss The Philosophy of Paulo Friere and the Women's Movement March 9. The final lecture of the series April 14 will be given by
Journalist, A.E. Woolley. His topic: PERSIA/IRAN: A Pictorial Treasury of Twenty-five Centuries. A Multi-Media Presentation.

Happy Holidays From Olana . . . Special Program on December 20

HUDSON Olana is celebrating the holidays this year.

In keeping with the interest shown by Frederic Church in the blending of the many different cultures of the world, the staff at Olana in Columbia County is presenting a program of readings on Saturday, Dec. 20, at 1 p.m., in the large Court Hall of the castle, to celebrate the many holidays that fall from November through January.

The program is meant to delight the young and the young at heart including favorite stories and poems known to all for this season, as well as some of the favorite pieces of the Church family.

The castle will be adorned with greens and candles for the occasion and will be open following the readings for the visitors to enjoy.

A special exhibit of some of the children's toys and a letter to Santa from the children, Frederic Joseph, Win, Louis and Downy, dated, will be seen for the first time. Of special delight is Frederic E. Church's sketch of Santa which adorns the children's envelope.

Accommodations in the castle are limited so it is requested that reservations be made for admission to the program.

The Olana office in Hudson may be contacted, Monday through Friday, for reservations and other information.

Poet to Visit Bard

Annandale-on-Hudson The Irish poet, Thomas Kinsella, will read from his works on Sunday, Dec. 7, at 2 p.m. at Bard Hall, Bard College.

Kinsella is professor of poetry at Temple University in Philadelphia, Pa., and in

Sorority Praised for Cystic Fibrosis $$

KINGSTON The November business meeting of Xi Alpha Omega was held Nov. 25 at the home of the president, Mrs. James L. Cleveland, 80 Valentine Avenue.

Among the correspondence read was a letter to Mrs. Robert Dunn from Dr. Paul R. Patterson, director of Cystic Fibrosis Center, Albany Medical College, Albany, New York. The letter extended his appreciation to Xi Alpha Omega for the generous contribution to the Cystic Fibrosis Fund. The contribution was the proceeds resulting from the participation in the Plaza Flea Market in May 1975.

Service projects announced for November and December included a Thanksgiving Day dinner, prepared by Judie's Restaurant, sent to a "shut-in" couple and a contribution of toys and games to "Toys For Tots."

The chapter Christmas Party will be held jointly with Preceptor Tau Dec. 9, at the home of Mrs. Roy Gonyea, Denver Road, Kingston, for the exchange of gifts and Secret Sisters.

The "Quad-Chapter Social" will be a box supper celebrating the International Beta Sigma Phi theme for 1975-1976 "Let Heritage Ring." This will take place 7 p.m., Jan. 13, 1976 at the Heritage Savings Bank, Wall Street.

It was announced that the tickets for the annual Valentine Dinner Dance, to be held Feb. 14, 1976 at the Holiday Inn, are ordered and should be available after Dec. 9, from Beta Sigma Phi members of Eta Eta, Xi Alpha Omega and Preceptor Tau chapters.

In attendance at the meeting were three women returning to active membership. They are Mrs. John Clark of Port Ewen and Mrs. Daniel Bernard and Mrs. William Turcotte of Kingston.

Also attending were Mrs. Jack Kiegle, vice-president; Mrs. John Baxter, secretary;

Mrs. George Stone, treasurer; Mrs. Robert Dunn; Mrs. Roy Gonyea; Mrs. Richard Hamsher; Mrs. Karl Hoppe; Mrs. Richard Langton; Mrs. James Lynady and Mrs.

Ronald Rifenburg. The next business meeting of Xi Alpha Omega will be held Jan. 27, 1976, at the home of Mrs. Peggy Thatcher, Stony Run.

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

She Looks From Wrong Vantage Point

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've read you for years but this is the first time I've ever written.

I am a 24-year-old girl who is average in every way except one: I stand 6 feet in my stocking feet!

I have many girl friends and some fellows who are friendly, but men never consider me a serious candidate for a romantic partner. Even guys who are taller than I am treat me like I'm another guy.

When I meet new people, I feel that they accept me — until I stand up and they see how tall I am.

Abby, I know I'm attractive and have a pleasing personality, but I'm getting nowhere.

I am becoming resentful and bitter, and don't know what to do about it.

TOO D—TALL

DEAR TALL: You can turn what you think is a liability into an asset. But first you must start with the top of your lovely height — your mind — because that's where the problem is.

Your self-image is negative, and it reflects in your attitude toward other people.

When you walk in a room, walk tall and smile. Don't grab the nearest chair. Stand and greet everyone you meet with dignity and grace. Whatever you do, don't slump!

When you sit, sit tall and gracefully with your long legs together.

And don't come on too strong with men. Believe me, they'll notice you.

Wear tailored clothes, and don't be afraid to wear bright colors.

Forget your height and others will. You will be judged on how you treat people, not on how high you're stacked.

Now get going and just watch the effect you'll have on others.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of men who run ads in the classified section of a newspaper, rading: "Lonely gent (age, weight, height) wants to meet woman (age range usually much younger) for companionship, marriage or . . ."

And what do you think of women who answer such ads?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: I think such men must be desperately lonely as well as incredibly foolish to risk possible involvement with some very creepy characters.

And the same goes for women who would answer such ads.

DEAR ABBY: You asked if anyone has ever protested at the point in the marriage service where it says, "If any man can show just cause why they may not lawfully be joined together, let him speak now or forever hold his peace".

Yes, it happened several years ago in Altadena, Calif., when a woman called out, "I protest!"

The Reverend Edward E. Hailwood, who was the rector of the St. Mark's Episcopal Church, did the only thing he could do. He halted the service and had the woman brought to him in the privacy of the sacristy and demanded her reasons.

"I protest in the name of the Father, Son and the Holy Ghost," she said.

It was obvious that she was deranged, so she was taken out through a side door, and Father Hailwood returned to the church and continued with the wedding.

W.P. IN FRESNO

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Changing Role of Women In Readings for LWV

WEST HURLEY

The annual social meeting of the League of Women Voters of Mid-Ulster County will be held Dec. 11 at 8 p.m. at the West Hurley School, with Mrs. Ingrid Sternberg as hostess. The Evelyn Navy Production "Women in Perspective" will be presented, according to

Mrs. Joseph Vilches, president.

"Women in Perspective" is an anthology on the continually changing role of women in society, including a humorous poke at the oft-accepted, stereotype of the "little woman." The readings are brilliantly interpreted by Elizabeth Askue, Elizabeth Madonna, and Linda Quartell, who convey the humor, anger, frustrations, and joys which have been felt by women through the ages.

The public is cordially invited to attend this bound-to-be-entertaining presentation.

There will be no general meetings of the Mid-Ulster LWV in January and February. Instead, the four units of the local League (Kingston, Hurley, Olive and Woodstock) will meet separately to conduct meetings and deal with business and studies on the town level.

The LWV is open to all men and women who are citizens of voting age. For further information regarding the Mid-Ulster League, write to UPO Box 564, Kingston, N.Y. 12401.

M.A.A. in Two Plays

The Performers Workshop of the Marblatown Artists Association will present two one-act plays in a dinner theater offering Dec. 5 and Dec. 12 at Anzalone's Restaurant, High Falls. Nancy Sack and Sam Goodman are shown in one of the offerings — "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running," directed by Chet London. The co-hit will be "White Lies" by Perter Shaffer, featuring Nina Werbalowsky, well-known area comedienne and veteran of many Coach House Players productions. Nina, in the role of the Baroness, will co-star with Barry Ford and Larry Klaiman, as a rock star and his manager. Klaiman also directs the play. Reservations may be made by calling the restaurant which will offer a dinner featuring either chicken cacciatore or sweet and pungent pork.

Holly Hobby Workshop

The Plaza Heights Homemakers will hold a workshop in January on the making of Holly Hobby decorations. This meeting will be held at the home of Mary Mrower.

The club's Christmas party is scheduled for Dec. 18. Becky Ingber and Gerry Passaretti were hostesses at the recent meeting when craft work was displayed and Christmas recipes were sampled.

IDEAL FOR HOLIDAY RV Social Saturday

ROSENDALE
One of the Rondout Valley's most gracious social events, the annual dinner-dance of the Rondout Valley Scholarship Fund, Inc., will take place Saturday, Dec. 6 at Williams Lake Hotel in Rosendale.

1975 marks the ninth such event, the single major endeavor the fund carries out to raise scholarship monies for Rondout Valley High School graduates. Because the fund is a community enterprise, the Board of Directors hopes for a district-wide attendance.

Since 1965, when the first scholarships were awarded, the fund has disbursed $9,900 to 45 Rondout Valley students. The amount and number of the awards is limited only by the money raised through the annual dinner and voluntary contributions. Donations are welcome at any time, and the directors suggest that persons unable to attend on December 6 consider making a monetary contribution. Dinner tickets and all donations are tax-deductible.

A Dutch Treat cocktail hour at 6:30 p.m. will open the evening on Saturday. This will be followed at 7:30 by a prime ribs of beef dinner, and then dancing.

Tea and Spices . . . A Good Gift, Also Appropriate

NEW YORK
As we celebrate the holiday season which ushers in the Bicentennial, there is hardly a more appropriate "gift from the kitchen" for yourself or for someone on your list than spiced teas, since both tea and spices played important roles in American Revolutionary War days.

Even before the Boston Tea Party 203 years ago, American colonists had been spicing their India teas with sweet spices; anise seed; herbs, such as mints of different varieties; basil, thyme; sage and comparable leaves from gardens or the wild. Back in the days of the Jamestown settlers Ceylon teas were blended with sweet spices and orange rind. Another popular blend mixed fine India teas and fragrant herbs such as mint, marigold blossoms, peach leaves and spices.

Patriotic hostesses of two centuries ago served the so-called "liberty teas" made of herbs, but without any kind of regular tea. Sage tea was one of the most popular and shrewd colonists even sold the Chinese on the idea to the point that when trade was resumed with China, the Orientals happily exchanged three pounds of tea for every one of American grown sage. Home economists of the American Spice Trade Association have been testing and tasting a number of spiced teas: Tea Brulot, Anise Tea and Spiced Tea. These, nicely packed in apothecary jars, make the most aromatic of gifts for friends and neighbors and, of course, tea-loving aunts, uncles and godparents.

Spiced Tea
2 tablespoons whole coriander seed
2 cups tea leaves
12 bay leaves, crumbled
Crush coriander seed in a mortar with a pestle or tie in double thickness of cheesecloth and crush with a mallet. Mix with tea and bay leaves. Store in an airtight container or pack into jars with tight fitting lids for gifts.
YIELD: about 2 1/2 cups
Anise Tea
3 tablespoons anise

seed
2 cups tea leaves
1/2 cup grated lemon peel
Crush anise seed in a mortar with a pestle or tie in double thickness of cheesecloth and crush with a mallet. Mix with tea and lemon peel. Store in an airtight container or pack into jars with tight fitting lids for gifts.

YIELD: about 2 1/2 cups
Tea Brulot
6 cinnamon sticks, each 2-inches long
1 teaspoon whole cloves
1 whole nutmeg

2 cups tea leaves
2 tablespoons grated orange peel
2 tablespoons grated lemon peel
Wrap cinnamon sticks, cloves and nutmeg in a clean kitchen towel or in double thickness of cheesecloth and crush with a mallet. Combine spices with tea and orange and lemon peels; mix well. Store in an airtight container or pack into jars with tight fitting lids for gifts.

YIELD: about 2 1/2 cups

TO BREW:
Heat teapot by rinsing it with boiling water. Into pot place one teaspoon of team mixture for each teacup of boiling water. Let stand 2 to 5 minutes. Strain into teacups. Sweeten, if desired.

Kuniyoshi Winner

WOODSTOCK

Well-known Woodstock artist Dorothy Varian has been announced the winner of the annual Yasuo Kuniyoshi Fund, Inc., award.

The award to Dorothy Varian is for $100. The award-winning artist is represented in several permanent collections throughout the country including the Whitney Museum of American Art, Fisk University, the Duncan Phillips Memorial Gallery in Washington, D.C., among others.

Her exhibitions include the three World's Fairs, Salon d'Automne in Paris and the Duveen Galleries in London, England.

One-man exhibitions have included the Polari Gallery and the Parnassus Square Gallery in Woodstock, Albany Institute of Art and History and twice each at the Whitney and Downtown Galleries in New York City.

The distinguished artist Yasuo Kuniyoshi in 1948 organized an informal group among his artist friends in Woodstock. They carried on fund-raising events from which the money was contributed to such professional purposes as artists' welfare funds, art conferences and film festivals.

After Kuniyoshi's death those who worked with him carried on the organization in his memory and incorporated it under the name of the Yasuo Kuniyoshi Fund, Inc. At the present time, the Kuniyoshi Fund is making an annual award of $100 to an artist chosen by a well qualified jury. As the Kuniyoshi Fund is a tax-exempt corporation, contributions to it are tax free.

Veeck Needs Another $1.2 Million

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Wheeler-dealer Bill Veeck has one week to come up with another $1.2 million or his deal to purchase the Chicago White Sox is off.

The American League owners rejected his original bid to buy the franchise Wednesday by a vote of 8 against, three in favor and one abstention. Later the owners voted 10-0, two having left the meeting, in favor of giving Veeck and his group until Dec. 10 to raise the extra capital.

"It's possible, and we're going to try," Veeck said. "That's our impression at this time."

His attorney estimated Veeck has about a 25 per cent chance of raising the money.

"Obviously I'm not happy. I thought we had a viable deal, a reasonable deal, and suddenly I find I did not have a reasonable deal," Veeck said following a meeting with league owners at a hotel near Cleveland Hopkins International Airport.

"I'm worried that the ball club will leave Chicago, and that's anathema to me," the former owner of the St. Louis Browns and the Cleveland Indians said.

American League President Lee MacPhail said the meeting was held to consider only Veeck's offer and he refused to speculate about any offers to move the franchise elsewhere if Veeck cannot raise enough money to buy it.

"We will have to cross that bridge when we come to it," MacPhail said. "Hopefully we won't get to it."

Veeck's problem with the owners stemmed from his method of financing principally through debentures, a kind of promissory note. His original offer involved $4.8 million front money, most of it in debentures in a total deal of about $10 million. MacPhail indicated the owners want an offer involving $6 million in cash and stock instead of debentures.

"The basic proposal was too much debt and not enough equity," MacPhail said. "Whenever we've had difficulties with some of our franchises, in each instance it's been with teams that were underfinanced."

Capital, according to MacPhail, is defined by the owners as "unencumbered equity." He said debentures represent "debt."

SPORTS TODAY

Veeck's group includes former Cincinnati Reds owner William O. DeWitt, former Detroit Tigers star Hank Greenberg, and former Baltimore Orioles general manager Paul Richards.

The group seeks to buy Artnell Corp., owner of the White Sox, from John Allyn. Following league approval of the deal, Artnell would be broken up with Veeck and his associates keeping the baseball franchise and Allyn keeping a minor interest in the White Sox plus control of all other Artnell properties.

"Maybe they are hanging me slowly by the neck, but I wouldn't call that harassment," Veeck said of the proposal from the owners, adding that he considered his bid comparable to deals made for other clubs.

He said the short time allotted to raise the extra money was his main concern and he partially blamed himself for his predicament. Veeck said he was so confident his deal would win approval that he asked for a quick decision.

"It's like the old gag, I guess, of the carrot and the donkey, but in this case the stick is too long," Veeck said.

Giants In Same Boat

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A local group trying to buy the San Francisco Giants is in the same boat with Bill Veeck, who is trying to purchase the Chicago White Sox — both are a little short of cash.

American League owners have given Veeck a week to come up with more money before they give their approval. The group seeking to buy the Giants has maybe until Saturday to come up with $12 million — a figure believed set by the National League.

Horace Stoneham, who left Stanford Hospital today for a recuperative period at home after undergoing surgery two weeks ago, wants $10 million for the Giants and the N.L. is insisting the new ownership have at least $2 million in operating capital.

That's where everyone is hung up at the moment. On Wednesday, Chuck Rupert, Stoneham's son-in-law and the Giants' executive vice-president, held a telephonic conference with members of the club's board of directors. He is believed to have approached them for approval of an offer of $8 million.

"The board discussed the current status of negotiations for the sale of the company's assets," Rupert said. "No firm decision was reached on the matter and representatives of the company were instructed to continue with pending discussions."

What that means is that Rupert was instructed to tell the local group of bidders they need to improve their offer and quickly.

Sooners Top All-America

NEW YORK (UPI) — The University of Oklahoma Wednesday led the parade of college football talent named to the United Press International All-America team by placing four players on the 23-man squad.

The third-ranked Sooners, losers only once in 11 games this season, had on the first team offensive guard Terry Webb, defensive end Jimbo Elrod and the Selmon brothers, defensive tackle Leroy and middle guard Dewey.

It marked the first time that two brothers were named to the All-America team in the same year. Another brother, Lucious, was a first team All-America selection as a middle guard two years ago. Top-ranked Ohio State, second-ranked Texas A&M, fourth-ranked Alabama, eighth-ranked Penn State, California and Notre Dame each had two players on the team while Toledo, Southern California, Georgia, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Navy and Texas each placed one.

The team was selected by balloting of sports writers and sportscasters from across the nation.

The first team backfield are running backs Archie Griffin of Ohio State, Ricky Bell of Southern California and Chuck Muncie of California and quarterback Gene Swick of Toledo. Griffin was named to the team for the third

guards Webb and Randy Johnson of Georgia and center Rik Bonness of Nebraska. Chris Bahr of Penn State, with 18 field goals, is the placekicker.

The defensive line is made up of Elrod and Leroy Cook of Alabama at ends, Steve Niehaus and Leroy Selmon at tackles and Dewey Selmon at middle guard. Ed Simonini of Texas A&M, Greg Buttle of Penn State and Woodrow

Lowe of Alabama are the line-first players since Doak Walker (1947-49) to do it three times. Navy, Tim Fox of Ohio State and Pat Thomas of Texas

MacAfee, Bell and Johnson are the only underclassmen on the team and Lowe joins Griffin as the lone repeaters from last year's team.

The offensive backfield has and three running backs with 4,692 yards rushing and 32 touchdowns between them. Swick, a 6-foot-1, 188-pounder, led the nation in total offense with 2,706 yards, an average of 246 yards a game. He finished second in passing with 17.3 completions per game, passing for 15 touchdowns and scoring eight.

Moeller Would Like to Turn Pro

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — Navy's Chet Moeller says it is "a great honor" being named to UPI's All-America but he is unhappy that his football career may be over because of his five-year service commitment.

"I came here because I wanted a good education, security and leadership qualities, but I think it would be advantageous for the academies to let players serve parttime or in the reserves," Moeller said.

Moeller, a six-foot 185-pound roverback, made 88 tackles this season in leading Navy to its first winning season since 1967. He is the first Navy All-American since Roger Staubach threw the Middles into the 1964 Cotton Bowl.

Staubach and 1960 Heisman Trophy winner Joe Bellino are two well-known recent service academy graduates who played professional ball after their service obligations. Moeller would like to be another.

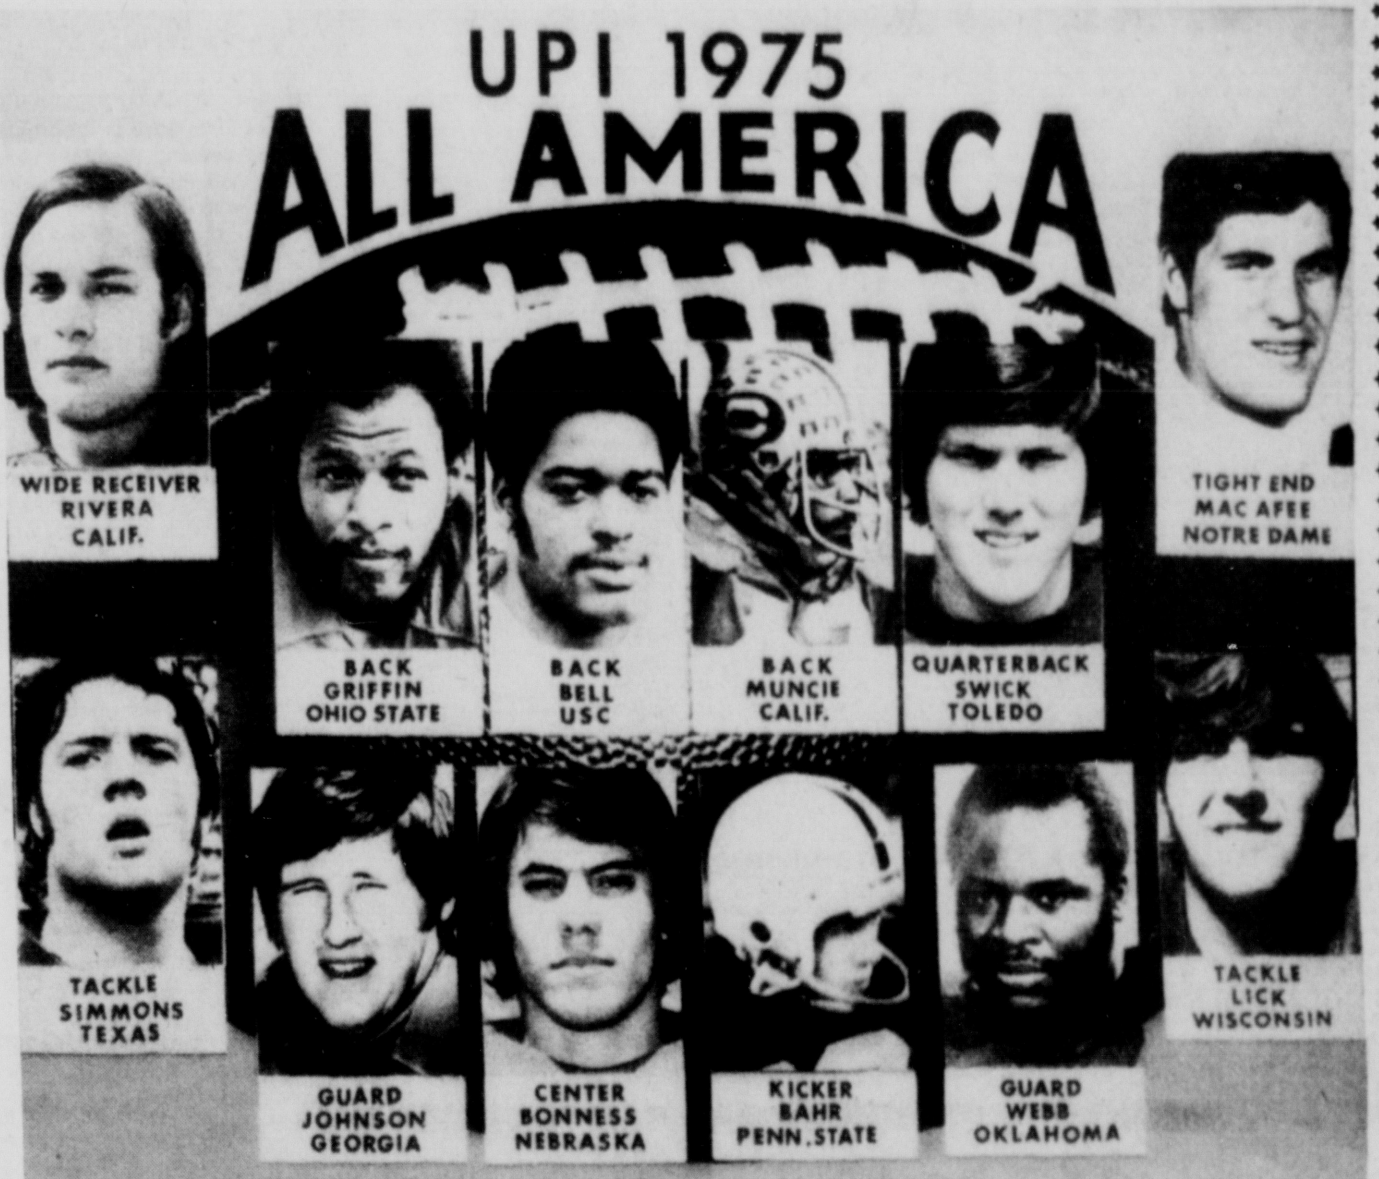

"I'm hoping they might change the rules in a couple of years," he said, but added that if he has to serve his full obligation, "I probably won't be able to play."

"Once you start playing football, there's something in football you enjoy," said the Kettering, Ohio, native.

"I just like the game and I'd like to have the chance to play pro football. I don't know whether I could but I think if you have the desire to do something, you can do anything you want," he said.

Although a pro career might be lost, Moeller still has two all-star games to go — the East-West Shrine game and the Hula Bowl.

Moeller said the All-American recognition is a "great honor," adding, "I think it's a tribute to the team. When you get an award like this you can't say it's all individual effort. It's a composite of the team and good coaching."

Love, Bulls Show Improvement

By UPI

For Bob Love, hitting 41 per cent of his field goal attempts was a marked improvement and for the struggling Chicago Bulls the marksmanship was good enough.

Love converted 12-of-29 shots and finished with 35 points Wednesday night to lead the Bulls past the Boston Celtics 109-106. Chicago has won just five games in 18 outings but two of them have been against Boston.

In the latest victory, Love hit a pair of jump shots in the final minute of play after the Celtics had tied the game at 103-103.

"I forced a lot of shots but I hit the key ones. It was one of my better games," said Love, who carried only a .366 shooting percentage into the game. "It hasn't been a good year so far."

Thus far, this has not been a good year for the Bulls, who were winning for the second time in 13 games since besting the Celtics Nov. 1. They were again without Jerry Sloan, sidelined by fluid on both knees, but got 20 points from second year guard Bobby Wilson. They also outthrust the inconsistent Celtics, who were led by Jo Jo White's 31 points and Dave Cowens' 26.

Los Angeles defeated Detroit 118-110. Philadelphia beat New Orleans 102-94. Milwaukee topped Portland 114-92 and Houston downed Seattle 107-101 in other NBA games.

In the American Basketball Association, Indiana defeated Kentucky 113-100 and Virginia beat St. Louis 114-112.

Lakers 118, Pistons 110

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 29 points and Cazzie Russell hit for 31 to lead Los Angeles to a victory that put the Lakers in first place in the Pacific Division. The win was only the third in 11 road games for the Lakers, who are 11-0 at home. Detroit's Bob Lanier was held to 19 points by Abdul-Jabbar.

76ers 102, Jazz 94

George McGinnis scored 27 points to lead a balanced attack which enabled Philadelphia to beat New Orleans and increase its Atlantic Division lead to two games. The Jazz rallied for a 67-66 lead with 1:25 left in the third period but the 76ers staged a counter-attack which gave them a 72-69 margin entering the final quarter.

Rockets 107, Sonics 101

Ron Riley and Kevin Kunnert scored key baskets in the final minutes of the third period as Houston downed Seattle. Calvin Murphy had 26 points for the Rockets.

Pacers 113, Colonels 100

Billy Keller scored 30 points, including four three-point goals, to lead Indiana to its win over Kentucky. Wilburt Jones led the Colonels with 23 points.

Squires 114, Spirits 112

Virginia beat St. Louis for the first time this season with the help of Dave Twardzik's driving layup with 46 seconds left. Ticky Burden led the Squires with 36 points and Fred Lewis had 31 for St. Louis.

Non-Contact Sport

A Couple of Hockey 'Firsts' in KC

By United Press International

They had a couple of hockey "firsts" in Kansas City Wednesday night.

Wilf Paiement scored his first National Hockey League hat trick and the three goals provided the edge the second-year Kansas City Scouts needed to post their first-ever victory over the Montreal Canadiens 6-5.

Paiement's first goal gave the Scouts a 3-0 lead at 8:07 of the first period and he came back with almost an identical shot at 18:10 of the second period. His third goal came at 11:59 of the final period. It was the first meeting between the Canadiens this year for the Scouts, who were 0-4 against Montreal last year, their first in the NHL.

Paiement, the second player picked in the 1974 free agent draft, scored 26 goals as a rookie last season.

Elsewhere in NHL action Wednesday night, Minnesota topped Toronto 3-1, Buffalo and Washington tied 4-4, Chicago tied Pittsburgh 3-3, Vancouver mauled Detroit 9-1 and Los Angeles shaded California 3-2. In World Hockey Association games, it was Cincinnati over Cleveland 5-3 and Toronto over Calgary 4-3.

Black Hawks 3, Penguins 3

Dick Redmond's second goal of the game at 11:38 left to play earned Chicago a 3-3 tie with Pittsburgh and enabled the Black Hawks to extend their unbeaten string to 15 games. It was, however, the fifth straight tie for Chicago and the eighth in its last nine games.

Capitals 4, Sabres 4

Jerry Korab's goal at 5:53 of the final period enabled Buffalo to salvage its tie with the upstart Caps. Washington, last in the Norris Division with the worst record in the NHL, scored four second period goals, including two by Nelson Pyatt, to take a 4-3 lead over Buffalo, leader in the Adams Division.

North Stars 3, Maple Leafs 1

Bill Goldsworthy scored a pair of third period goals to lift Minnesota over the Maple Leafs. Toronto's Dave Dunn, attempting to push the puck away from the crease accidentally put Goldsworthy's first goal into the net, tying the score. Red Barrett then scored what proved to be the gamewinner at 2:03 of the final stanza.

Canucks 9, Red Wings 1

Vancouver, winless on a three-game road swing last week, returned home and bombed Detroit goalie Ed Giacomin for nine goals, including two by Dennis Ververgaert. The frustrated Wings started a brawl in the third period which resulted in game misconducts to Bob Dailey, Mike Bloom, Walt McKechnie and Phil Roberto.

Kings 3, Seals 2

Tommy Williams slapped a 60-foot shot into the net with just 86 seconds left to play to push Los Angeles over California. Williams took a pass from Mike Murphy and appeared to surprise goalie Gilles Meloche with the long shot.

WHA

Rookie Claude Larose scored his second game-winning goal of the season to lead expansionist Cincinnati over Cleveland ... Frank Mahovlich's second goal of the game at 18:57 of the third period provided the winning edge for Toronto over Calgary. Mahovlich has 14 goals this season.

Now Ilie Is Rooting for Ashe

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Ilie Nastase will be rooting for his archrival Arthur Ashe to whip Spain's Manuel Orantes today, enabling the Romanian to make a back-door entrance into the Masters Tennis Tournament semi-finals.

Nastase, often referred to as the bad boy of tennis, Wednesday beat Adriano Panatta of Italy in three sets, thereby giving the Romanian a 2-1 win record so far in the $130,000 tournament.

Orantes, who will be facing Ashe with one win and one loss, will be eliminated if he loses. Ashe, who did not play Wednesday, was assured of a spot in the semifinals even if he loses to Orantes. The American will be going into his match against Orantes also with a 2-0 record.

"I haven't missed a game yet and I'll certainly be sitting in the stands to watch the Ashe-Orantes match," said Nastase. "I think Bjorn Borg and Guillermo Vilas are in good shape to get into the semifinals but Ashe can be tough, too."

On the first day of the tournament last Sunday, Nastase and Ashe were both disqualified—the Romanian for his on-court antics and obscene gestures and Ashe for walking off the court during the hiatus.

The International Lawn Tennis Federation later reversed the decision and gave the match to Ashe.

In the first match Thursday, Sweden's Borg will face

RAUL RAMIREZ STRETCHES TO MAKE RETURN

Argentina's Vilas, both of whom have 2-0 records.

The Borg-Vilas contest was originally scheduled to be the last match of the night but referee Horst Klosterkempfer changed the order to be "fair to all players."

When asked to explain what he meant by fairness, Klosterkempfer said, "Borg and Vilas could choose who they like to play in the semifinals."

The semifinal pairings will pit the winner of each group against the runnerup of the other group.

That means if Borg and Vilas knew the outcome of the Ashe-Orantes battle, one or both could throw the game to pick his opponent. The referee emphasized that there was no insinuation that this would actually be done, but to be on the safe side the order was changed.

Harold Solomon of Silver

Spring, Md., and Raul Ramirez of Mexico, along with Italy's Adriano Panatta were all eliminated from the tournament and left for their respective home countries.

Nastase said even if he didn't make it to the semifinals, he would be staying in Sweden to help practice and train the Swedish Davis Cup team for their final against Czechoslovakia beginning Dec. 19.

Hawks Were Flying High Before Falling, 74-60

NORTH ADAMS, Mass.—A small New Paltz State team battled a towering North Adams State quintet on even terms for over three quarters of their basketball meeting here Wednesday night, but a short cold stretch spelled doom for the Hawks as they dropped a 74-60 decision.

"It was the finest effort a New Paltz team has put out in the three years I've been coach," said New Paltz mentor Joe Donovan.

New Paltz led most of the first half, despite going off the floor at halftime down by two points, 36-34. As late as eight minutes into the second half, the game was tied at 48-48.

It was then that New Paltz hit an ice cold streak during which Donovan's squad couldn't find the range and North Adams came through with 12 unanswered points.

Behind 60-48, New Paltz could never make up the deficit.

What pleased Donovan was the way his team was able to stand up to a North Adams forward line that measured 6-7, 6-6, and 6-5. Hawks Ron Domanski and Ron Monroe rimmed 16 points and Monroe bucketed 13.

Bobby Irish sparked the New Paltz attack with a game-high 19 points. Domanski rimmed 16 points and Monroe bucketed 13.

North Adams got 17 points from Monte Flynn, 14 from

Tom Sullivan, and 13 from Mark Van Gelder.

It was the second straight loss for New Paltz, both on the road. The Hawks are home Friday and Saturday nights for their annual Jaycee Tipoff Tournament in which Manhattanville, Old Westbury, and New Rochelle will provide the opposition. Pairings haven't been set.

Quarterback Don Strock of the Miami Dolphins keeps his eyes peeled for a clear receiver during practice Tuesday. Strock, who once three weeks ago had the dubious title of second reserve quarterback, will start for Miami when it meets Buffalo Sunday. ## College Powers Breeze

By United Press International

Ever wonder why there's so few college basketball upsets prior to the Christmas tournaments?

Reason is, most top-ranked college powers—UCLA and Indiana excluded this year—are smart enough to schedule willing patsies to pad their won-lost records and provide a tuneup for the "real" season which usually begins about Dec. 26.

There were six nationally-ranked collegiate powers in action again Wednesday night and, not surprisingly, all are still comfortably unbeaten today.

Take fifth-ranked Maryland for example. The Terps, having neatly thrashed East Carolina in their season opener last week, invited DePauw—not even a university division school—down to College Park for a little one-on-one and proceeded to annihilate the outgunned Tigers 99-42. Some hospitality!

Steve Sheppard, with 17 points, led six Terrapins in double figures. Lawrence Boston had 16 rebounds along with his 16 points for Maryland.

Then there was 10th-ranked Cincinnati, which rolled to its third straight win by victimizing poor Wright State, another college division team, 118-70. The Bearcats were paced by Gary Yoder and Bob Miller, who had 23 points apiece.

Alabama similarly wasn't taking any chances either. The 14th-ranked Crimson Tide, smartly remembering that 6-10 Joe Bryant has graduated, played host to LaSalle and ripped the Explorers 78-57 behind 19 points from All America hopeful Leon Douglas.

Arizona didn't live up to its 107-point average but it didn't matter since the seventh-ranked Wildcats had the good sense to be playing at home against Idaho. Sparked by Gilbert Myles' 19 points, Arizona easily disposed of the Vandals 88-62 to go 3-0 for the season.

Sixteenth-ranked Auburn went on the road but not to South Bend, Ind., College Park, Md., Bloomington, Ind. or scary places like that. Instead, the War Eagles traveled north to Cullowhee, N.C. and had little trouble disposing of host Western Carolina 88-76. Mike Mitchell had 25 points and Eddie Johnson 24 for Auburn.

Tennessee also took a road trip but, unlike fellow nationally-rated quintets, nearly paid dearly for it. Nevertheless, the eighth-ranked Vols escaped with an 86-80 victory at Duke, largely due to the efforts of Bernard King and Mike Jackson, who combined for 38 points.

In other games Wednesday night, South Carolina, sparked by Alex English's 23 points, trounced Toledo 84-64; North Carolina State routed East Carolina 117-81 behind a combined 51 points from Kenny Carr and Glenn Sudhop; Clemson, with the help of 20 points by Derrick Johnson, topped Furman 92-86; and in the battle of the bayou, LSU led all the way in downing Tulane 79-65.

Also, Tulsa topped Oklahoma 71-66, New Mexico trampled over Los Angeles State 111-89, Miami of Ohio bested Dayton 66-55, Wake Forest put down West Virginia 93-80, Boston College stopped LeMoyne 87-72 and Mississippi mauled Minnesota 81-65.

Miller, Graham Pace U.S.

BANGKOK (UPI) — Johnny Miller and Lou Graham carded a combined 10-under-par 134 Thursday to gave the United States a four-stroke lead over 46 nations in the opening round of the 23rd World Cup golf tournament. Miller, substituting for PGA champion Jack Nicklaus, recorded the day's best round among 94 players with a 6-under 31-35-66 on the newly-built 6,906-yard par 72 Navatane Golf Club course in Bangkok's suburbs.

Graham, the 1975 U.S. open champion who is playing for the first time in the World Cup tournament, shot a four-under 33-35-68.

Argentina was in second place with Juan Cabrera firing a 67 and Jorge Soto a one-under 71 for a 138 total.

Veteran Ben Arda fired a 67 for the Philippines which tied Taiwan for third place with a 140. Eleuterio Nival cost the team a higher placing when he took a costly double bogey seven on the par five fourth hole for a 73.

Hsieh Min-nan of Taiwan, winner of the individual event in the 1972 World Cup tournament in Melbourne, Australia, when Taiwan also took the team event, shot a four-under-par 68 and team-mate Kuo Chie-hsiung a par 72.

Thailand was alone in fifth place as veteran Sukree On-sham shot a 69 and teammate Adul Thabvibul birdied the final hole for a 73 and a 142 total.

Ireland and South Korea shared sixth place at 143 followed by Japan and Australia in a tie for eighth place with a par 144.

Miller fired five birdies for a five-under-par 31 on the front nine. He birdied the 12th and 18th, but bogeyed the 15th for a 35 on the back nine.

Miller chipped a 15-yard shot on the 559-yard par-five 18th hole and missed an eagle when the ball hit the cup and failed to drop in.

"I had a difficult time because of the heat," Miller said. "I was a bit dizzy when I three-putted for a bogey on the 15th. I still don't have confidence in my putting. I'm hitting the ball past the holes, necessitating return putts. Whereas my partner, Lou, is putting splendidly, letting the ball die at the pin."

"We made a fine start with a 10-under-par. We are playing conservatively, trying not to make mistakes."

Graham, who shot a nine-under-par 63 Wednesday to win the pro-am individual competition, said: "I played sloppily today compared to yesterday. I did not hit the ball squarely, but I am satisfied with my 68."

Morerod Takes Giant Slalom

VAL d'ISERE, France (UPI) — Lise Marie Morerod of Switzerland won the World Cup Giant Slalom ski race today, more than one second ahead of runnerup Rosi Mittermaier of West Germany.

Monika Kaserer of Austria took third place. Fourth came Lindy Cochran of the United States and Fabienne Serrat of France was fifth.

Morerod, top favorite for the Giant and Special Slalom events at the Innsbruck Olympics in February, took 1:16.15 minutes to complete the course which ran 1.150 meters with a vertical drop of 320 meters and 45 gates.

Skiing with ease and perfection, the Swiss girl was 1.22 seconds faster than Mittermaier, who clocked 1:17.37.

The event was the second of the new World Cup season. On Wednesday the girls raced a downhill won by Switzerland's Bernadette Zurbriggen.

"Boubou" Morerod's victory magnified the fact that the Swiss girls have a powerful team, one which appears to be taking over from Austrian girls who dominated the ski scene for several years.

"Our team morale has never been better," the 19-year-old Swiss racer said after her victory.

"I knew I was skiing well today and things went perfectly. But I didn't expect to win by more than one second. I don't know if I want to go for the Olympics or the World Cup this year. But if I'm still in form then I'll go for gold in Innsbruck."

Mittermaier, 25 years old and one of the steadiest girl ski racers for the past eight years, proved she is still a force on the slopes, while Kaserer was the only Austrian girl in the top ten.

Cochran, an 18-year-old American from Richmond, Vt., had her best showing in a World Cup event with her fourth place time of 1:17.55. She kept the stars and stripes flying after the star of the U.S. girls' team, Cindy Nelson, Lutsen, Minn., had a poor run and failed to place in the first 20.

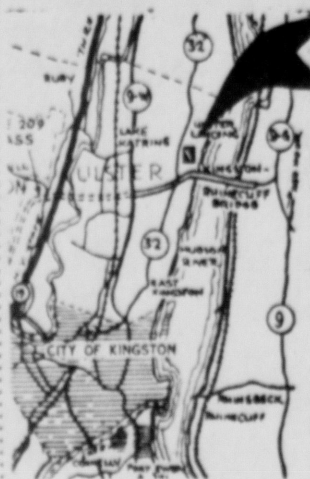

Rosi Mittermaier's younger sister, Evi, 23, turned the race into something of a family celebration by starting in 50th position and clocking the sixth fastest time.

After poor weather, the sun came out for the giant slalom and conditions were ideal. The snow was hard-packed powder which began breaking up in the second half of the race when the sun softened the track.

The race results gave West Germany and Austria two placings each in the top 10, with one each going to Switzerland, Italy, United States, France, Canada and Iran.

Day in the Life of a Senator

Benjamin Schecter (second left), administrative assistant to State Senator Edwyn E. Mason, reviewed the kind of schedule necessary in Albany before the Saugerties Republican Club. Commented Schecter, "A typical senator thinks in terms of workable solution and feasible answers." With him are (l-r) Gene Davis, Schecter, county legislator-elect Alice Tipp, and town supervisor-elect Frank Greco.

UCCC Students Are Certified

STONE RIDGE

Thirteen students in the community service assistant program at Ulster County Community College have completed a training course conducted by Professor Rober Kurland and been certified as administrators for emergency mass shelters.

Barry M. Bashkoff of the Eastern New York State Division of the American Red Cross was also an instructor for the course.

The students include Eileen Ballard, Woodstock; Abby Cohen, Kerhonkson; Susan Georghegan, Wallkill; Brian Hampshire, Kingston; Susan Kuhn, Kingston; Kathie Leete, Stone Ridge; Lloyd

Zweben, Kingston; Maryett Maynard, Port Ewen; Patricia Pines, Wallkill; Beverly Rivers, Wawarsing; Kim Shultz, Accord; Mary Alice Waples, Kingston; and James Zduczyk, Lake Katrine.

These students will be part of the emergency social services of the Ulster County Chapter, American National Red Cross, and are now available for volunteer service in case of a natural disaster in this area.

In addition to these students, 14 other Red Cross volunteers from Ulster, Dutchess and Sullivan Counties attended the workshop held last month at the college.

Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101st) is presented with the Environmental Planning Lobby 1975 Legislative Award by EPL representative Marlyn BuBois at their Annual Legislative Awards Dinner in Canandaigua. The inscription on the back of the award reads: "For his dedication to the sound future of the Catskill Region, his understanding of the need for protection and controlled development of this wonderful resource, his determined attempts to achieve a compromise on the issue, and his continuing efforts to see that such legislation will be successful in the future." It was noted at the awards dinner that this is the first time such an award has gone to a freshman Assemblyman. Gov Carey was also honored.

Cancer A Family Problem

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Cancer is more likely to strike persons whose families have cancer history, especially if a large number of relatives have the disease, a Nebraska study indicates.

The danger of cancer in some families is so great that doctors have recommended breast and ovary removal in healthy women as a preventive measure.

Because of growing evidence showing family concentrations of malignancies, Dr. Henry T. Lynch, professor of preventive medicine at Creighton University in Omaha, said physicians should investigate the medical histories of families to spot persons with abnormal risks of cancer.

Lynch, speaking Wednesday at a national conference on genetics and cancer, urged creation of regional registries of cancer prone families to help doctors identify patients as risks so cancer can be detected early when treatment is most effective.

He said a study of 5,000 consecutive persons checked by a mobile cancer detection unit in Nebraska showed cancer occurred in 9.8 per cent of the people when one of their parents, brothers or sisters had cancer.

In families with two immediate relatives with cancer, the cancer risk went up to 16.3 per cent. It jumped to 22 per cent — more than one in five — for persons with three or more cancer victims among their close relatives.

Lynch all family cancer may not be inherited. He said cancer in some families may be the result of environmental factors or perhaps a combination of heredity and the environment.

It is known from other research that there is roughly a threefold increased risk for specific cancers to close relatives of a person who had cancers of the breast, stomach, colon, uterus, prostate gland and lung along with leukemia and cancer of the lymph system.

Lynch said a healthy 19-year-old girl whose family had a high cancer incidence was advised to have her breasts removed because of the danger she would develop the disease.

Seeking Birthday Cake A Mobster Finds Death

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ned C. Bakes, a veteran Chicago underworld figure and one-time confidant in the empire of the infamous Al Capone, left his suburban home Saturday to buy a birthday cake for a family party. He ended up dead.

Bakes was found Wednesday shot once in the head and stuffed in the trunk of his car. His daughter discovered the car in an unincorporated area of Addison Township and phoned police.

She told officers she had a premonition the car was in the area but police speculated the killers called the family to tell them of the car's location.

"It's kind of obvious to all of us that they (the mob) wanted everybody to know what happened and why," said Sgt. Anthony Heying of the DuPage County sheriff's office.

Addison detective Angelo Deneffro said the daughter phoned police when she found the parked car and officers went to the scene.

"The trunk was opened. The body of a big man with white hair, balding on top and matching Bakes' description, was found lying face down in the trunk with a bullet hole in the top of his head," he said.

Bakes had been well known to police as a suspected member of the Chicago underworld since the heyday of the Al Capone mob in the Roaring 20s and early 30s.

He was regarded a member of the Capone gang's inner sanctum, reputedly serving as messenger boy to Paul "The Waiter" Ricca, a chief lieutenant to Capone and an eventual successor to Capone's crime empire.

Police said Bates delivered orders from Ricca and other top gang members to lower echelon hoods.

Authorities also said in the 40s, when Ricca ascended to the Chicago underworld throne following Capone's death, Bakes was the "mystery man" who delivered hundreds of thousands of dollars in back taxes owed by Ricca and other syndicate figures, including Louis Campagnia, Charles Gioe, Phillip d'Andria.

All four were in prison at the time on charges of extortion in connection with an attempt to take over the movie industry in Chicago.

Sect Unwelcome in Illinois

DALLAS (UPI) — The Hare Krishna, a religious sect whose members wear pig tails, white robes and chant to music, say they are unwelcome in a rural Illinois town and have dropped plans to move their school to the Christian community.

The group wanted to buy a $450,000 defunct military academy building in Aledo, Ill., for their 115-student school and 50-member staff. But many of the 3,325 residents of the northwestern Illinois town opposed their settlement — and said so.

Bill Rubins, local business manager of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness, said the group likely will remain in Texas.

"The Roosevelt Military Academy definitely suited our needs, but the townspeople obviously did not want us there," Rubins said. "The prevailing attitude was such that we were concerned about the welfare of the children should we move there."

Mrs. Glenn Stancliff led the Aledo drive to discourage the Krishnas. She said the community was Christian, but had no room for the sect or its children.

"Toleration?" she said. "Our country was found on that, but remember, everyone that came to our country accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as their savior. We're trying to protect our own (religion) is what we are trying to do."

Leaders of the sect said their school would have little effect on the life of the community.

Last week a poll conducted by the Rock Island Argus newspaper indicated 1,137 Aledo residents opposed selling the academy to the Krishnas and 103 favored the sale.

Harold Stutsman, president of the academy board of trustees, said the Krishna leader Jagadisha called him Monday to withdraw the bid.

"He said it was because of the attitude of the people," Stutsman said. "He felt because of the poll that was taken, the school could not coexist, not on a friendly basis with the town of Aledo."

"I'm not surprised," said Stutsman. "Really, it had to be a two-way thing."

The Krishnas had decided to move their Dallas school because of lack of space in the current facility — a former protestant denomination church — and because the Texas Welfare Department was requiring renovations which would cost $40,000.

Biggest Worry Is Survival

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — The Communist party's indecision in Portugal's abortive military rebellion has given it one of its worst defeats in three decades. It is being castigated by both the far left and the right as a "traitor" to the revolution.

"The party's biggest worry now is a simple question of survival," one Socialist said. "This is its worst crisis since the early forties when it was in total disarray."

His comment came amid newspaper speculation about rising tension within the party's central committee and a frontal attack against the party by the Socialists.

The crux of the Communist dilemma was its failure to take a clear stance when disgruntled paratroops occupied five major air bases in an ill-organized far left attempt to overthrow the government last week. The uprising, which faded after two days, was led by the Communists' main military supporters.

In the early hours, civilian elements of the party threw their weight behind the military rebels, but retreated quickly when it became apparent that the soldiers had overestimated their strength.

This sudden change in policy caught the extreme left and the soldiers flatfooted, leaving them to catch the full brunt of the government's counter offensive and go to jail. They blamed the Communists for the defeat. By contrast, the other side blamed the party for luring the extremists into staging the uprising.

"The Communist party has grave responsibilities in the events of the Nov. 25 coup," Socialist leader Mario Soares said.

Soares, who has never been slow in exploiting a political advantage, acknowledged the Communists' official denial of any involvement in the revolt. But he said they had to go a step further and "solemnly" condemn the rebels as the price for retaining their single seat in the Socialist-dominated cabinet.

He had an easy target for his attack. For since the collapse of the rebellion, the Communists have shown every sign of being a psychologically shattered party. They have watched their main military supporters being jailed and their infrastructure in the mass media purged without a murmur.

The Communists faced an equal assault from the shattered far left splinter parties. They accused the party of compromising its revolutionary credentials by failing to fully support the revolt and allowing leftist militants to be wiped out without a fight.

The Communists tried to satisfy both sides in long, tortuous editorials in the party's newspaper Avante. These said the left had received a severe defeat because of leftist "adventurists." By the same token, it warned the nonCommunist forces against trying to take advantage of this victory.

But as the jails filled with the party's military supporters and the newsmen who followed its dictates faced unemployment, nobody took the party very seriously.

Soares tried to sum up this reality in an interview with the newspaper Jornal novo.

"The Communists have lost the (April 25 national) elections, the people and the army," he said.

There was not much left in the party's armory except the labor unions, and its military forces were facing hammer blows from both the far left and the Socialists in this sector. An extreme leftist gave an indication of this retreat when he described the Communist as being "ultrapassado." This is the Portuguese word for superseded.

Sweet Sixteen . . . And A Volunteer

FLAGLER BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — She is sweet 16, a part-time model and gymnast, and 102 pounds of fire-fighting female.

If Renee Zamba is not the only female volunteer fire-fighter — there are several around the country — she must be the youngest and the most petite.

But folks around Flagler County don't put much stock in the ages of their public servants. Just 10 miles up the road in the Town of Bunnell, the police chief is Donnie Brock, age 19, who would be too young to buy bullets if he were not in uniform.

So Renee, a junior at Flagler Palm Coast High School, has readily accepted a month ago when she asked to join the 26 men on the Flagler Beach Volunteer Fire Department.

"I was voted on by the other members of the department," said Renee, a pretty brunette. "They decided whether they thought I could do the job or not."

Ast. Fire Chief Robert Creal said the only problem so far has been finding fire-fighting gear to fit Renee's tiny figure. On weekends she models teen fashions for a Daytona Beach department store.

Creal said "she seems to be

working out fine" and added Renee has had more first aid training, including cardiopulmonary resuscitation, than most of the men on the force.

"I don't get any special attention," Renee said.

A former member of the school's gymnastics team and part-time employee at nearby Marineland — where her parents also work — Renee said the idea of fighting fires "fascinated me."

"I just got interested in it and said I'm going to do it," she said. "Now that I'm in it, I'm really having a great time. I've learned a lot."

Local Cancer Unit Honored

Dr. Harri H. Janssen (L), president of the Ulster County Unit, American Cancer Society, Norman Bohan, chairman of the Public Education Committee, and Kathleen Shurter, R.N., sub-committee chairperson for schools and colleges, display the plaque awarded to the Ulster County Unit by the New York State Division of the American Cancer Society for "Habits of Health for the High School Girl and the Women in her Life," called the newest and most innovative public education program in 1974-75. (Freeman photo)

Certificate for Laboratory

KINGSTON The City of Kingston Laboratory has been awarded a certificate of accreditation by the College of American Pathologists, a medical specialty organization of more than 6,500 pathologists.

Dr. Dennis B. Dorsey, CAP president, said the laboratory had received its certification from the CAP Commission on Inspection and Accreditation after having successfully met the college's standards for laboratory performance, determined by an intensive, on-site inspection by a volunteer pathologist-inspector from the college. An on-site inspection is carried out every two years, with an interim self-inspection and constant monitoring of the laboratory's test results.

"This accreditation reflects credit to the institution and assures patients and physicians of the continuing accuracy and precision of the laboratory's services," Dr. Dorsey said.

The inspection and accreditation program of the college is recognized as one of the most outstanding medical peer evaluation systems in the world, he said. Its goal is to promote the best possible laboratory performance via a program which examines and evaluates all phases of a laboratory's operation.

The Kingston laboratory is under the direction of Dr. Herbert Derman.

Library Sale Slated

WOODSTOCK The Woodstock Library will hold its annual book and apron sale on Saturday, Dec. 6.

All proceeds will go to benefit the Kingston Children's Library to help with re-establishing their services to children. The Woodstock Library was the first to offer aid after the recent fire that destroyed the Kingston Children's Library.

Early-bird collectors will find an interesting but limited number of esoterica, many occult, waiting for them. Practically new books as well as mint copies received in generous donations and a large group of artistic, attractive aprons offer great values for Christmas giving.

Library officials noted that the sale is a fine opportunity to discover tremendous bargains while helping a most worthy cause.

Society Awarded Plaque

KINGSTON The Ulster County Unit of the American Cancer Society recently was awarded a plaque for "the newest and most innovative public education program in 1974-75."

The plaque was presented at the recent annual meeting of the New York State Division of the American Cancer Society in Syracuse.

This unique countywide continuing education effort was accomplished through the volunteer work of the Public Education Committee of the Ulster County Unit, local physicians and nurses, and the countywide school administrators and faculties. It reached more than 5,000 high school girls and 2,500 female school personnel and relatives.

In cooperation with the administration and faculties of all county high schools, the local unit conducted three-day programs for the girls, individually teaching breast self-examination as a health habit and education on the health habit of the pap smear.

Included in these programs were discussions with local physicians and nurses. Reinforcing the need for health habits for high school girls, identical programs were conducted for the women in her life, the female school personnel and relatives.

The American Cancer Society encourages learning good health habits in the teen years as an important step forward in the cure for cancer through early detection and prompt treatment. Through knowledge of the physical self, the slightest change can be evident, making early detection more of a reality.

Need, Not Nostalgia, Brought Back Wood-Burner

ATLANTA (UPI) — Soaring utility bills have brought back a relic from the American past — the wood-burning stove which can cut heating costs significantly.

Pot-bellied cast iron stoves and other models that were America's favorites many years ago are rolling off the assembly line again and selling as fast as they can be shipped.

Riding the crest of the boom is the Atlanta Stove Works, headquartered in an old red-brick building in a section of Atlanta little changed since the turn of the century. The stove works began operations in 1889 and has been owned by the same Atlanta family since the 1890s — "over 85 years of knowing how," as the company's motto puts it.

"It's fantastic what's happened not only here but nationwide," says sales manager Murray Frizzelle. "The energy crisis has caused this thing. Our sales have more than doubled in three years. We expect another increase next year."

At one time, the Atlanta Stove Works was two years behind on orders for its wood-burning stoves. With expansion and automation, it has caught up and now can ship out an order about two weeks after it is received.

The exception is its four-hole wood cook stove, which comes equipped with an oven and a warmer. This stove that graced the kitchens of many American homes in the 1800s is still on allocation; that is, dealers can get only a limited number. In style and design it is much the same as it was 100 years ago.

Prices range from about $100 for the cheapest "two-eye burner" up to $450 for a circulating stove with thermostat. The cooking range sells for about $415.

The company has its own foundry, located in Birmingham, Ala., and has warehouses in Georgia, Alabama, Texas, Maryland, Missouri, Indiana, Iowa, California, and Oregon. It has 15,000 to 20,000 retail outlets across the country.

Frizzelle says companies that make wood and coal burning stoves have dwindled over the years. "I doubt if there's over a dozen or 15 now, nationwide," he said. "But I can remember when there were 50 or 60."

Atlanta Stove Works is probably one of the top three manufacturers of coal and burners nationally, Frizzelle said. But he declined to give any information on dollar volume or the number of stoves sold.

The wood and coal burners are sold mostly to rural customers, he said, with urban householders buying them as backups to their oil or electric heating systems, and to cut utility bills.

"A woman called me from Hixson, Tenn., the other day," Frizzelle said. "She told me she had one of our thermostatically controlled automatic wood burners. They were heating their $50,000 house with it and shutting off the furnace."

The stoves with thermostats, he said, can be fired up at the beginning of the winter season and kept going non-stop through the cold weather, holding their fire overnight with dampers closed.

Frizzelle says it's best to burn hardwood, such as hickory, red oak, beech and hard maple. Hickory furnishes 30.6 million BTUs per air-dry cord, equivalent to 218 gallons of No. 2 heating oil. Red oak supplies 27.3 million BTUs, equal to 195 gallons of heating oil, with beech and maple only slightly less productive in heating units, he said.

He said the fastest-growing sales territory is above the Mason-Dixon Line, although North Carolina currently is No. 1 in sales. Frizzelle listed Massachusetts as second in sales, followed by Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Georgia, Maine, Wisconsin, Virginia, California, and Ohio.

"If the energy crisis continues, this could last for several years," Frizzelle said.

Counter 'Threat' To Need For Male

BOSTON (UPI) — Claiming a rearing, red-maned, white stallion as their symbol, members of MS say they want sperm banks eliminated because they threaten manhood.

MS — in this case — stands for Male Supremacy. About 30 persons demonstrated outside the Massachusetts General Hospital sperm bank this week, calling for male supremacy and elimination of the depositories.

"There are a group of radical women who want to control everything and eliminate men," said Dick Miano, 40, who organized the group.

"If they got control of sperm banks, they could do both," he said.

"Hey, don't you support male supremacy?" Charlie Perrotta yelled at passersby as he marched in the cold outside the sperm bank.

"Yeah. Right on," called back construction workers, whistling and clapping. "Those broads gotta be put in their place."

Hanging leaflets to auto drivers, the demonstrators carried signs reading, "Reunite the Family" and "Be Proud You Were Born a Man."

"I don't want a test tube, I want a husband," said Lee Antinarelli, 27, a divorcee handing out application blanks which urged sympathizers to join the group. "A lot of women today aren't willing to take care of their men."

Dr. Charles Huggins, head of the sperm bank, told the group the bank is not commercial and is used only by consenting husbands and wives.

Miano said he is primarily against commercial sperm banks. He added, "If a man is sterile, the couple should adopt."

His wife, Sandra, who admits she reads the feminist MS Magazine — "but only to keep up" — supports her husband's cause. She said "some women not only want to dominate men, they want to eliminate them."

"Women are getting nut of hand," added Perrotta, who said he is in the process of getting divorced. "They don't want to do housework anymore. I don't mind women having jobs, but, we (men) should have the final say."

"A man should support a woman financially and a woman should provide him with a good home," Lee Antinarelli said. Asked why the roles couldn't be reversed, she replied: "Why, it wouldn't be fair for him to stay at home."

An Object Lesson

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Corrections officials thought it was a terrific idea — put 32 prison guard trainees in the lockup for a few days.

By the time they were freed Tuesday, "the cadets realized how much power an officer has and how officers can really aggravate an inmate by little things," Middlesex County Sheriff John Buckley said.

The students began their standard eight-week course Sunday at the state correction training school at Framingham. They were told they were going on a "field trip," then bused to Buckley's new jail, which won't open until spring.

"They thought they were going to be here a couple of hours and they couldn't really believe it when we took their

LLOYD LUMBER LEADS THE 1975 POCKETBOOK REVOLT TODAY

HOME IMPROVEMENT 1775-1975

THE SPIRIT OF 1775 was a true American Spirit. It was a dollars-and-cents revolt against an unfair economic situation. People were fed up with The Stamp Act, The Tea Act, and all the unnecessarily high prices.

So they did something about it!

That was the true beginning of the American Revolution. Later the intellectuals, the philosophers and the soldiers got into the act. The Revolution of 1776 really began as a Pocketbook Revolt in 1775.

Lloyd Lumber salutes the spirit of '75 and it appears that history is repeating itself. Today, stamps are more expensive than ever, tea and other food items are at an all-time high, and people are again doing something about it. They're being more demanding in the products they buy and the prices they pay.

Lloyd Lumber is with you! At Lloyds we don't sell stamps and we don't sell tea bags. But what we do sell are nearly 10,000 products that people need for home building and home improvement. We CAN and HAVE done something about them. Look through this big 16 page flyer... you'll find the SPIRIT OF '75 in the prices.

He's the Coldest Man Alive

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Warren S. Churchill is known around these parts as the coldest man alive.

There are few persons, if any, who have been as cold as the bearded, 60-year-old biologist and lived to tell about it.

On a chilly, blustery day last April, Churchill and two younger scientists were in a small boat on Lake Wingra conducting a fish survey. The boat was swamped and they plunged into 41-degree water.

"There was that terrible shock when I first went in," Churchill recalled this week. "But I don't remember it being so cold. It was cold, though, and it seemed like forever."

They held to their flat-bottomed boat for an hour and a half before being rescued.

When reached by paramedics, Churchill's color was blue, his heartbeat was faint and he was not breathing. His blood pressure was zero and his body temperature dropped to 65 degrees, more than 33 degrees below normal body temperature of 98.6.

He started to breathe when given oxygen. But by the time he reached the hospital, his body temperature was down to 61 degrees. It is believed to be as cold as anyone ever has been and survived without ill effects.

The biologist was placed between two special blankets insulated with fluid running through tiny tubes. According to Dr. Marvin Birnbaum, who treated Churchill, it was like being embraced by large hot water bottles.

His shivering became so intense it interfered with his breathing and strained his heart. Churchill was injected with curare — a paralyzing drug — and was kept breathing artificially.

Churchill made it, but he was so muscle sore from shivering he felt pain for several months during recovery. And he worried about possible brain damage. To assure himself, he did math problems in his head in the hospital.

Rubber rain gear and life jackets saved the three biologists. They did not lose body heat as quickly as they would have in normal winter clothing. The body temperatures of the other two men dropped to 91 and 94 degrees.

According to a Red Cross manual, an average person fully clothed could last less than an hour in 41-degree water.

Churchill recalls one of the other survivors "admitted he once liked to take cold showers."

"But not any more. He said they just aren't the same."

Food Co-Ops A National Trend

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — If you want to eat better—but can't afford it—consider joining a food buying cooperative.

The cooperatives allow members to buy fresh fruit and vegetables directly from farmers at reduced prices.

Experts estimate there are about 3,000 food buying clubs scattered around the country and the idea appears to be catching on.

"I think there is a great future of food producer cooperatives in the nation," says Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary James A. McHale.

"Right now, we have a situation where farmers cannot afford to stay in business," he said. "They are getting less of the consumer dollar each year. We are losing 2,000 farmers a week in the nation."

The secretary said farmers in the Harrisburg area sell about $18,000 worth of food a week to consumers in open market places.

"They are quality products and also cost less," he said.

"We are gathering information on food co-ops," said McHale, himself a farmer. "We hope within the next 30 days to move meat and farm products into co-ops in Philadelphia."

McHale endorsed a "two-price food system."

"If the housewife wants to buy an apple pre-packed, she has to pay for it," he explained. "She can get that in a supermarket. But if she wants to buy the same apple from farmers, without the package, she could get it cheaper."

"We ought to provide a quality product in quantity to everybody," he said. "The trouble is we have no competition in the food industry. They are all controlled by four or five corporations. Farmers cannot afford to produce and the consumer cannot afford to buy."

Agricultural economist James S. Toothman said by setting up co-ops, "consumers can pool their food purchasing power, buying quantity from wholesale sources and share. In fact, they are performing their own retailing services."

Toothman, who works for Pennsylvania State University at University park, said a few small slaughter houses in Pennsylvania recently opened retail stores at their plants to sell meat in quantity.

Two Bungling Bandits Botch Paris Bank Job

PARIS (UPI) — Two bungling bandits who couldn't even drive their own getaway car were shot by police today when they got stuck in a traffic jam minutes after fleeing a bank where they held 30 hostages in exchange for a $2.2 million ransom.

Police killed one of the robbers, freed their two female captives and recovered the money in a shootout near the crowded Champs Elysees. The other bandit was wounded in a hail of gunfire.

The robbers' flight came to an end less than two miles and three minutes from the Credit Lyonnais bank, where they held 30 employees and customers at gunpoint for 13 hours Wednesday.

From the outset, the bandits had nothing but trouble.

They first tried to hold up a bank in the Clichy district, but were thwarted when a clerk pressed the alarm.

The pair fled to the Credit Lyonnais Bank near the Eiffel Tower where by chance they encountered a squad of Brink's delivery men who opened fire. A brief gunbattle ensued and a passerby outside was wounded.

After warning they would begin executing the hostages one-by-one, the bandits fired some 20 shots inside the building to back up their demands for a car and the ransom. None of the captives — 15 employees and 15 customers — was injured.

Police supplied a Fiat getaway car and the money but the two women taken along as hostages said the robbers didn't know how to drive the Italian automobile.

"One of them even asked me how to shift gears," one woman said.

The end came when the Fiat lurched into a traffic jam just off the Champs Elysees and rammed a taxi.

The bandits opened fire on several cars of pursuing police, and in a brief but wild gunbattle the gunman driving the car was killed and his companion seriously wounded.

When police opened the rear door of the sedan, the injured man sat slouched on the blood-soaked seat still gripping his submachine gun.

Your Astrograph

For Friday, Dec. 5, 1975
ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's good to be optimistic, but today you overdo it a bit and stamp "Mission Accomplished" on projects just begun.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful today about telling little white lies. You'll have to fib again to cover your tracks. Things will balloon out of all proportion.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If at all possible, try not to advise friends regarding their financial affairs today. It could complicate matters.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A strong opinion you have probably will not be too popular today. It may only serve to turn others off.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you feel a little sluggish today, it's because you've been neglecting to exercise. A brisk walk could help.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Overindulgence is the main temptation you have to guard against today. Keep the old waistline in mind.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't spring any uninvited guests on your spouse today. The last thing that's desired is to entertain a houseful of people.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's better to talk face-to-face with someone you've hired for a special job. You want to be sure that they understand — to the letter.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't pamper your yen to be extravagant. Back away from anything that even appears to be of an expensive nature today.

HIS HOUSE: (Q.) My parents make me so mad when they refuse to accept some of the things I do, mainly concerning boys. They live in constant fear that I'm going to get myself into trouble.
You see, even though I am not boy crazy I really fell for Shawn. He seemed to like me too, but he quit coming over. The only way I can see him is to go to his house. To do this I have to lie to my parents. If I tell them the truth I'll be punished. What should I do? — 16 in Massachusetts
(A.) I, too, fear that you are going to get into trouble if you continue to chase after Shawn, or any boy. Going to a boy's house without the knowledge and approval of your parents and his parents is a very effective way to get into trouble. Stop it.

OWN PHONE: (Q.) I am an average 12-year-old girl. I do not date yet and must be home early every day. I understand why these rules are necessary. It is because of my age.
But there is something else about my age. I want my own private telephone. My father says we could pay for it but he thinks I am too young. We have talked about it a lot and he finally said your word on it would be good enough for him.
What do you say? — Daughter in Wisconsin
(A.) I agree with your father that at your age you do not really need a private phone. I would not object to an extension phone or a phone jack in your room so that you could use the family phone in your room for special conversations.
You and your father are smart to discuss your problems freely and frankly. Keep it up.

Proper timing would make it impossible for either one to stop spades. He cashed the two top diamonds and clubs and ran off hearts. On the last heart lead, East had to chuck a spade to keep a high club. Then Jim discarded his last club. It had done its work. West also had to go down to two spades in order to keep dummy's deuce of diamonds from being a winner and Jim had three spade tricks and his top score.

Discuss Fire Safety

Edward Eaton (L), fire safety specialist from Cornell University, talks with Wesley Clark, fire coordinator for the Ulster County Volunteer Fire Department, at a recent fire safety meeting. The Ulster County 4-H and many of the local volunteer fire departments are cooperating in bringing fire safety programs to county elementary schools. Schools interested in the program should contact their local volunteer fire department or the Ulster County 4-H.

Library Report Due by Dec. 12

STONE RIDGE The board of trustees of Ulster County Community College and the community college committee of the County Legislature at a special meeting reviewed a report by George Droste, a consulting engineer, evaluating the structural problem of the College Library on the Stone Ridge campus.

This second opinion was called for at a recent board of trustees meeting.

Droste is a member of the faculty at RPI in Troy and also a member of the firm of Cadman, Droste and Thomas. He will submit a written report containing recommendations to the Board of Trustees no later than Dec. 12. This information will also be shared with members of the community college committee of the County Legislature.

President Robert T. Brown indicated that both engineering studies concluded that there is a structural problem with the library and that the board of trustees will keep the building closed as a precautionary measure.

Plans are being developed

Special Courses Slated

STONE RIDGE Ulster County Community College (UCCC) will offer 27 credit courses in Winterlude 1976 running the entire month of January.

A Winterlude brochure has been printed listing the courses and is available at the office for Continuing Education in the George Clinton Administration Building on the Stone Ridge campus.

Among the 27 courses being offered are four being offered abroad and two evening courses.

Winterlude is a mini-semester which offers educational opportunities for students by enabling them to accelerate their college programs or to lighten the number of courses they will have to take in a regular semester.

A student usually takes only one course during Winterlude and thus can concentrate on it with no other courses to worry about. For this reason, students often do better work and learn more in a course taken at this time.

Registration for the courses offered on the UCCC campus will be held on Jan. 2, in the Hardenburgh Building. The hours are 10 a.m. to noon and 6:30 to 7 p.m. Classes for most courses will begin on Jan. 5.

Meeting Site Is Changed

Tonight's 8 p.m. meeting of the Kingston Board of Education has been moved to George Washington School on Wall Street to accommodate the large crowd expected to discuss state-recommended shifts in pupils and school functions to help relieve overcrowding at Kingston High School.

The meeting originally was scheduled to be held in the Crown Street Administrative Center board room, the usual meeting place.

Although it is not on the regular agenda, the proposed state plan is expected to be a hot topic. It has attracted considerable public attention since it was announced in the Sunday Freeman.

Patricia J. Thayer, president of the Edson Parents Organization, in a letter to members expressed concern over the plan, which would convert Edson into a high school or junior high school. She urged members to attend Thursday night's meeting.

Following the period set aside for communications, petitions and hearings, the board will hear a report from the Personnel Committee chaired by W. James Penrose, which will consider retirements, leaves of absence, appointments, resignations, changes in status and other matters for both professional and Civil Service personnel of the district.

The Business Management Committee, headed by Fred Hofbauer, will present the budget statement, statement of vouchers paid, the treasurer's report and the school lunch and milk program report for October and will announce the award of a grocery bid for the district's school lunch program.

Other matters to be presented by the committee include resolutions governing tuition for non-residents, tuition for health services, a transfer of funds from the general fund to the site acquisition fund (Sabino property), tax refunds and adjustments, and extension of the urban renewal contract.

Other reports will come from the Communications Committee, chaired by Ronald Meyer; the Student Services Committee, headed by Mrs. Doris Mulvin; and the Building Committee under Mrs. Evelyn Corsones.

County Needs State's Sales Tax OK

By Jon Powers

KINGSTON

Despite some emphatic objections by taxpayers at Monday's budget hearing, there still appears to be substantial bi-partisan support in the Ulster County Legislature for a one per cent increase in the county sales tax.

Sentiment in the state legislature, however, may be somewhat less than lukewarm. Without state approval, the county can't increase the sales tax.

County Legislator Louis M. Klein (D-Dist. 6), who first floated the sales tax increase idea last week, said contacts have been made with Ulster County's four representatives in the state legislature, but that county officials haven't yet received any concrete indications as to how such a proposal would be received in Albany.

Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101st Dist.) said Wednesday that it is "hard to say what the climate is for a sales tax increase," but he did point out that a similar sales tax proposal for New York City was recently rejected by the legislature. On top of that, the state is talking of adopting new state-wide taxes of its own, possibly early next year.

"If the county really wants the increase, if it is a better alternative than a large property tax increase, and if the budget increases are really unavoidable, then I would certainly try to get it passed," said Hinchey, "although it would be against a background of the legislature's recent defeat of a similar proposal for New York City."

The combined state and county sales tax is Ulster County now stands at five per cent; the figure for the City of Kingston, which has a two per cent sales tax of its own, is seven per cent.

A one per cent increase in the county sales tax would probably generate at least $4.2 million in additional revenues, an amount that could go a long way toward reducing a projected 58 per cent property tax increase should the county's tentative $58.5 million budget be approved without change.

Klein said he is hoping for an early indication from the state about the sales tax proposal; with the county budget due to be approved by Dec. 20, he readily admitted that time is running out.

'Cut It 10 Per Cent'

KINGSTON

The Finance Committee of the Ulster County Legislature, in a major move designed to reduce the county's tentative $58.5 million budget for 1976, has sent a memo to each department head in the county government requiring them to make additional 10 per cent cuts in their budget requests.

The decision was made at Wednesday's committee meeting. No departments were exempted from the order. Department heads must return the revised budget figures to the Finance Committee by Monday.

"I'm hoping that the state will give us the prerogative to increase the sales tax," said Klein, "then we can continue to work on the budget and after we've made all the cuts we can, we can see what kind of property tax increase we're faced with. If it's an unreasonable increase, then we can consider the sales tax."

"Right now, without prior approval from the state, we're foreclosed from any possibility of choice," Klein added.

Klein who will take over as minority leader of the legislature on Jan. 1, said that an informal survey of his colleagues on the legislature indicates majority support for the sales tax increase proposal, but only if the county faces a substantial increase in the property tax.

Unless there are significant reductions in the tentative budget, it appears almost certain that the property tax hike will, in fact, be substantial. A number of legislators are saying privately that they'll be satisfied if they can hold the increase to a figure below 30 per cent.

Many of the residents who spoke at Monday's budget hearing expressed opposition to the sales tax increase proposal, suggesting instead that the county legislature make a meaningful effort to reduce expenditures.

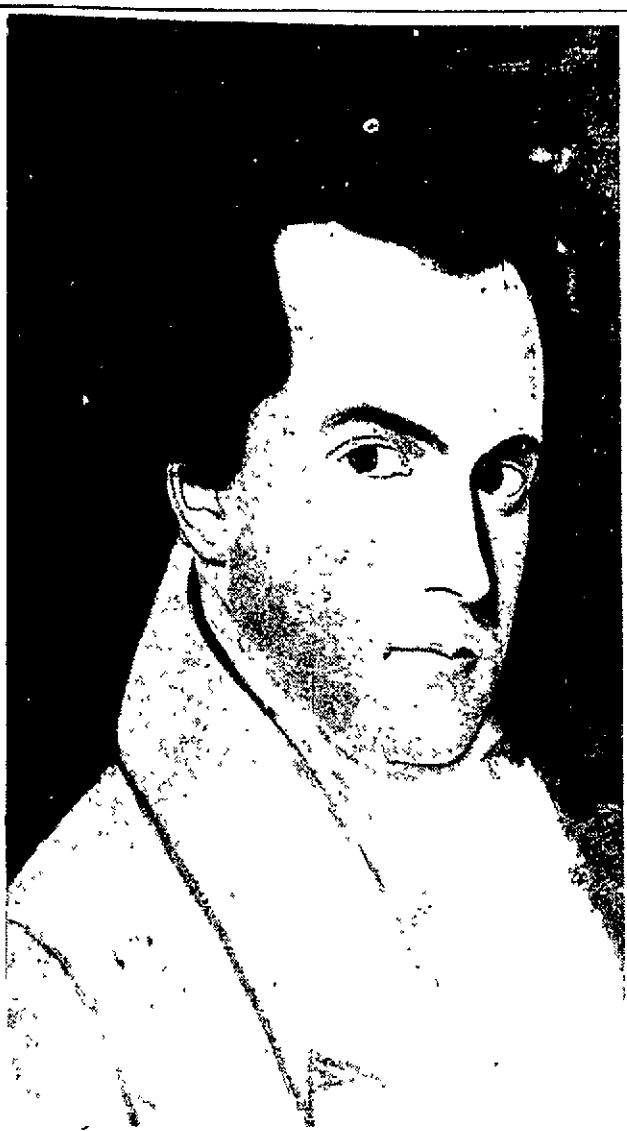

Much the same sentiment has been expressed by leaders of the local business community, and they're the ones who stand to lose the most under a sales tax hike. Bernard Singer of the Ulster Business and Professional Association said that group would be strongly opposed to any tax increase—sales or property.

"Any tax increase is going to cut deeply into the purchasing power of the consumer," said Singer, "and that's going to hurt the businessman."

In fact, it's safe to assume that any large property tax hike is going to catch the consumer coming and going. Singer acknowledged that many businessmen, faced with increased taxes on their own property, are going to try to recoup some of those losses by charging higher prices for goods and services.

Neither the Ulster County Chamber of Commerce nor the Uptown Businessmen's Association have taken any stand, as yet, on the sales tax issue, but Glenn Fitzgerald, president of the Central Businessmen's Association, pointed out that an increase in the county sales tax will further magnify the two per cent difference that currently exists in the sales tax in and outside the city. The result: more consumers will do their shopping outside the city.

In the meantime, the county is waiting for some word from the state, and hoping that enough cuts can be made in the tentative '76 budget to delay sales tax talk for at least another year.

THE MYSTERY MAN

Secret Uncovered At Senate House

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON

The Senate House has given up one of its most closely guarded "secrets," the portrait of an unidentified man by an unidentified artist found hidden (or lost) beneath the roof of the building when its 55-year-old copper roof was stripped off last month.

Museum officials, perplexed about the origins of the 11-by 21-inch oil painting, aren't leaping to any conclusions as to its potential value, but there's always the possibility of a major find.

"It's a very exciting thing," said James Gold, site manager at the Senate House.

Gold, who immediately dispatched the painting to state historic experts for evaluation, did some checking of his own on the portrait of a man obviously from the turn of the 19th century.

"It's not a portrait of Van Buren or Burr," Gold said. "We've checked against known portraits and we haven't seen any similarities." Neither is the portrait in the Vanderlyn style. "That would be too much to hope for," Gold said.

The portrait is only half the story. On the reverse side a pencil or charcoal unfinished work of art was discovered. Gold says it appears to be of a religious theme.

The painting was uncovered by accident when Bill Caven, a carpenter working for the Palisades Interstate Park Commission and assigned to the Senate House restoration project, discovered it as he was removing some sheathing boards under the copper to examine rotten wall sills on the Clinton Avenue side of the building.

Gold reports that at first Caven thought it was just another scrap of wood left behind by some previous roof repair. "It was lying face down amidst old roof debris and it was only upon turning it over that he recognized just what it was," Gold said. The side with the oil painting had been face down.

There were no identification marks of any kind on the painting. Gold dispatched it to Joyce Zucker in Waterford, painting conservator for the State Division of Historic Preservation. He has also contacted a number of other art experts in an effort to determine the origins of the painting.

Gold says he has no idea how the painting came to be placed in the Senate House roof. He has a rough idea of when it was placed there—probably between 1890 (when the state acquired the building) and 1920 when the new roof was put on.

The painting, following conservation, will be placed on display in the Senate House "for all to enjoy and ponder over," Gold said.

"The questions this painting discovery has raised are endless," he said. "Who is the subject and when was it done? Who was the artist and why didn't he complete the work? Where was it done? When and why did this painting come to be placed in the Senate House, concealed within a roof?"

"The detective work has just begun and everyone is invited to join in the search for clues," he said.

Work on replacing the copper roof with a shingle roof is rapidly nearing completion. Gold said the Clinton Avenue side has been shingled with the north end of the building remaining to be done. Restoration crews will then finish the dormers. Plans call for completion and re-opening of the museum by the end of the month.

Cross Country in Four Months

By Matt Sprieng

PORT EWEN

A trip from Oregon to New York that was supposed to last for only about a week has finally ended after more than four months for 73-year-old Daniel A. Downes.

Downes left Oregon on July 7 by bus to come to the wedding of his grandson, Daniel Naccarato, son of Mrs. Barbara Naccarato of Port Ewen, which was held on July 19. Downes never made the wedding and his family had no idea of his whereabouts until Nov. 15, when it was learned he was at a Chicago-area nursing home. He made it to New York, at long last, on Nov. 29.

Downes, who is now staying in Port Ewen with Mrs. Naccarato, cannot remember everything of what happened to him after he left Oregon in July on his ill-fated trip. He apparently either suffered a stroke or was mugged or both, sometime during the trip, causing him to lose his memory about part of what happened.

"I remember Chicago; that's when I came out of the fog," Downes told the Freeman. He recalls being driven to a nursing home by a police officer, apparently sometime in August.

He also remembers quite clearly the nursing home where he was kept, and where he says he was threatened by nurses, forced to sign welfare checks over to the home, not given any medical treatment and either tied or handcuffed to a bed for three days.

Downes spent more than three months in the nursing home on the outskirts of Chicago, unable to recall his exact home address. It was only by luck that a misaddressed letter reached the apartment complex where he lived in November, setting in motion what could be described as Downes' release from virtual bondage.

"I'd still be there if I didn't remember something (of his address)," Downes said.

Downes' description of the treatment received at the nursing home is a virtual horror show.

He says three male nurses threatened him shortly after he was brought into the nursing home after he "came out of the fog and gave them a fight."

He says he was confined to a bed for three days. The elderly persons, men and women, at the home were kept in one huge room, "like a dormitory," with only curtains to pull around their beds. He was not once allowed outside the building during the entire period he was there. Residents of the home were forced to bathe three times a day; the method: nurses scrubbed them down with mops. "We were fed the same garbage every day," he said, explaining that the food was so scanty and left the people so hungry that fights would erupt over the food. Somehow welfare checks began arriving at the home in his name, and he was forced to sign them and turn them over to the home.

"They have a wonderful racket there," Downes said.

"The old men and old women really take a beating there."

When Downes' whereabouts were finally learned, his daughter, Lois Draper of Salem, Ore., spoke to him by telephone. Two of his Social Security checks were sent to him, amounting to more than $450. The home kept the checks, saying he owed them the money for clothing, according to the Drapers, who were forced to send another $150 for plane fare back to Oregon . . . plus $25 for taxi fare to the airport (the home would not take Downes to the airport, and would not release him without the money).

When Downes arrived in Oregon he was wearing two slippers which did not match, obviously second-hand clothing that didn't fit, and no coat, even though it was November. He had lost more than 25 pounds since he disappeared in July, and no longer had his glasses or his false teeth.

Downes family has had him checked by doctors, and he has been pronounced physically all right, although they are told he may occasionally suffer lapses of memory. He came east by plane on Nov. 29, although he expresses a reluctance to travel after his ordeal. He wanted to see the grandson whose wedding he missed, as well as the rest of his family.

Mrs. Naccarato, her son Daniel, and other members of the family met him as he got off the plane in Newark. (He was the last one off the plane, causing a few moments of fearful uncertainty on the part of his family.) He attended a family reunion in Mineola, L.I. on Nov. 30, and, more than four months late, finally made it to Port Ewen this week.

Celebrates 105th Birthday

William Davis, a resident at Ulster County Infirmary on Golden Hill Drive since 1971, observed his 105th birthday Tuesday. Born Dec. 2, 1870, Mr. Davis was a resident of Eddyville for many years and was a self-employed carpenter. Outliving his friends and most of his relatives, Mr. Davis enjoys talking about the "old days" with his visitors. Failing eyesight requires him to listen to the radio to keep up with current events. Two of his favorite pastimes are chewing tobacco and rocking in his rocking chair. The Activities Department in his unit hosted a party in his honor. Mr. Davis received gifts and congratulatory cards. Here, Mrs. William Helmrich, social worker, presents a birthday cake to the honoree. As Mrs. Elnora McSpirt, associate director of nurses, looks on. ## UPI DATELINE

Terrorists Shoot Hostage

BEILEN, The Netherlands — South Moluccan terrorists today shot one of 38 hostages they are holding in a hijacked train in retaliation for a Dutch refusal to bow to their demands.

Police said the gunmen, holding the hostages in a train they seized outside this town three days ago, shot a man in the doorway of a coach shortly after a mediator had informed them of the Dutch government's refusal to meet their demands.

Price Index at Same Level

WASHINGTON — The Wholesale Price Index for November remained at the same level as October because of a drop in food prices, the Labor Department said today. The zero change in wholesale prices was the best inflation news in six months. Wholesale prices declined 0.1 per cent in June, but surged up steadily until peaking at 1.8 per cent in October.

Two Appointed in Laos

BANGKOK, Thailand — The Pathet Lao appointed two of its top officials as president and prime minister of Laos today, forging the final link in the Communist takeover of Indochina.

In a broadcast monitored here, the Pathet Lao said in Vietnamese that Prince Souphanouvong, the nominal Pathet Lao chief, would serve as president of the new Peoples' Democratic Republic of Laos.

House Takes First Step

WASHINGTON — The House has taken the first step toward passage of a bill to revise taxes and extend 1975's recession-fighting tax cuts through 1976, effectively daring President Ford to veto the bill.

A post-Christmas congressional session may be necessary if there is a veto. In the absence of some action, taxes for the more than 80 million individual American taxpayers would rise by about $13 billion next year.

Portugal Begins Probe

LISBON, Portugal — The policy-making Revolutionary Council today began preparations for the prosecution of left-wing military men involved in last week's abortive coup attempt.

The council ordered military police to begin preliminary investigations of those accused of taking part in the rebellion, which was crushed by progovernment forces.

It was the council's first meeting since the revolt was put down.

Mother Charged

The mother of a 2 1/2 year old boy who died on Oct. 28 as the result of an alleged beating and her boy friend were arrested late Wednesday afternoon as they were apparently attempting to flee from the area, authorities said today.

Taken into custody by state police at about 4 p.m. were Bonita Shultis, 29, of Route 9W, Glenerie and Ward Yerry Jr., 35, formerly of Sawmill Trailer Park. Mrs. Shultis was charged with second degree murder in the death of her son, Paul Robert Shultis. Yerry had previously been charged with murder in the death of the child.

The arrests Wednesday resulted from an unusual series of events which began last week.

District Attorney Francis J. Vogt explained today that Yerry, who was charged with murder in the case on Oct. 29, was released from jail in his own recognizance about a week ago on the recommendation of the district attorney's office. Acknowledging that such a move is "most unusual in view of the charge," Vogt said it was hoped that through Yerry's release he and Mrs. Shultis would engage in conversation which would enable authorities to learn more about the incidents which led to the child's death.

While Yerry had been in jail, a court order was obtained to install an "eavesdropping device" in Mrs. Shultis' residence, Vogt said, and such a device was installed.

"Yesterday, information was received (through the eavesdropping device) which led state police to believe they (Yerry and Mrs. Shultis) were fleeing this jurisdiction, and they were observed putting suitcases in a car," Vogt said. State police followed the pair for a short distance before stopping and arresting them.

Mrs. Shultis was arrested for murder "as a result of information uncovered by the investigation," Vogt said, declining to go into further detail. She was jailed without bail. A bail revocation hearing for Yerry was slated for today.

Total Nears $6,000

KINGSTON

The city-wide fund-raising campaign to help the Children's Library get back on its feet after its recent fire continues to grow as area groups continue to respond.

Immanuel Lutheran Church, 22 Livingston Street, just contributed a check for $47.35. The donations were collected at the Thanksgiving Eve vespers held during "Beggar's Night" which launched the local drive.

In making the donation, the Rev. Gary L. Mehl, pastor, said: "The people of Immanuel urge all Kingston area churches to make it possible for their membership to contribute to the library fund during the holiday season . . . certainly, this is one way to put faith into action."

The campaign total to date is $5,911.27. Donations will be accepted through Christmas Eve at the Daily Freeman on Hurley Avenue, fund drive headquarters.

Guilty Plea in Burglary

KINGSTON
A 21-year-old Stone Ridge man faces a possible maximum prison sentence of 25 years following a guilty plea in Ulster County Court on Wednesday.

Jeffrey Brown, of Atwood Road, pleaded guilty to first degree burglary before County Judge Raymond J. Mino.

The charge stemmed from an alleged incident last June when Brown was arrested after allegedly breaking into the home of James Price of Vista Drive, Town of Ulster. Price arrived home and was allegedly confronted by Brown, who was carrying a knife. Price was able to keep Brown in the house until sheriff's deputies arrived to arrest him.

Brown was indicted for first degree robbery and burglary in connection with the case in August. He was represented by Attorney Charles Saccoman.

Pressmen's Slowdown

NEW YORK (UPI) — Managements of The New York Times and the New York Daily News say a work "slowdown" by union pressmen may force the two newspapers to suspend publication if it continues.

William Kennedy, president of the New York Pressmen's Union, denied earlier there was a slowdown and said delays had been caused by the use of old paper — the result of a paper production strike in Canada. The old paper, Kennedy said, is brittle and breaks easily.

In memos to their staffs Wednesday, News president and publisher W.H. James and Times publisher Arthur Ochs Sulzberger said the pressmen's actions, in their fourth day today, pose "a serious threat to continued publication."

and organized campaign of slowdown and harassment."

The pressmen belong to New York Newspaper Printing Pressmen Union No. 2, which represents some 826 men. The union has been working under an extension of previous contracts which expired last March 30. Little progress has been reported in negotiations.

James said a "partial strike" prevented the printing of 300,000 copies of Wednesday's editions, resulting in an estimated loss of $140,000 in advertising and circulation revenue. The News' weekday press run normally averages about two million.

Fatal On The Thruway

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON

A Quebec, Can. man was killed early today when the car in which he was riding overturned on the New York State Thruway about two miles south of Kingston. Yves L. Perron, 36, who died a short time after arrival at the Benedictine Hospital emergency room, became the fourth person to die as a result of Thruway traffic accidents in Ulster County in less than a month.

While full details on the 7:20 a.m. fatal crash were not immediately available, it has been learned that Perron was a passenger in a car driven by Dennis Martin, 42, of Montreal, Can., which was travelling north on the super-highway.

According to troopers, Martin apparently fell asleep at the wheel of his car, which rolled over several times, ejecting Perron.

Perron and Martin were rushed to Benedictine Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance. Perron died a short time after arrival, according to a hospital spokeswoman. Martin was reportedly in fair condition.

Armed Robbery

Meanwhile, in other area police matters:

Police roadblocks were set up in the area Wednesday following an armed robbery at a New Paltz motel room.

State police, said two men knocked on the door of a 27-year-old female guest at the Huguenot Motel at about 9:40 p.m. Identifying themselves as police officers, the men asked to be admitted to the room.

After admitting the men, the woman, who was not identified, was confronted with an "antique-type pistol," police said, and the two men ransacked the room.

Apparently finding nothing of value, the men fled in a blue car with a black vinyl top.

Police said one of the robbers was white, about 6-feet tall, and wore a brown coat. The second robber was described only as being black.

Seek Trio

Kingston Police Department detective are seeking three black males who mugged a 24-year-old city resident on the corner of Iwo Jima Lane and Greenkill Avenue Wednesday night.

Police said the victim, Richard Middaugh of 33 Cedar Street, told them the men struck him over the head with a bottle wrapped in cloth and cut him on the wrist with a piece of glass because he would not turn over his wallet (which he was not carrying). A quantity of pills was reportedly taken from the victim, detectives said. Middaugh was treated and released at Kingston Hospital following the attack.

The three suspects were described as all being over 6-feet tall, with afro hairstyles. One had a goatee, the second had a mustache, and the third had several days' growth of facial hair.

Three Charged

Three young Tivoli residents were charged with fifth degree criminal possession of a controlled substance, a felony, Wednesday night after an estimated 1½ pounds of marijuana was allegedly found in the vehicle in which they were riding in Red Hook. Rhinebeck State Police said the car was stopped for speeding. Arrested were: Nancy Furstinger, 20; Fred Miller, 23; and Joseph Navins, 26. They were jailed in lieu of $2,500 bail each.

Officers Injured

Two New Paltz police officers were injured early today when their car was struck in the rear by a speeding auto. Police said the patrol car, operated by Patrolman Dennis Tasker, was going north on Route 32 at about 2:10 a.m. when a car driven at an allegedly high rate of speed by Stephanie Reposky, 21, of Rosendale, slammed into the rear of the patrol car and forced it off the road into a ditch. Authorities said the patrol car was going at "normal patrol speed" when the crash occurred. Tasker and Patrolman George Miro, who was a passenger, both suffered back and neck injuries. Neither was hospitalized. The Reposky woman was charged with driving while intoxicated, reckless driving and speed not reasonable or prudent. She was jailed in lieu of $100 bail.

U.S. Relations with China Are Now 'Full of Vitality'

PEKING (UPI) — With warm backing from the Chinese, President Ford said today U.S.-Chinese relations are good and will get better despite such unresolved disputes as America's pursuit of detente with Moscow.

Exchanging champagne toasts at the formal conclusion of Ford's four-day visit, acting Premier Teng Hsiao-ping agreed that relations between the two are "full of vitality" — and he dropped all mention of the detente issue that so angers the Chinese, instead referring softly to "differences of principle."

The Chinese took pains to support Ford's assessment that his visit was a success even without progress on specific issues like detente or any official communique to back it up.

Earlier, at the start of his final talks with Ford, Teng said the visit had both strengthened ties and introduced "a new style" of discreet secrecy in Washington-Peking relations.

Conceding in his banquet toast that China and America "naturally have differences of principle," Teng said, "but at the same time ... our two nations have problems of mutual concern and have many common points."

He said both sides still regard the 1972 Shanghai communique issued at the end of President Richard M. Nixon's visit as "the basis for U.S.-Chinese relations."

"It remains full of vitality today."

Ford hosted the farewell banquet in The Great Hall of the People, where a party of 700 dined on consomme, fried duck cutlets, braised shark's fin and strawberry mousse washed down with California champagne.

"It has been a significant visit," Ford said, lifting a glass in toast to the Chinese at a farewell banquet he hosted.

"The wide-ranging talks which I have held with Chairman Mao Tse-tung and with Vice Premier Teng have been friendly, candid, substantial and constructive."

"We discussed our differences, which are natural in a relationship between two countries whose ideologies, societies and circumstances diverge. But we also confirm that we have important common points ..."

"Although our relations are not yet normalized, they are good," Ford said. "They will be gradually improved ..."

There was a small diplomatic bouquet for the Chinese among the "common points" of interest Ford mentioned — a confirmation that —like China — the United States opposes "the efforts of others to impose hegemony (military domination) in any part of the world."

In U.S.-Chinese diplomatic parlance, "others" are the Soviets.

Both the United States and China agreed to this point in the 1972 "Shanghai Communique" that ended President Richard M. Nixon's visit, and Ford said U.S.-Chinese relations would continue to be guided by that document in the absence of any communique from this visit.

"The United States is committed to complete the normalization of relations," with Peking, he said, simply omitting any reference to U.S. support for the Taiwan government which blocks establishment of full relations with China.

Report Adds Little

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — A state auditors' report on the state lottery adds little to the shortcomings noted by several previous investigations, but does seem to support some of the contentions offered by ousted lottery director Jerry Bruno in his defense.

Gov. Hugh L. Carey last Friday announced Bruno was being fired along with 317 other lottery employees as part of a thorough overhaul of the problem-plagued operation.

At that time, Bruno complained that many of the problems stemmed from areas now controlled by the Racing and Wagering Board or from actions taken prior to the time he took over the $1 million-a-week operation.

The state comptroller's office Wednesday issued a report citing several examples of mismanagement and misrepresentation of the now-suspended lottery.

Comptroller Arthur Levitt urged that before any new lottery operations were undertaken, lottery personnel be required to prepare written procedures to avoid the same problems in the future.

The report blamed one key problem — the issuance of duplicate tickets for the final Colossus Game — on "a lack of adequate supervision" over changes in a computer program run by the Tax Department.

The duplicate ticket problem led Carey to suspend the lottery Oct. 22.

Among the problems cited by the Levitt report were:

— An excess cash balance of $1.1 million remained in a noninterest bearing bank account for 20 months.

— Advertisements for the Independence Day Special drawing said 40,000 prizes would be awarded, based on the sale of 5 million tickets, but only 4 million tickets were sold with a possibility of 32,000 winners.

— Prizes for the Independence Day drawing exceeded revenues for prizes by $500,000 in 1975 and $600,000 in 1974, with the difference made up by "various financing techniques," mainly through investment in securities.

— Unsold tickets were not accounted for for up to four weeks after some drawings, meaning "a great many people" had access to winning tickets that had not been sold.

— Expenditures to run the lottery can run up to 15 per cent of gross sales, but in the fiscal year ending March 31, operating costs were $15.1 million, or $1.4 million over the maximum.

"Although much of the criticism voiced about the lottery operations has been directed to the current administration," the auditors said, "many of the problems were inherited from previous administrations which operated under the guidance of both the Department of Taxation and Finance and the Racing and Wagering Board."

"If lottery operations are resumed, the organization problems and conflicts currently existing between the lottery and the Racing and Wagering Board must be resolved," the report said.

Not Happy With the Sheriff

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The state Commission of Correction is not happy with Dutchess County Sheriff Lawrence M. Quinlan's apparent failure to post grievance information on procedures for inmates of the county jail.

The commission Wednesday made public a letter to Quinlan containing a thinly veiled warning about the matter.

The letter from Herman Schwartz, chairman of the commission, to Quinlan stated that the sheriff had refused to post information from the prison watchdog agency.

"We hope that we will not be forced to conclude that your refusal to post the notices is because you do not want the inmates to contact us," Schwartz said.

"As soon as we make that determination," Schwartz said, "we shall contact you."

Quinlan had notified the commission that he was waiting information on how the commission would investigate any grievances filed before he would post the notice.

New Landfill Plan

Mayor Francis R. Koenig's plan to have private contractors truck the city garbage and refuse to a site outside the city and solve the continuing landfill crisis has a lot of merit.

But, there are still some unanswered questions on the issue and until they are answered, the proposal has too many flaws.

For instance: If the contractor who is awarded the bid compacts the city's garbage and takes it to a dumping site, where will this site be located? Since there are no locations available in the city, the dumping site will have to be located outside the Kingston City limits.

Another question is over the centralized "transfer station" within the city limits. The mayor didn't specify where in the city this "transfer station" would be located. He envisions a cost of $30,000 for the building of this station but that price is not firm. It could conceivably go much higher.

The third and probably most important question concerns the so-called "deal" hinted at by Conservative Candidate Bernard Singer during the election campaign.

Singer accused—and both Koenig and running mate T. Robert Gallo denied—a deal by the city administration with a person in the Town of Ulster to dump Kingston's garbage there. Was this plan, announced this week by the mayor, the culmination of that alleged "deal?"

With time running out at the Kingston Point Landfill site, there is no doubt that a quick alternative is needed.

After the way residents in the Wilbur area turned out en masse to halt the city's planned construction of a landfill site in that area, this new plan by the mayor certainly deserves a lot of consideration.

However, until the questions listed above are answered, the Freeman reserves decision as to whether or not it will endorse the plan.

Kennedy Library

It took 14 years of searching, politicking and bickering, but the University of Massachusetts at Boston has finally been selected as the site of the John F. Kennedy Library.

Members of the Kennedy family and the JFK Library Corp. decided on the site after considering that and another alternative—Harvard. President Kennedy's alma mater was Harvard. He drew many of his advisors from that cauldron and he picked that site personally for his library.

But to give Harvard the nod meant that the private archives portion of the library would come under the aegis of the venerable university while the museum would have to be built elsewhere.

An important reason for selecting the University of Massachusetts is because the site is easily accessible for Kennedy admirers. Though born of wealth and educated at an elite college, President Kennedy tried to be and was looked upon by many as the people's president. It is fitting his library should be at a public university and easy to get to.

Slow Reaction

Editor, The Freeman:

This letter is being written in respect to the "prompt" actions of our New York State Police upon the report of a deer which has been shot and left dead.

Sometime, either the day before Thanksgiving or that Thanksgiving Day, 1975, a hunter was out and shot an illegal buck. For that reason, rather than taking the chance of being fined, he left it lie dead to rot. Our neighbor discovered the deer, which was lying right off the side of the road practically in full view at a glance, and mentioned it to my brother.

He in turn went to my father and they both went back to take a look. It was quite obvious that the meat could not be saved because the deer had not even been gutted, but we thought that the skin might possibly be saved. So I, like a responsible citizen and obeying rules and regulations, called the New York State Police—Hurley Barracks.

I didn't give my name, because that was not my obligation to them. I reported what had happened and where, and I was told that the Highway Department would be sent out to check it out. I asked the trooper if he would like me to have someone there to point out the carcass, but he said that it wouldn't be necessary because it would be a while. So, naturally we assumed they would be up within the next 2-3 hours. Well, it's been 4 days at the writing of this letter, since the deer was spotted and it is still there. Of course, the skin is not even salvageable any longer because an animal, most likely a racoon got at it during the night, and it is totally ruined.

Is this the kind of reaction our State Police have been taking? If not, is this what we can expect in the future? We, as citizens, feel we are obligated to report cases such as this deer rotting, in hopes of maybe saving a part of it such as the skin, only to come to the conclusion that maybe the State Police did not feel as obligated to us to take the proper action. I think it is a shame that this has happened, and I would go so far as to say it is not the first time it has.

Maybe this is why the conservation officers find so many carcasses in the woods left dead. People wonder what the sense is in reporting these cases because they know that it will go no farther than a brief telephone conversation. I would really like an explanation as to exactly why this has happened.

What can you tell me, State Police? How many citizens out there have already had this experience? I feel we have a right to know.

Editor, The Freeman:

Re: Your Sunday Readers Write Column, and the first letter titled "Bury the Hatchet" and signed by a Vernon J. Lewis:

"Bury the Hatchet" I say too—BUT!!—Mr. Lewis, before writing his article and saying "he'd lost a lot of respect" for the paid (fire) department, should have thought a lot more about his very first sentence—"alleged" attack on a volunteer fireman! He would surely never have lost "respect" if he'd seen the many times the paid department risked their own lives to rescue a child or adult who otherwise would have burned to death or died of asphyxiation! He stied he recalls

"a fire"—at how many fires where you actually present Mr. Lewis? The paid department responds to every single reported fire!!

As for losing anyone else's respect,—speak for yourself Mr. Lewis—I'm sure anyone with an ounce of common sense knows better than to make such a statement, until the facts are all verified at least! And I for one, do not believe they will be "silenced and swept under the carpet."

Keep up the excellent team work, both paid and volunteer departments and God Bless You All—

Most Sincerely,

Excellent Films

Editor, The Freeman:

What is happening top our town. Believe it or not two excellent movies just shown at the Community Theatre, The Hiding Place and Benji.

I was told by an employeethat just about every show was crowded. I and my children were delayed for one hour at one showing because the show ahead of us was delayed due to the crowd.

Shouldn't this and the box office receipts and the sight of families going to the movies again tell the management something.

We have waited long enough for some family films.

Parents unite and let the movie management know your feelings.

Ford vs. NYC: TKO

By William F. Buckley Jr.

Concerning the turn-around of Mr. Ford, a few observations:

1. Did he do the right thing? Here is an example of the use of litotes — He did not do the wrong thing. My own feeling is that New York and the country would have been better off tasting the ignominy of bankruptcy.

This is not said out of any fatuous desire to cause people to suffer. It is said out of a concern that a lesson necessary to future health should be completely learned. During the siege of Khe-sanh there were a few of us who proposed the use of tactical nuclear weapons not so much because these and only these could save Khe-sanh — as much and more firepower was available from our B-52's. We felt it important to establish that these weapons would not trigger a world-wide nuclear war.

The notion that the bankruptcy of New York City would bring unemployment in Dusseldorf is a mischievous superstition it would have been well to dissipate, and could have been if New York City had simply defaulted on its bonds, invoked the bankruptcy laws, and a court appointed a trustee. The technical amendments to that law, as suggested by Senator James L. Buckley and tacked on as amendments to the proposed banking bill, were sensible and helpful.

2. At this point President Ford was playing the role of the Intransigent. He would not "bail out" New York City. In retrospect there is little doubt that, finally, the power-brokers in New York began to believe him. For one thing, they had lost the confidence of critical members of the Senate by crying Wolf metronomically — and then finding ways to take care of their own problems.

The two critical capitulations were made in Albany, and in the headquarters of the major city unions. Albany, invoking a precedent dating back to the great depression, and done then for the benefit of homeowners, decreed that there would be a moratorium in cashing matured bonds. The difference between this and default is entirely technical; that is to say, the creditor with the matured bond sees no difference between default, and the substitution of another bond at a pre-stipulated rate of interest redeemable some day in the future.

It is important to understand that the City has in fact defaulted. That what it hasn't done is "defaulted" under the traditional law — which law was changed for the occasion. And the labor unions agreed to purchase several billions dollars of city bonds with their pension funds.

3. At this point President Ford faced what was really a psychological problem. If he had refused to authorize what is really only the swing money to keep New York City in operation, he'd have emerged as an unreasonable man. He had won his principal points. New York had trimmed its budget, agreed to raise additional taxes, set up a board not entirely immune to political pressure but one step removed from it to govern matters relating to the budget; and Ford's own Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to stop federal payments — which in any case are to be reimbursed — any time New York runs behind in its scheduled obligations. It was not a clean theoretical victory, but it was an empirical victory. Leaving, however, a few unanswered questions:

4. Will the new state board prove to be sufficiently independent of direct political pressure to effect genuine reform? To talk back to the teachers' bureaucracy? To the sanitationmen? To the city's civil servants? What will the bond-buying public do when the city and the state issue their next set of bonds? How will they greet the phrase, "promise to pay" now that it is established that a promise by New York City to pay is as easily coped with as by postponing the due date by simple act of the legislature?

My guess is that future bond-buyers are going to be much more cautious, and might express that caution in demanding a premium rate of interest. And, finally, what will be the long term effect of the new taxes? A successful writer the other day explained that at this moment, he pays 50% federal tax, 14% state tax, 4% city tax, and 4% unincorporated business tax. That man is going to have to pay still more. One can only predict that the excesses of Paree are going to drive people back to the farm.

Track Record

What this twerpish governor is charged with is helping his pals get more racing days for their track from the state legislature. In return Mandel is supposed to have gotten a cut in several of his pals' businesses.

Among the crimes a governor might commit, those Mandel is charged with appear as vague as they do inconsequential. What if he is guilty, what if he did help manipulate a few racing dates around? So what? It doesn't cost the public a dime.

Let's not ask if he's guilty, let's ask why states determine racing dates. Gambling, horse racing and the like are healthy enough to be allowed to be unregulated private enterprises. If the people who own a racetrack know so little about their businesses they can't determine when to open and close them, let's nationalize racing and end the temptation to steal a bribe that way.

Former Illinois governor, former Federal appeals court judge, former jailbird and ex-distinguished citizen Otto Kerner went to the big house on charges arising out of a racetrack situation. Racetrack legislation is but part of a whole, large category of laws that have no other real

Mr. and Mrs. America: A Winchell Tribute

WASHINGTON — When Walter Winchell died in 1972, he left behind a collection of last gripes and reminiscences. These have just been published by Prentice Hall.

"Winchell Exclusive," as the book is called, recalled for me one of the unforgettable characters of my early muckraking years.

Winchell was a New York City urchin, on his own at 13. By 19, he was a song-and-dance man on the Orpheum circuit. He entered "newspapering" as an indefatigable ad salesman and collector of show biz items for an obscure Tin Pan Alley rag.

Out of it all — the clinkety-clak of iron wheels on endless rails, the one-night stands on a thousand Main Streets, the tense, terse pace of Manhattan and its gladiators — Winchell got into his bones an instinct for the rhythm, the sense of expectancy, the titillations and gut interests that moved America during the second third of this century.

He carved out for himself a beat at which the threads of mass interest intersected: Broadway, Hollywood, Gangland, G-men, spies, night club "souse-iety" and the emotional fever zones of national politics — FDR, anti-Hitlerism, anti-communism.

With a dot, dot, dot to separate subjects, he would dash from international cataclysms to trivial gossip; he knew that there were millions out there who really wanted to know that Mr. and Mrs. so-and-so were "infantipating."

To this beat he brought a new style, a staccato delivery, yet a voice so artistically honed as to be able instantly to shift into a mellow, one-on-one intimacy.

To fit his frantic pace, he coined new words: "debutrump," "playbore," "swelegant," "Chicagorilla." And he created an image he never tired of playing — the brash, shirt-sleeved, cigarette-drooping, hat-pushed-back, Front Page newshark, pounding a telegraph key, racing the clock.

When things got dull at the Stork Club around 4 a.m., he would prow the streets in his car, tracking the calls on his special police radio. The echo of the siren was in his phrases. Above all, he gave daily answers to the big question — "What's going to happen tomorrow?" — which moved his generation much as ours turns on "What went wrong yesterday?"

Winchell and his era are put in focus by a fascinating introduction to the book written by the noted newsman and personality, Ernest Cuneo. Winchell's street-educated mind, Cuneo says, was narrow but almost preternaturally incisive.

On a chance encounter with the British ambassador in the days before Munich, WW asked: "What is Great Britain going to do about Hitler?"

"We shall try to fatten the tiger without strengthening him," was the reply.

Winchell snorted "I've seen some big tigers and some little tigers, but I've never seen a fat one." His next column capsuled the coming world tragedy in two Winchellian sentences: "Britain will marry Hitler in the fall. The marriage will blow up in a world war."

In his heyday, Winchell is said to have reached 9 out of 10 Americans by radio and to have had 50 million readers for his daily columns. His ego exceeded even his circulation.

I was once imprisoned in a taxicab for 45 minutes with the great man; by the time we got out, I was almost asphyxiated from the nonstop litany of his triumphs over perfidious foes, his betrayals at the hands of ingrates, his prodigious benefactions to mankind.

For all the sharpness of his instincts, Winchell was content to stay on the surface of events. "He was not interested in the story, only the headline," Cuneo says.

My mentor, Drew Pearson, was Walter Winchell's great rival for top dogdom in theradio-newspaper whirl. Pearson, though a fierce competitor for the headline, was committed to the issue behind it. For him, the headline was just a skirmish in the unending battle or what he saw as the good cause against the bad.

For years, the two maintained friendly relations, watched each other like respectful hawks and often collaborated, or as Winchell said "patty-caked" with one another.

When in the late 1940s and early '50s, Pearson took on the whole snake-pit of Red-hunting demagogues, the time came when McCarthy and his allies ganged up in retribution, pushed Pearson off the radio and threatened to destroy him.

Drew called Winchell and asked him to join the battle while there was still time. But the headlines were coming from the other side then. Winchell refused and ran with the McCarthyites until their string ran out.

Cuneo, who was close to both, compares them in an apt metaphor: Winchell was a racehorse; Pearson was a war horse. But taking Winchell as he was, what a race horse!

"Winchell Exclusive" recaptures the flavor of a time gone by, a time of preposterous spectacles, sizzling feuds, ignoble follies and noble struggles.

Walter Winchell played a part in the lives, and remains in the memories, of most of us past 40. And there were occasional moments, as on the issues of world fascism and national rearmament, when he rose above the gossip and the ego, and shone as a beacon for "Mr. and Mrs. America...and all the ships at sea."

NEW RESTS ON OLD

PEKING (UPI) — Notebook items from President Ford's trip to China:

A reporter who asked Ma Yuchen, Chinese information director, if it was possible U.S. journalists could meet with Chairman Mao Tse-tung got this response:

"Your wish is impossible to fulfill. Your question is impossible to answer."

The Chinese are showing great curiosity about the presidential aspirations of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who is challenging Ford for the GOP nomination, and Sen. Henry Jackson (D-Wash.). Both Reagan and Jackson — like themselves — are strong critics of U.S.-Soviet detente.

They also have asked many questions about Ford's firing of Defense Secretary James Schlesinger, whom the Chinese admire for his strong warnings against Soviet defense policies.

Reporters say the quality of the food served at the Great Hall of the People and at the Minzu Hotel where they are staying has dropped precipitously since President Richard M. Nixon's visit in 1972.

They now rate the cooking "half a star."

One reporter mused that Chinese anger over U.S.-Soviet detente has reached all the way down to the exotic cuisine.

Mrs. George Bush, wife of the chief U.S. liaison officer in Peking, has learned her diplomatic P's and Q's.

Asked about her husband's meeting with the Ford party Tuesday at the home of Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, she looked aghast. In China, apparently, one never speaks of Mao.

"Why don't you ask George," she snapped.

Reporters have gone on a Christmas shopping spree in Peking. Among the best buys are cashmere sweaters, both cardigan and pullover styles. Two ginger jars go for $12. But most correspondents are still finding a little out of their price range.

Ready for Bicentennial

ing a major dollar claim on the nation's bicentennial billions.

Appropriately, one of the manufacturers of official souvenirs for Bicentennial 1976 is a family-owned Columbia, Pa., firm with roots in Pennsylvania's early iron-mining industry.

Wilton Brass Co.'s bicentennial souvenirs combine a 12-year-old, pewter-like metals mixture with the world's second oldest form of molding — sand casting.

"Only pottery is an older form," said Wilton's master molder, Red Hancock, 68, who demonstrates the deft casting of molten armature, the company's 10-metal secret alloy.

Out of shattered sand blocks come the cooled plates, tankards, breakers and auto tags bearing the individual bicentennial designs of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Georgia, North Carolina and Virginia among the original 13 colonies, plus Florida, Indiana, Alabama, Kentucky, Louisiana, the District of Columbia and New York City.

A 5 per cent royalty on sales paid to the Pennsylvania Bicentennial Commission by Wilton and one other Pennsylvania firm already is nearing $300,000.

"People congratulate us for getting ready for the Bicentennial in good time," said Steve Wilton, 29, company advertising manager and one of three brothers working with their father, R.P. (Bud) Wilton, in the firm.

"The fact is we've been ready for years since most of our 450 different armature items are copied from museum and collector pieces that were part of colonial America."

The Wiltons began mining iron near Marietta, Pa., in the early 1800s, turned to sand-casting iron, then brass, then armature 12 years ago as a less expensive, more durable and useful product with some of the gray luster of pewter.

In two years the marketing success of armature reproductions of colonial mugs, tankards, flatware, plates, porringers, tureens and candlesticks led Wilton Brass to halt brass casting.

Wilton foundries in Wrightsville and Florin, Pa., and the Columbia headquarters for sales, shipping and design employ 400 persons with Fred Wilton, 32, as manufacturing head and John Wilton, 25, production chief.

Though distinguishable from the colonial favorite, pewter, armature's melting point of 1,500 degrees — compared with pewter's 800 — makes it stove and oven proof. "It's also dent, break, chip and crack proof," said Steve Wilton, "and doesn't require polishing unless put in a dishwasher."

Occasionally someone uses a Wilton product as a mold for some competitive castings, including a copy of Wilton's decorative auto plate featuring the Pennsylvania coat of arms.

"But the instances have been few — and the shrinkage from using our tag meant their tag holes wouldn't fit any car," Wilton said.

Air Crash Narrowly Averted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Transportation Safety Board says two airliners carrying more than 300 persons may have missed a collision by as little as 20 to 100 feet over southern Michigan last week.

Transcripts of ground-to-air conversations indicate quick action by an air traffic controller may have avoided a tragedy.

The board said in a preliminary report Tuesday that American Airlines Flight 182, bound from Chicago to Newark, N.J., was flying at 34,953 feet and an oncoming TWA flight from Philadelphia to Los Angeles was cruising at 35,000 feet, a vertical difference of 47 feet.

The American Airlines, with 194 persons aboard, dived suddenly to 33,000 feet to avoid a possible collision, the report said. Twenty-four persons were injured in the dive, three of them seriously. There were 114 persons aboard the TWA plane.

"Both aircraft were flying in conditions of limited visibility," the report said. "The captain of AA 182 (the American flight) stated that the two aircraft came within 20 to 100 feet of each other."

"At the time of AA 182's immediate descent, the seatbelt sign was on and a meal was being served. It was reported that all unsecured, or not properly secured, persons and objects floated to the ceiling and, subsequently, fell to the floor..."

The board said its investigation is not complete. It released a preliminary transcript of recordings of the conversations between the pilots of the two planes and the Cleveland Control Center.

One minute and five seconds before the incident, it said, the Cleveland controller who had been handling the American flight "was relieved by one of his colleagues to take a break."

The new controller asked the American flight what its altitude was and was told:

"Passing 34.7 (34,700) at this time. We can see stars above us but we're still in the area of the clouds."

"AA 182 descend immediately to 330," came the urgent reply from the controller.

"Descending to 330 at this time," the plane responded.

A few seconds later the captain of the American flight asked Cleveland:

"What altitude was that other aircraft at?"

"He was at 35 sir," the controller responded.

"I'd check on that," replied the captain.

'Pathways of Judaism'

Kingston Chapter of United Synagogue Youth will host an intercity convocation Dec. 5 through 7 with more than 20 USY members from throughout upstate New York attending services and workshops. Theme for the weekend is The Pathways of Judaism. Discussing final plans are Jeffrey Gally (L), chapter president and co-intercity chairman; Kirk Barnes, Zionist rally chairman and Barry Goldschlag, Saturday night program chairman. Mr. and Mrs. Barry Lebart are advisors. Barbara Salomon is co-intercity chairman.

Protest Rally Sunday

KINGSTON
A rally protesting the recent United Nations General Assembly resolution on Zionism will be staged Sunday by United Synagogue Youth Intercity Convention hosted by the Kingston Chapter USY.

Combined upstate groups estimated to number more than 200 members will assemble at Congregation Ahavath Israel, 100 Lucas Avenue, at 10 a.m. and proceed to Academy Green for the rally at 10:30 a.m.

Among the dignitaries expected to attend and speak are Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr., State Senator Edwyn E. Mason, Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn of Temple Emanuel, Rabbi Basil F. Herring of Congregation Agudas Achim, Rabbi Aryeh Lev Lupkin of Congregation Ahavath Israel, Rabbi Harry Z. Schectman, formerly of Ahavath Israel, and David H. Greenwald on behalf of Zephaniah Lodge 131, B'nai B'rith.

Kirk Barnes, USY rally chairman, said that in case of inclement weather the rally will be held 10 a.m. Sunday at Ahavath Israel.

The Intercity Convention will include services and workshops on the theme Pathways to Judaism. The public may attend the various services Friday through Sunday and the rally on Sunday.

Synagogue News

Ahavath Israel

Religious services will be conducted at the conservative synagogue, Congregation Ahavath Israel, 100 Lucas Avenue, Friday 8 p.m. followed by an Oneg Shabbat being co-sponsored by Barry and Eileen Lubart, USY advisors with the Sisterhood. Saturday services will be 9:30 a.m. followed by a Kiddush.

At both services the mourner's prayer will be offered for the following departed whose Yahrzeits will be observed during the coming week: Paye Broseman, Rose Kirschner, Moishe Itelson, Bessie Millens, William Field, Karel Colen and Samuel Gold.
All religious services are conducted by Rabbi Aryeh Lev Lupkin. This weekend however the United Synagogue Youth will be hosting the Intercity Convention for upstate members under the theme Pathways to Judaism and will conduct orthodox-type Friday night service; conservative Saturday morning and afternoon service and a Reform Havdalah.

A rally protesting the recent United Nations General Assembly resolution on Zionism will be held Sunday. The group will assemble at Ahavath Israel at 10 a.m. and proceed to Academy Green for the rally at 10:30. In case of inclement weather, the rally will be held at Ahavath Israel at 10 a.m.

Temple Emanuel

A Religious School Family Sabbath Service will be held Friday 7:45 p.m. at Temple Emanuel, 243 Albany Avenue. All interested families may attend. Services will be conducted by Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn, Cantor John Park and Barbara and Leonard Zimet.

Sabbath candles will be kindled by Marlene Feldman. The Kiddush will be led by Dr. Abraham Feldman and Nathan Feldman.

During services memories of the following persons will be invoked: Rachel Katz, David Newland, Herman Sadowsky.

Food Policies Scored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional investigators released a report today charging many of the world's hungry nations follow policies that discourage production of the food their people need.

Fonated food from nations such as the United States has discouraged food production in needy nations "by keeping down prices and by permitting governments to postpone needed agricultural reforms," the report said.

The report by the General Accounting Office said administration officials should take a tough stance in requiring nations which get American aid to sweep away "disincentive" policies such as artificially low farm prices.

Also, the GAO said, American officials should do all they can to build similar tough requirements into international aid programs, such as a $1 billion International Fund for Agriculture currently under consideration.

The GAO operates as a watchdog for Congress over operations of the executive branch of government. It said administration agencies — including the Agriculture, State and Treasury Departments and the Agency for International Development — agreed more effort should be made to eliminate policies that suppress food production in such needy nations as Indonesia, Tanzania, India and Pakistan.

Some of the agencies, however, said some of the criticism in the report was too broad. In at least one case, the Agriculture Department flatly opposed a GAO proposal that it ban Food for Peace shipments to countries that do not adopt satisfactory production-boosting policies.

An Agriculture official said the agency already requires recipient countries to include statements about planned "selfhelp" measures in Food for Peace agreements and claimed a tougher policy would be neither "practical or desirable."

The GAO report said developing nations have held down food production through price ceilings, export taxes that discourage farmers from expanding output, trade policies that make food imports attractive, restrictions on moving food from surplus to deficit areas within needy countries and substandard farm extension and credit policies.

Yule Safety Check

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission has decided to crack down on hazardous Christmas tree lights. At the same time it has reaffirmed its belief that toys this year are safer than ever.

The agency ruled Monday that the lights as a class of product pose an unreasonable risk of injury from fire and shock and that safety rules will have to be drawn up to make them safer.

Such rules may be a year or more in the making, but in the meantime the agency said three major distributors of imported, miniature lights — the kind in which most of the problems have been uncovered — are voluntarily making corrections on an unknown number of lights to eliminate potential hazards.

The companies are Advance Imports, ACLA Inc. and the Miles Kimball Co. Various brands are involved but no brand names were made public. In many cases the problems will be corrected before the lights reach store shelves.

The action does not affect any lights sold in previous years.

The major problems with the lights have been exposed wires as the base of the cup into which the light is screwed or inserted.

Commission Chairman Richard O. Simpson also issued a five-page statement explaining why the commission is not publishing its annual list of banned hazardous toys this year.

Not only was the list confusing and possibly misleading, he said, but the agency has over the past year proposed regulations dealing with sharp points, sharp edges and small parts in toys and feels that approach is more useful.

He also said action by manufacturers and retailers, in addition to commission enforcement efforts, resulted in the list having already served its purpose because the toys on the list "have virtually disappeared from the marketplace."

Students' Art Experiences

WOODSTOCK

Students in the Woodstock Elementary School have been involved in a variety of art experiences under the direction of Gladys Plate, their art teacher. The excellent photography, which illustrates this art work, was done by Alex Marcus, a State University College at New Paltz student who is presently doing his student teaching at the Ontario Central Schools.

"The Spee" is a delightful nonsense poem that was read to Mrs. Ann Brophy's fourth grade class. The first stanza is: "Have you every heard of the Spee The strangest creature you'll ever see? This head is pointed like a cone His whiskers are shaped like a wishing bone."

Peter Rosu's illustration of the poem captures the look and spirit of "The Spee."

The sixth grade classes had several lessons on the realistic rendering of beads. In the next lesson they used photographs from magazines to a surrealistic image, something more emotional — more meaningful to them. Many students did fascinating pictures. James Klika's work shows his reaction to the world we all live in.

A variety of squashes, tomatoes and other vegetables and fruits were arranged around the room in still-lives. The colors and shapes were an inspiration for many beautiful pictures done in chalk and pastels. Sixth grader Judy Owens' work is an example of the work done.

KINGSTON

A pre-Christmas musical treat is in store for area music lovers at Fair Street Reformed Church on Sunday, Dec. 7, when the Kingston area massed choir will present the Christmas portions of Handel's "Messiah."

Accompanist for Sunday's presentation will be Gloria-Jean Sparks, organist at Fair Street Reformed who has become well-known for organ work, particularly through the tonal use of the instrument, in recital and with the choir.

Her background in the music field is solid—she studied at the Julliard School of Music, and with Captain Davis on the famous West Point organ and continued her studies at Baldwin Wallace College in Ohio.

And the local accompanist has served many churches in addition to Fair Street—Reformed Church of the Comforter, Old Dutch Church, the Choes Presbyterian and Port Ewen Reformed Church.

Sunday's "Messiah" presentation will be conducted by Percy W. Gazlay II, minister of music at Fair Street Reformed Church.

The appearance of Gazlay and the massed choir on Sunday certainly promises an outstanding musical treat for as one singer who has participated in earlier concerts with Gazlay said:

"He insists on technical preciseness clean, clear tones with every eye on him; then there's the extra touch, the sensitivity, in the interpretation that makes the music an inspiration and singers anxious to do the work 'just so.'"

Sunday's musical offering of the "Messiah" during the candlelight vesper hour at 4 o'clock will benefit a good cause as well.

Of course, there will be no charge for admission, but the offering proceeds will go the city-wide fund-raising campaign, initiated by the Daily Freeman, to help the Children's Library get back on its feet. The Children's Library was recently hit by fire, destroying not only the building but many of the books and materials stored there.

Incidentally, the "Messiah" was first performed in 1742 at a concert given for charitable purposes. And once more Handel's notable works will be done for charitable work.

Charity Night Tonight

'Scrooge' Opens in New Paltz

NEW PALTZ
Tonight marks the opening of 90 Miles off Broadway's production of Mr. Scrooge, a musical adaptation of Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol. Proceeds from this performance will go to charities and service organizations indicated by ticket-buyers. Members of the New Paltz theatre group have proposed this "Charity Night," as a holiday gift to their community.

Other performance dates will be December 5 and 6, and December 7, at 2 p.m.

Richard Morris and Ted Wood wrote the book for Mr. Scrooge, and Dolores Claman wrote the music. Robert Grosshans is directing the show, his second such effort for 90 Miles. He also directed The Night of January 16, and has numerous other college, community, and professional theatre productions among his directorial credits. Audrey Gardner is musical director and Maxine Bacon is choreographer.

Mr. Scrooge is faithful to Dickens' original tale of Ebenezer Scrooge's Christmas Eve conversion from a stingy, grasping miser, to an open-hearted humanitarian. All the ingredients are there — Marley's ghost, the ghosts of Christmas Past, Present, and Future, and the Bob Cratchits, with Tiny Tim. John Price heads the cast in the title role, and is supported by such regular 90 Miles as Pat Yaeger, Hal Marsh, Leni Heroy, Tome Green, Julie Isaacson, and Steve Ford. Many young faces fill out the rest of the cast, an excellent show for for children, as well as for adults.

Tickets may be purchased at the door (New Paltz High School), or reserved ahead of time by calling the box office at the Little Red House of Gifts.

HUDSON Olana is celebrating the holidays this year. celebrate the many holidays that fall from November through January. lowing the readings for the visitors to enjoy.

In keeping with the interest shown by Frederic Church in the blending of the many different cultures of the world, the staff at Olana in Columbia County is presenting a program of readings on Saturday, Dec. 20, at 1 p.m., in the large Court Hall of the castle, to The castle will be adorned with greens and candles for the occasion and will be open fol-

A special exhibit of some of the children's toys and a letter to Santa from the children, Frederic Joseph, Win, Louis and Downy, dated, will be seen for the first time. Of special delight is Frederic E. Church's sketch of Santa which adorns the children's envelope.

Accommodations in the castle are limited so it is requested that reservations be made for admission to the program.

Poet to Visit Bard

Annandale-on-Hudson The Irish poet, Thomas Kinsella, will read from his works on Sunday, Dec. 7, at 2 p.m. at Bard Hall, Bard College.

Kinsella is professor of poetry at Temple University in Philadelphia, Pa., and in charge of a program for Temple in Dublin on the Irish tradition.

The Olana office in Hudson may be contacted, Monday through Friday, for reservations and other information.

Sorority Praised for Cystic Fibrosis $$

KINGSTON The November business meeting of Xi Alpha Omega was held Nov. 25 at the home of the president, Mrs. James L. Cleveland, 80 Valentine Avenue.

Among the correspondence read was a letter to Mrs. Robert Dunn from Dr. Paul R. Patterson, director of Cystic Fibrosis Center, Albany Medical College, Albany, New York. The letter extended his appreciation to Xi Alpha Omega for the generous contribution to the Cystic Fibrosis Fund. The contribution was the proceeds resulting from the participation in the Plaza Flea Market in May 1975.

Service projects announced for November and December included a Thanksgiving Day dinner, prepared by Judie's Restaurant, sent to a "shut-in" couple and a contribution of toys and games to "Toys For Tots."

The chapter Christmas Party will be held jointly with Preceptor Tau Dec. 9, at the home of Mrs. Roy Gonyea, Denver Road, Kingston, for the exchange of gifts and Secret Sisters.

The "Quad-Chapter Social" will be a box supper celebrating the International Beta Sigma Phi theme for 1975-1976 "Let Heritage Ring." This will take place 7 p.m., Jan. 13, 1976 at the Heritage Savings Bank, Wall Street.

It was announced that the tickets for the annual Valentine Dinner Dance, to be held Feb. 14, 1976 at the Holiday Inn, are ordered and should be available after Dec. 9, from Beta Sigma Phi members of Eta Eta, Xi Alpha Omega and Preceptor Tau chapters.

In attendance at the meeting were three women returning to active membership. They are Mrs. John Clark of Port Ewen and Mrs. Daniel Bernard and Mrs. William Turcotte of Kingston.

Also attending were Mrs. Jack Kiegle, vice-president; Mrs. John Baxter, secretary;

Mrs. George Stone, treasurer; Mrs. Robert Dunn; Mrs. Roy Gonyea; Mrs. Richard Hamsher; Mrs. Karl Hoppe; Mrs. Richard Langton; Mrs. James Lynady and Mrs. Ronald Rifenburg.

The next business meeting of Xi Alpha Omega will be held Jan. 27, 1976, at the home of Mrs. Peggy Thatcher, Stony Run.

She Looks From Wrong Vantage Point

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've read you for years but this is the first time I've ever written.

I am a 24-year-old girl who is average in every way except one: I stand 6 feet in my stocking feet!

I have many girl friends and some fellows who are friendly, but men never consider me a serious candidate for a romantic partner. Even guys who are taller than I am treat me like I'm another guy.

When I meet new people, I feel that they accept me — until I stand up and they see how tall I am.

Abby, I know I'm attractive and have a pleasing personality, but I'm getting nowhere.

I am becoming resentful and bitter, and don't know what to do about it.

TOO D---TALL

DEAR TALL: You can turn what you think is a liability into an asset. But first you must start with the top of your lovely height — your mind — because that's where the problem is.

Your self-image is negative, and it reflects in your attitude toward other people.

When you walk in a room, walk tall and smile. Don't grab the nearest chair. Stand and greet everyone you meet with dignity and grace. Whatever you do, don't slump!

When you sit, sit tall and gracefully with your long legs together.

And don't come on too strong with men. Believe me, they'll notice you.

Wear tailored clothes, and don't be afraid to wear bright colors.

Forget your height and others will. You will be judged on how you treat people, not on how high you're stacked.

Now get going and just watch the effect you'll have on others.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of men who run ads in the classified section of a newspaper, reading: "Lonely gent (age, weight, height) wants to meet woman (age range usually much younger) for companionship, marriage or...?"

And what do you think of women who answer such ads?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: I think such men must be desperately lonely as well as incredibly foolish to risk possible involvement with some very creepy characters.

And the same goes for women who would answer such ads.

DEAR ABBY: You asked if anyone has ever protested at the point in the marriage service where it says, "If any man can show just cause why they may not lawfully be joined together, let him speak now or forever hold his peace". Yes, it happened several years ago in Altadena, Calif., when a woman called out, "I protest!"

The Reverend Edward E. Hailwood, who was the rector of the St. Mark's Episcopal Church, did the only thing he could do. He halted the service and had the woman brought to him in the privacy of the sacristy and demanded her reasons.

"I protest in the name of the Father, Son and the Holy Ghost," she said.

It was obvious that she was deranged, so she was taken out through a side door, and Father Hailwood returned to the church and continued with the wedding.

W.P. IN FRESNO

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Changing Role of Women In Readings for LWV

WEST HURLEY

Mrs. Joseph Vilches, president.

The annual social meeting of the League of Women Voters of Mid-Ulster County will be held Dec. 11 at 8 p.m. at the West Hurley School, with Mrs. Ingrid Sternberg as hostess. The Evelyn Navy Production "Women in Perspective" will be presented, according to and Linda Quartell, who convey the humor, anger, frustrations, and joys which have been felt by women through the ages.

The public is cordially invited to attend this bound-to-be-entertaining presentation.

There will be no general meetings of the Mid-Ulster LWV in January and February. Instead, the four units of the local League (Kingston, Hurley, Olive and Woodstock) will meet separately to conduct meetings and deal with business and studies on the town level.

The LWV is open to all men and women who are citizens of voting age. For further information regarding the Mid-Ulster League, write to UPO Box 564, Kingston, N.Y. 12401.

IDEAL FOR HOLIDAY
RV Social Saturday

ROSENDALE
One of the Rondout Valley's most gracious social events, the annual dinner-dance of the Rondout Valley Scholarship Fund, Inc., will take place Saturday, Dec. 6 at Williams Lake Hotel in Rosendale.
1975 marks the ninth such event, the single major endeavor the fund carries out to raise scholarship monies for Rondout Valley High School graduates. Because the fund is a community enterprise, the Board of Directors hopes for a district-wide attendance.
Since 1965, when the first scholarships were awarded, the fund has disbursed $9,900 to 45 Rondout Valley students. The amount and number of the awards is limited only by the money raised through the annual dinner and voluntary contributions. Donations are welcome at any time, and the directors suggest that persons unable to attend on December 6 consider making a monetary contribution. Dinner tickets and all donations are tax-deductible.
A Dutch Treat cocktail hour at 6:30 p.m. will open the evening on Saturday. This will be followed at 7:30 by a prime ribs of beef dinner, and then dancing.

Tea and Spices . . . A Good Gift, Also Appropriate

NEW YORK
As we celebrate the holiday season which ushers in the Bicentennial, there is hardly a more appropriate "gift from the kitchen" for yourself or for someone on your list than spiced teas, since both tea and spices played important roles in American Revolutionary War days.
Even before the Boston Tea Party 203 years ago, American colonists had been spicing their India teas with sweet spices; anise seed; herbs, such as mints of different varieties; basil, thyme; sage and comparable leaves from gardens or the wild. Back in the days of the Jamestown settlers Ceylon teas were blended with sweet spices and orange rind. Another popular blend mixed fine India teas and fragrant herbs such as mint, marigold blossoms, peach leaves and spices.

Patriotic hostesses of two centuries ago served the so-called "liberty teas" made of herbs, but without any kind of regular tea. Sage tea was one of the most popular and shrewd colonists even sold the Chinese on the idea to the point that when trade was resumed with China, the Orientals happily exchanged three pounds of tea for every one of American grown sage. Home economists of the American Spice Trade Association have been testing and tasting a number of spiced teas: Tea Brulot, Anise Tea and Spiced Tea. These, nicely packed in apothecary jars, make the most aromatic of gifts for friends and neighbors and, of course, tea-loving aunts, uncles and godparents.

Spiced Tea
2 tablespoons whole coriander seed
2 cups tea leaves
12 bay leaves, crumbled
Crush coriander seed in a mortar with a pestle or tie in double thickness of cheesecloth and crush with a mallet. Mix with tea and bay leaves. Store in an airtight container or pack into jars with tight fitting lids for gifts.
YIELD: about 2 1/4 cups
Anise Tea
3 tablespoons anise

seed
2 cups tea leaves
1/2 cup grated lemon peel
Crush anise seed in a mortar with a pestle or tie in double thickness of cheesecloth and crush with a mallet. Mix with tea and lemon peel. Store in an airtight container or pack into jars with tight fitting lids for gifts.
YIELD: about 2 1/4 cups
Tea Brulot
6 cinnamon sticks, each 2-inches long
1 teaspoon whole cloves
1 whole nutmeg

2 cups tea leaves
2 tablespoons grated orange peel
2 tablespoons grated lemon peel
Wrap cinnamon sticks, cloves and nutmeg in a clean kitchen towel or in double thickness of cheesecloth and crush with a mallet. Combine spices with tea and orange and lemon peels; mix well. Store in an airtight container or pack into jars with tight fitting lids for gifts.

YIELD: about 2 1/4 cups
TO BREW:
Heat teapot by rinsing it with boiling water. Into pot place one teaspoon of team mixture for each teacup of boiling water. Let stand 2 to 5 minutes. Strain into teacups. Sweeten, if desired.

DOROTHY VARIAN

Kuniyoshi Winner

WOODSTOCK
Well-known Woodstock artist Dorothy Varian has been announced the winner of the annual Yasuo Kuniyoshi Fund, Inc., award.

The award to Dorothy Varian is for $100. The award-winning artist is represented in several permanent collections throughout the country including the Whitney Museum of American Art, Fisk University, the Duncan Phillips Memorial Gallery in Washington, D.C., among others.

Her exhibitions include the three World's Fairs, Salon d'Automne in Paris and the Duveen Galleries in London, England.

One-man exhibitions have included the Polari Gallery and the Parnassus Square Gallery in Woodstock, Albany Institute of Art and History and twice each at the Whitney and Downtown Galleries in New York City.

The distinguished artist Yasuo Kuniyoshi in 1948 organized an informal group among his artist friends in Woodstock. They carried on fund-raising events from which the money was contributed to such professional purposes as artists' welfare funds, art conferences and film festivals.

After Kuniyoshi's death those who worked with him carried on the organization in his memory and incorporated it under the name of the Yasuo Kuniyoshi Fund, Inc. At the present time, the Kuniyoshi Fund is making an annual award of $100 to an artist chosen by a well qualified jury. As the Kuniyoshi Fund is a tax-exempt corporation, contributions to it are tax free.

Veeck Needs Another $1.2 Million

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Wheeler-dealer Bill Veeck has one week to come up with another $1.2 million or his deal to purchase the Chicago White Sox is off.

The American League owners rejected his original bid to buy the franchise Wednesday by a vote of 8 against, three in favor and one abstention. Later the owners voted 10-0, two having left the meeting, in favor of giving Veeck and his group until Dec. 10 to raise the extra capital.

"It's possible, and we're going to try," Veeck said. "That's our impression at this time."

His attorney estimated Veeck has about a 25 per cent chance of raising the money.

"Obviously I'm not happy. I thought we had a viable deal, a reasonable deal, and suddenly I find I did not have a reasonable deal," Veeck said following a meeting with league owners at a hotel near Cleveland Hopkins International Airport.

"I'm worried that the ball club will leave Chicago, and that's anathema to me," the former owner of the St. Louis Browns and the Cleveland Indians said.

American League President Lee MacPhail said the meeting was held to consider only Veeck's offer and he refused to speculate about any offers to move the franchise elsewhere if Veeck cannot raise enough money to buy it.

"We will have to cross that bridge when we come to it," MacPhail said. "Hopefully we won't get to it."

Veeck's problem with the owners stemmed from his method of financing principally through debentures, a kind of promissory note. His original offer involved $4.8 million front money, most of it in debentures in a total deal of about $10 million. MacPhail indicated the owners want an offer involving $6 million in cash and stock instead of debentures.

"The basic proposal was too much debt and not enough equity," MacPhail said. "Whenever we've had difficulties with some of our franchisees, in each instance it's been with teams that were underfinanced."

Capital, according to MacPhail, is defined by the owners as "unencumbered equity." He said debentures represent "debt."

SPORTS TODAY

Veeck's group includes former Cincinnati Reds owner William O. DeWitt, former Detroit Tigers star Hank Greenberg, and former Baltimore Orioles general manager Paul Richards.

The group seeks to buy Artnell Corp., owner of the White Sox, from John Allyn. Following league approval of the deal, Artnell would be broken up with Veeck and his associates keeping the baseball franchise and Allyn keeping a minor interest in the White Sox plus control of all other Artnell properties.

"Maybe they are hanging me slowly by the neck, but I wouldn't call that harassment," Veeck said of the proposal from the owners, adding that he considered his bid comparable to deals made for other clubs.

He said the short time allotted to raise the extra money was his main concern and he partially blamed himself for his predicament. Veeck said he was so confident his deal would win approval that he asked for a quick decision.

"It's like the old gag, I guess, of the carrot and the donkey, but in this case the stick is too long," Veeck said.

Giants In Same Boat

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A local group trying to buy the San Francisco Giants is in the same boat with Bill Veeck, who is trying to purchase the Chicago White Sox — both are a little short of cash.

American League owners have given Veeck a week to come up with more money before they give their approval. The group seeking to buy the Giants has maybe until Saturday to come up with $12 million — a figure believed set by the National League.

Horace Stoneham, who left Stanford Hospital today for a recuperative period at home after undergoing surgery two weeks ago, wants $10 million for the Giants and the N.L. is insisting the new ownership have at least $2 million in operating capital.

That's where everyone is hung up at the moment. On Wednesday, Chuck Rupert, Stoneham's son-in-law and the Giants' executive vice-president, held a telephonic conference with members of the club's board of directors. He is believed to have approached them for approval of an offer of $8 million.

"The board discussed the current status of negotiations for the sale of the company's assets," Rupert said. "No firm decision was reached on the matter and representatives of the company were instructed to continue with pending discussions."

What that means is that Rupert was instructed to tell the local group of bidders they need to improve their offer and quickly.

Sooners Top All-America

NEW YORK (UPI) — The University of Oklahoma Wednesday led the parade of college football talent named to the United Press International All-America team by placing four players on the 23-man squad.

The third-ranked Sooners, losers only once in 11 games this season, had on the first team offensive guard Terry Webb, defensive end Jimbo Elrod and the Selmon brothers, defensive tackle Leroy and middle guard Dewey.

It marked the first time that two brothers were named to the All-America team in the same year. Another brother, Lucious, was a first team All-America selection as a middle guard two years ago. Top-ranked Ohio State, second-ranked Texas A&M, fourth-ranked Alabama, eighth-ranked Penn State, California and Notre Dame each had two players on the team while Toledo, Southern California, Georgia, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Navy and Texas each placed one.

The team was selected by balloting of sports writers and sportscasters from across the nation.

The first team backfield are running backs Archie Griffin of Ohio State, Ricky Bell of Southern California and Chuck Muncie of California and quarterback Gene Swick of Toledo. Griffin was named to the team for the third straight year, making him the first player since Doak Walker (1947-49) to do it three times. On the offensive line are wide receiver Steve Rivera of California, tight end Ken MacAfee of Notre Dame, tackles Bob Simmons of Texas and Dennis Lick of Wisconsin, guards Webb and Randy Johnson of Georgia and center Rik Bonness of Nebraska. Chris Bahr of Penn State, with 18 field goals, is the placekicker.

The defensive line is made up of Elrod and Leroy Cook of Alabama at ends, Steve Niehaus and Leroy Selmon at tackles and Dewey Selmon at middle guard. Ed Simonini of Texas A&M, Greg Buttle of Penn State and Woodrow Love of Alabama are the linebackers and Chet Moeller of Navy, Tim Fox of Ohio State and Pat Thomas of Texas A&M comprise the deep backs.

MacAfee, Bell and Johnson are the only underclassmen on the team and Lowe joins Griffin as the lone repeaters from last year's team. The offensive backfield has three running backs with 4,692 yards rushing and 32 touchdowns between them.

Swick, a 6-foot-1, 188-pounder, led the nation in total offense with 2,706 yards, an average of 246 yards a game. He finished second in passing with 17.3 completions per game, passing for 15 touchdowns and scoring eight.

Moeller Would Like to Turn Pro

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — Navy's Chet Moeller says it is "a great honor" being named to UPI's All-America but he is unhappy that his football career may be over because of his five-year service commitment.

"I came here because I wanted a good education, security and leadership qualities, but I think it would be advantageous for the academies to let players serve parttime or in the reserves," Moeller said.

Moeller, a six-foot 185-pound roverback, made 88 tackles this season in leading Navy to its first winning season since 1967. He is the first Navy All-American since Roger Staubach threw the Middles into the 1964 Cotton Bowl. Staubach and 1960 Heisman Trophy winner Joe Bellino are two well-known recent service academy graduates who played professional ball after their service obligations. Moeller would like to be another.

"I'm hoping they might change the rules in a couple of years," he said, but added that if he has to serve his full obligation, "I probably won't be able to play."

"Once you start playing football, there's something in football you enjoy," said the Kettering, Ohio, native.

"I just like the game and I'd like to have the chance to play pro football. I don't know whether I could but I think if you have the desire to do something, you can do anything you want," he said.

Although a pro career might be lost, Moeller still has two all-star games to go — the East-West Shrine game and the Hula Bowl.

Moeller said the All-American recognition is a "great honor," adding, "I think it's a tribute to the team. When you get an award like this you can't say it's all individual effort. It's a composite of the team and good coaching."

THE UPI ALL-AMERICA TEAM

Love, Bulls Show Improvement

By UPI

For Bob Love, hitting 41 per cent of his field goal attempts was a marked improvement and for the struggling Chicago Bulls the marksmanship was good enough.

Love converted 12-of-29 shots and finished with 35 points Wednesday night to lead the Bulls past the Boston Celtics 109-106. Chicago has won just five games in 18 outings but two of them have been against Boston.

In the latest victory, Love hit a pair of jump shots in the final minute of play after the Celtics had tied the game at 103-103.

"I forced a lot of shots but I hit the key ones. It was one of my better games," said Love, who carried only a .366 shooting percentage into the game. "It hasn't been a good year so far."

Thus far, this has not been a good year for the Bulls, who were winning for the second time in 13 games since besting the Celtics Nov. 1. They were again without Jerry Sloan, sidelined by fluid on both knees, but got 20 points from second year guard Bobby Wilson. They also outshouted the inconsistent Celtics, who were led by Jo Jo White's 31 points and Dave Cowens' 26.

Los Angeles defeated Detroit 118-110, Philadelphia beat New Orleans 102-94, Milwaukee topped Portland 114-92 and Houston downed Seattle 107-101 in other NBA games.

In the American Basketball Association, Indiana defeated Kentucky 113-100 and Virginia beat St. Louis 114-112.

Lakers 118, Pistons 110 Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 29 points and Cazzie Russell hit for 31 to lead Los Angeles to a victory that put the Lakers in first place in the Pacific Division. The win was only the third in 11 road games for the Lakers, who are 11-0 at home. Detroit's Bob Lanier was held to 19 points by Abdul-Jabbar.

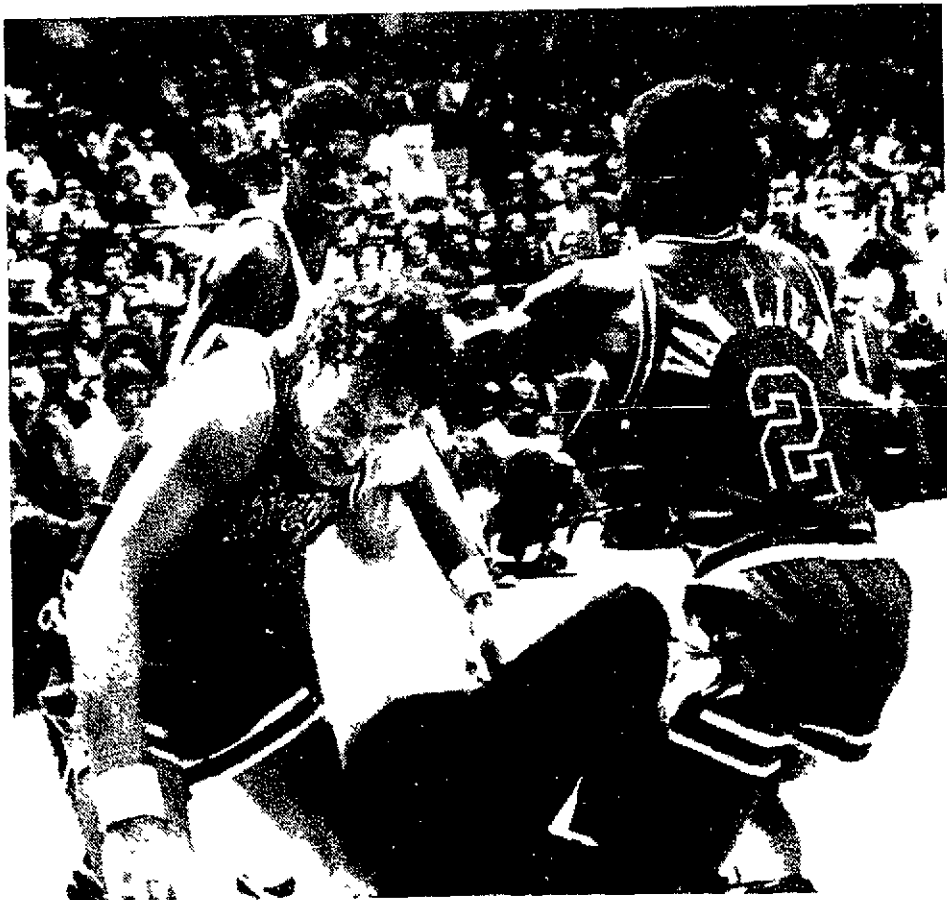

76ers 102, Jazz 94 George McGinnis scored 27 points to lead a balanced attack which enabled Philadelphia to beat New Orleans and increase its Atlantic Division lead to two games. The Jazz rallied for a 67-66 lead with 1:25 left in the third period but the 76ers staged a counter-attack which gave them a 72-69 margin entering the final quarter.

Rockets 107, Sonics 101 Ron Riley and Kevin Kunert scored key baskets in the final minutes of the third period as Houston downed Seattle. Calvin Murphy had 26 points for the Rockets Pacers 113, Colonels 100 Billy Keller scored 30 points, including four three-point goals, to lead Indiana to its win over Kentucky. Wilbur Jones led the Colonels with 23 points.

Squires 114, Spirits 112 Virginia beat St. Louis for the first time this season with the help of Dave Twardzik's driving layup with 46 seconds left. Ticky Burden led the Squires with 36 points and Fred Lewis had 31 for St. Louis.

Non-Contact Sport

A Couple of Hockey 'Firsts' in KC

By United Press International

They had a couple of hockey "firsts" in Kansas City Wednesday night.

Wilf Paiement scored his first National Hockey League hat trick and the three goals provided the edge the secondyear Kansas City Scouts needed to post their first-ever victory over the Montreal Canadiens 6-5.

Paiement's first goal gave the Scouts a 3-0 lead at 8:07 of the first period and he came back with almost an identical shot at 18:10 of the second period. His third goal came at 11:59 of the final period. It was the first meeting against the Canadiens this year for the Scouts, who were 0-4 against Montreal last year, their first in the NHL.

Paiement, the second player picked in the 1974 free agent draft, scored 26 goals as a rookie last season.

Elsewhere in NHL action Wednesday night, Minnesota topped Toronto 3-1, Buffalo and Washington tied 4-4, Chicago tied Pittsburgh 3-3, Vancouver mauled Detroit 9-1 and Los Angeles shaded California 3-2. In World Hockey Association games, it was Cincinnati over Cleveland 5-3 and Toronto over Calgary 4-3.

Black Hawks 3, Penguins 3

Dick Redmond's second goal of the game at 11:38 left to play earned Chicago a 3-3 tie with Pittsburgh and enabled the Black Hawks to extend their unbeaten string to 15 games. It was, however, the fifth straight tie for Chicago and the eighth in its last nine games.

Capitals 4, Sabres 4

Jerry Korab's goal at 5:53 of the final period enabled Buffalo to salvage its tie with the upstart Caps. Washington, last in the Norris Division with the worst record in the NHL, scored four second period goals, including two by Nelson Pyatt, to take a 4-3 lead over Buffalo, leader in the Adams Division.

North Stars 3, Maple Leafs 1

Bill Goldsworthy scored a pair of third period goals to lift Minnesota over the Maple Leafs. Toronto's Dave Dunn, attempting to push the puck away from the crease accidentally put Goldsworthy's first goal into the net, tying the score. Red Barrett then scored what proved to be the gamewinner at 2:03 of the final stanza.

Canucks 9, Red Wings 1

Vancouver, winless on a three-game road swing last week, returned home and bombed Detroit goalie Ed Giacomin for nine goals, including two by Dennis Ververgaert. The frustrated Wings started a brawl in the third period which resulted in game misconducts to Bob Dailey, Mike Bloom, Walt McKechnie and Phil Roberto.

Kings 3, Seals 2

Tommy Williams skipped a 60-foot shot into the net with just 86 seconds left to play to push Los Angeles over California. Williams took a pass from Mike Murphy and appeared to surprise goalie Gilles Meloche with the long shot.

WHA

Now Ilie Is Rooting for Ashe

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Ilie Nastase will be rooting for his archrival Arthur Ashe to whip Spain's Manuel Orantes today, enabling the Romanian to make a back-door entrance into the Masters Tennis Tournament semi-finals.

Nastase, often referred to as the bad boy of tennis, Wednesday beat Adriano Panatta of Italy in three sets, thereby giving the Romanian a 2-1 win record so far in the $130,000 tournament.

Orantes, who will be facing Ashe with one win and one loss, will be eliminated if he loses. Ashe, who did not play Wednesday, was assured of a spot in the semifinals even if he loses to Orantes. The American will be going into his match against Orantes also with a 2-0 record.

"I haven't missed a game yet and I'll certainly be sitting in the stands to watch the Ashe-Orantes match," said Nastase. "I think Bjorn Borg and Guillermo Vilas are in good shape to get into the semifinals but Ashe can be tough, too."

On the first day of the tournament last Sunday, Nastase and Ashe were both disqualified—the Romanian for his on-court antics and obscene gestures and Ashe for walking off the court during the hiatus.

The International Lawn Tennis Federation later reversed the decision and gave the match to Ashe.

In the first match Thursday, Sweden's Borg will face

Argentina's Vilas, both of whom have 2-0 records.

The Borg-Vilas contest was originally scheduled to be the last match of the night but referee Horst Klosterkemper changed the order to be "fair to all players."

When asked to explain what he meant by fairness, Klosterkemper said, "Borg and Vilas could choose who they like to play in the semifinals."

The semifinal pairings will pit the winner of each group against the runnerup of the other group.

That means if Borg and Vilas knew the outcome of the Ashe-Orantes battle, one or both could throw the game to pick his opponent. The referee emphasized that there was no insinuation that this would actually be done, but to be on the safe side the order was changed.

Harold Solomon of Silver

Spring, Md., and Raul Ramirez of Mexico, along with Italy's Adriano Panatta were all eliminated from the tournament and left for their respective home countries.

Nastase said even if he didn't make it to the semifinals, he would be staying in Sweden to help practice and train the Swedish Davis Cup team for their final against Czechoslovakia beginning Dec. 19.

Hawks Were Flying High Before Falling, 74-60

NORTH ADAMS, Mass.—A small New Paltz State team battled a towering North Adams State quintet on even terms for over three quarters of their basketball meeting here Wednesday night, but a short cold stretch spelled doom for the Hawks as they dropped a 74-60 decision.

"It was the finest effort a New Paltz team has put out in the three years I've been coach," said New Paltz mentor Joe Donovan.

New Paltz led most of the first half, despite going off the floor at halftime down by two points, 36-34. As late as eight minutes into the second half, the game was tied at 48-48.

It was then that New Paltz hit an ice cold streak during which Donovan's squad couldn't find the range and North Adams came through with 12 unanswered points.

Behind 60-48, New Paltz could never make up the deficit.

What pleased Donovan was the way his team was able to stand up to a North Adams forward line that measured 6-7, 6-6, and 6-5. Hawks Ron Domanski and Ron Monroe and the biggest New Paltz players at 6-3 each.

Bobby Irish sparked the New Paltz attack with a game-high 19 points. Domanski rimmed 16 points and Monroe bucketed 13.

North Adams got 17 points from Monte Flynn, 14 from

Tom Sullivan, and 13 from Mark Van Gelder.

It was the second straight loss for New Paltz, both on the road. The Hawks are home Friday and Saturday nights for their annual Jaycee Tipoff Tournament in which Manhattanville, Old Westbury, and New Rochelle will provide the opposition. Pairings haven't been set.

College Powers Breeze

By United Press International

Ever wonder why there's so few college basketball upsets prior to the Christmas tournaments?

Reason is, most top-ranked college powers—UCLA and Indiana excluded this year—are smart enough to schedule willing paties to pad their won-lost records and provide a tuneup for the "real" season which usually begins about Dec. 26.

There were six nationally-ranked collegiate powers in action again Wednesday night and, not surprisingly, all are still comfortably unbeaten today.

Take fifth-ranked Maryland for example. The Terps, having neatly thrashed East Carolina in their season opener last week, invited DePaul—not even a university division school—down to College Park for a little one-on-one and proceeded to annihilate the outgunned Tigers 99-42. Some hospitality!

Steve Sheppard, with 17 points, led six Terrapins in double figures. Lawrence Boston had 16 rebounds along with his 16 points for Maryland.

Then there was 10th-ranked Cincinnati, which rolled to its third straight win by victimizing poor Wright State, another college division team, 118-70. The Bearcats were paced by Gary Yoder and Bob Miller, who had 23 points apiece.

Alabama similarly wasn't taking any chances either. The 14th-ranked Crimson Tide, smartly remembering that 6-10 Joe Bryant has graduated, played host to LaSalle and ripped the Explorers 78-57 behind 19 points from All America hopeful Leon Douglas.

Arizona didn't live up to its 107-point average but it didn't matter since the seventh-ranked Wildcats had the good sense to be playing at home against Idaho. Sparked by Gilbert Myles' 19 points, Arizona easily disposed of the Vandals 88-62 to go 3-0 for the season.

Sixteenth-ranked Auburn went on the road but not to South Bend, Ind., College Park, Md., Bloomington, Ind. or scary places like that. Instead, the War Eagles traveled north to Cullowhee, N.C. and had little trouble disposing of host Western Carolina 88-76. Mike Mitchell had 25 points and Eddie Johnson 24 for Auburn.

Tennessee also took a road trip but, unlike fellow nationally-rated quintets, nearly paid dearly for it. Nevertheless, the eighth-ranked Vols escaped with an 86-80 victory at Duke, largely due to the efforts of Bernard King and Mike Jackson, who combined for 38 points.

In other games Wednesday night, South Carolina, sparked by Alex English's 23 points, trounced Toledo 84-64, North Carolina State routed East Carolina 117-81 behind a combined 51 points from Kenny Carr and Glenn Sudhop. Clemson, with the help of 20 points by Derrick Johnson, topped Furman 92-86, and in the battle of the bayou, LSU led all the way in downing Tulane 79-65.

Also, Tulsa topped Oklahoma 71-66, New Mexico trampled over Los Angeles State 111-89, Miami of Ohio bested Dayton 66-55, Wake Forest put down West Virginia 93-80, Boston College stopped LeMoyne 87-72 and Mississippi mauled Minnesota 81-65.

lead over 46 nations in the opening round of the 23rd World Cup golf tournament.

Miller, substituting for PGA champion Jack Nicklaus, recorded the day's best round among 94 players with a 6 under 31-35-66 on the newly-built 6,906-yard par 72 Navatanee Golf Club course in Bangkok's suburbs.

Graham, the 1975 U.S. open champion who is playing for the first time in the World Cup tournament, shot a four-under 33-35-68.

Argentina was in second place with Juan Cabrera firing a 67 and Jorge Soto a one-under 71 for a 138 total.

Veteran Ben Ardy fired a 67 for the Philippines which tied Taiwan for third place with a 140. Eleuterio Nival cost the team a higher placing when he took a costly double bogey seven on the par five fourth hole for a 73.

Hsieh Min nan of Taiwan winner of the individual event in the 1972 World Cup tournament in Melbourne, Australia, when Taiwan also took the team event, shot a four-under par 68 and teammate Kuo Chie-hsueh a par 72.

Thailand was alone in fifth place as veteran Sukree Onsham shot a 69 and teammate Adul Thabvibul birdied the final hole for a 73 and a .12 total.

Ireland and South Korea shared sixth place at 143 followed by Japan and Australia in a tie for eighth place with a par 144.

Miller fired five birdies for a five-under-par 31 on the front nine. He birdied the 12th and 18th, but bogeyed the 15th for a 35 on the back nine.

Miller chipped a 15 yard shot on the 359 yard par five 18th hole and missed an eagle when the ball hit the cup and failed to drop in.

"I had a difficult time because of the heat," Miller said. "I was a bit dizzy when I three-putted for a bogey on the 15th. I still don't have confidence in my putting. I'm hitting the ball past the holes necessitating return puts. Whereas my partner Lou is putting splendidly, letting the ball die at the pin."

"We made a fine start with a 10-under par. We are playing conservatively trying not to make mistakes."

Graham, who shot a nine under-par 63 Wednesday to win the pro-am individual competition, said "I played sloppily today compared to yesterday. I did not hit the ball squarely, but I am satisfied with my 68."

Morerod Takes Giant Slalom

VAL d'ISERE, France (UPI) — Lise Marie Morerod of Switzerland won the World Cup Giant Slalom ski race today, more than one second ahead of runner-up Rosi Mittermaier of West Germany.

Monika Kaserer of Austria took third place. Fourth came Linda Cochran of the United States and Fabienne Serrat of France was fifth.

Morerod, top favorite for the Giant and Special Slalom events at the Innsbruck Olympics in February, took 1:16.15 minutes to complete the course which ran 1,150 meters with a vertical drop of 320 meters and 45 gates.

Sliding with ease and perfection, the Swiss girl was 1.22 seconds faster than Mittermaier, who clocked 1:17.37.

The event was the second of the new World Cup season. On Wednesday the girls raced a downhill won by Switzerland's Bernadette Zurbriggen.

Boubou Morerod's victory magnified the fact that the Swiss girls have a powerful team, one which appears to be taking over from Austrian girls who dominated the ski scene for several years.

Our team morale has never been better," the 19-year-old Swiss racer said after her victory.

"I knew I was skiing well today and things went perfectly. But I didn't expect to win by more than one second. I don't know if I want to go for the Olympics or the World Cup this year. But I'm still in form. I'll go for gold in Innsbruck."

Mittermaier, 25 years old and one of the steadiest girl ski racers for the past eight years, proved she is still a force on the slopes while Kaserer was the only Austrian girl in the top ten.

Cochran, an 18-year-old American from Richmond, Vt., had her best showing in a World Cup event with her fourth place time of 1:17.55. She kept the stars and stripes flying after the star of the U.S. girls' team Cindy Nelson. Lut-en Minn had a poor run and failed to place in the first 20.

Rosi Mittermaier's younger sister, Eva, 23, turned the race into something of a family celebration by starting in 30th position and clocking the sixth fastest time.

After poor weather, the sun came out for the giant slalom and conditions were ideal. The snow was hard packed powder which began breaking up in the second half of the race when the sun softened the track.

The race results gave West Germany and Austria two placings each in the top 10, with one each going to Switzerland, Italy, United States, France, Canada and Iran.

Day in the Life of a Senator

Benjamin Schecter (second left), administrative assistant to State Senator Edwyn E. Mason, reviewed the kind of schedule necessary in Albany before the Saugerties Republican Club. Commented Schecter, "A typical senator thinks in terms of workable solution and feasible answers." With him are (l-r) Gene Davis, Schecter, county legislator-elect Alice Tipp, and town supervisor-elect Frnak Greco.

Citation

Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101st) is presented with the Environmental Planning Lobby 1975 Legislative Award by EPL representative Marilyn BuBois at their Annual Legislative Awards Dinner in Canandaigua. The inscription on the back of the award reads: "For his dedication to the sound future of the Catskill Region, his understanding of the need for protection and controlled development of this wonderful resource, his determined attempts to achieve a compromise on the issue, and his continuing efforts to see that such legislation will be successful in the future." It was noted at the awards dinner that this is the first time such an award has gone to a freshman Assemblyman. Gov Carey was also honored.

Seeking Birthday Cake A Mobster Finds Death

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ned C. Bakes, a veteran Chicago underworld figure and one-time confidant in the empire of the infamous Al Capone, left his suburban home Saturday to buy a birthday cake for a family party. He ended up dead.

Bakes was found Wednesday shot once in the head and stuffed in the trunk of his car. His daughter discovered the car in an unincorporated area of Addison Township and phoned police.

She told officers she had a premonition the car was in the area but police speculated the killers called the family to tell them of the car's location.

"It's kind of obvious to all of us that they (the mob) wanted everybody to know what happened and why," said Sgt. Anthony Heying of the DuPage County sheriff's office.

Addison detective Angelo Deneffrio said the daughter phoned police when she found the parked car and officers went to the scene.

"The trunk was opened. The body of a big man with white hair, balding on top and matching Bakes' description, was found lying face down in the trunk with a bullet hole in the top of his head," he said.

Bakes had been well known to police as a suspected member of the Chicago underworld since the heyday of the Al Capone mob in the Roaring 20s and early 30s.

He was regarded a member of the Capone gang's inner sanctum, reputedly serving as messenger boy to Paul "The Waiter" Ricca, a chief lieutenant to Capone and an eventual successor to Capone's crime empire.

Police said Bates delivered orders from Ricca and other top gang members to lower echelon hoods.

Authorities also said in the 40s, when Ricca ascended to the Chicago underworld throne following Capone's death, Bakes was the "mystery man" who delivered hundreds of thousands of dollars in back taxes owed by Ricca and other syndicate figures, including Louis Campagnia, Charles Gioe, Phillip d'Andria.

All four were in prison at the time on charges of extortion in connection with an attempt to take over the movie industry in Chicago.

Cancer A Family Problem

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Cancer is more likely to strike persons whose families have cancer history, especially if a large number of relatives have the disease, a Nebraska study indicates.

The danger of cancer in some families is so great that doctors have recommended breast and ovary removal in healthy women as a preventive measure.

Because of growing evidence showing family concentrations of malignancies, Dr. Henry T. Lynch, professor of preventive medicine at Creighton University in Omaha, said physicians should investigate the medical histories of families to spot persons with abnormal risks of cancer.

Lynch, speaking Wednesday at a national conference on genetics and cancer, urged creation of regional registries of cancer-prone families to help doctors identify patients at risks so cancer can be detected early when treatment is most effective.

He said a study of 5,000 consecutive persons checked by a mobile cancer detection unit in Nebraska showed cancer occurred in 9.8 per cent of the people when one of their parents, brothers or sisters had cancer.

In families with two immediate relatives with cancer, the cancer risk went up to 16.5 per cent. It jumped to 22 per cent — more than one in five — for persons with three or more cancer victims among their close relatives.

Lynch all family cancer may not be inherited. He said cancer in some families may be the result of environmental factors or perhaps a combination of heredity and the environment.

It is known from other research that there is roughly a threefold increased risk for specific cancers to close relatives of a person who had cancer of the breast, stomach, colon, prostate gland or lung, and with leukemia and cancer of a lymph system.

Lynch said a healthy 19-year-old girl whose family and a high cancer incidence was advised to have her breasts removed because of the danger she would develop the disease.

Sect Unwelcome in Illinois

DALLAS (UPI) — The Hare Krishna, a religious sect whose members wear pig tails, white robes and chant to music, say they are unwelcome in a rural Illinois town and have dropped plans to move their school to the Christian community.

The group wanted to buy a $450,000 defunct military academy building in Aledo, Ill., for their 115-student school and 50-member staff. But many of the 3,325 residents of the northwestern Illinois town opposed their settlement — and said so.

Bill Rubins, local business manager of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness, said the group likely will remain in Texas.

"The Roosevelt Military Academy definitely suited our needs, but the townspeople obviously did not want us there," Rubins said. "The prevailing attitude was such that we were concerned about the welfare of the children should we move there."

Mrs. Glenn Stancil led the Aledo drive to discourage the Krishnas. She said the community was Christian, but had no room for the sect or its children.

"Toleration?" she said. "Our country was found on that, but remember, everyone that came to our country accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as their savior. We're trying to protect our own (religion) is what we are trying to do."

Leaders of the sect said their school would have little effect on the life of the community.

Last week a poll conducted by the Rock Island Argus newspaper indicated 1,137 Aledo residents opposed selling the academy to the Krishnas and 103 favored the sale.

Harold Stutsman, president of the academy board of trustees, said the Krishna leader Jagadisha called him Monday to withdraw the bid.

"He said it was because of the attitude of the people," Stutsman said. "He felt because of the poll that was taken, the school could not coexist, not on a friendly basis with the town of Aledo."

"I'm not surprised," said Stutsman. "Really, it had to be a two-way thing."

The Krishnas had decided to move their Dallas school because of lack of space in the current facility — a former protestant denomination church — and because the Texas Welfare Department was requiring renovations which would cost $40,000.

Biggest Worry Is Survival

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — The Communist party's decision in Portugal's abortive military rebellion has given it one of its worst defeats in three decades. It is being castigated by both the far left and the right as a "traitor" to the revolution.

"The party's biggest worry now is a simple question of survival," one Socialist said. "This is its worst crisis since the early forties when it was in total disarray."

His comment came amid newspaper speculation about rising tension within the party's central committee and a frontal attack against the party by the Socialists.

The crux of the Communist dilemma was its failure to take a clear stance when disgruntled paratroops occupied five major air bases in an ill-organized far left attempt to overthrow the government last week. The uprising, which faded after two days, was led by the Communists' main military supporters.

In the early hours, civilian elements of the party threw their weight behind the military rebels, but retreated quickly when it became apparent that the soldiers had overestimated their strength.

This sudden change in policy caught the extreme left and the soldiers flatfooted, leaving them to catch the full brunt of the government's counter offensive and go to jail. They blamed the Communists for the defeat. By contrast, the other side blamed the party for luring the extremists into staging the uprising.

"The Communist party has grave responsibilities in the events of the Nov. 25 coup," Socialist leader Mario Soares said.

Soares, who has never been slow in exploiting a political advantage, acknowledged the Communists' official denial of any involvement in the revolt. But he said they had to go a step further and "solemnly" condemn the rebels as the price for retaining their single seat in the Socialist-dominated cabinet.

He had an easy target for his attack. For since the collapse of the rebellion, the Communists have shown every sign of being a psychologically shattered party. They have watched their main military supporters being jailed and their infrastructure in the mass media purged without a murmur.

The Communists faced an equal assault from the shattered far left splinter parties. They accused the party of compromising its revolutionary credentials by failing to fully support the revolt and allowing leftist militants to be wiped out without a fight.

The Communists tried to satisfy both sides in long, tortuous editorials in the party's newspaper Avante. These said the left had received a severe defeat because of leftist "adventurists." By the same token, it warned the non-Communist forces against trying to take advantage of this victory.

But as the jails filled with the party's military supporters and the newsmen who followed its dictates faced unemployment, nobody took the party very seriously.

Soares tried to sum up this reality in an interview with the newspaper Jornal novo.

"The Communists have lost the (April 25 national) elections, the people and the army," he said.

There was not much left in the party's armory except the labor unions, and its militants were facing hammer blows from both the far left and the Socialists in this sector. An extreme leftist gave an indication of this retreat when he described the Communist as being "ultrapassado." This is the Portuguese word for superseded.

Sweet Sixteen . . . And A Volunteer

FLAGLER BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — She is sweet 16, a part-time model and bymnamist, and 102 pounds of fire-fighting female.

If Renee Zamba is not the only female volunteer fire-fighter — there are several around the country — she must be the youngest and the most petite.

But folks around Flagler County don't put much stock in the ages of their public servants. Just 10 miles up the road in the Town of Bunnell, the police chief is Donnie Brock, age 19, who would be too young to buy bullets if he were not in uniform.

So Renee, a junior at Flagler Palm Coast High School, has readily accepted a month ago when she asked to join the 26 men on the Flagler Beach Volunteer Fire Department.

"I was voted on by the other members of the department," said Renee, a pretty brunette. "They decided whether they thought I could do the job or not."

Asst. Fire Chief Robert Creal said the only problem so far has been finding fire-fighting gear to fit Renee's tiny figure. On weekends she models teen fashions for a Daytona Beach department store.

Creal said "she seems to be

working out fine" and added Renee has had more first aid training, including cardiopulmonary resuscitation, than most of the men on the force.

"I don't get any special attention," Renee said.

A former member of the school's gymnastics team and part time employee at nearby Marineland — where her parents also work — Renee said the idea of fighting fires "fascinated me."

"I just got interested in it and said I'm going to do it," she said. "Now that I'm in it, I'm really having a great time. I've learned a lot."

Local Cancer Unit Honored

Dr. Harri H. Janssen (L), president of the Ulster County Unit, American Cancer Society, Norman Bohan, chairman of the Public Education Committee, and Kathleen Shurter, R.N., sub-committee chairperson for schools and colleges, display the plaque awarded to the Ulster County Unit by the New York State Division of the American Cancer Society for "Habits of Health for the High School Girl and the Women in her Life," called the newest and most innovative public education program in 1974-75. (Freeman photo)

Certificate for Laboratory

KINGSTON The City of Kingston Laboratory has been awarded a certificate of accreditation by the College of American Pathologists, a medical specialty organization of more than 6,500 pathologists.

Dr. Dennis B. Dorsey, CAP president, said the laboratory had received its certification from the CAP Commission on Inspection and Accreditation after having successfully met the college's standards for laboratory performance, determined by an intensive, on-site inspection by a volunteer pathologist-inspector from the college. An on-site inspection is carried out every two years, with an interim self-inspection and constant monitoring of the laboratory's test results.

"This accreditation reflects credit to the institution and assures patients and physicians of the continuing accuracy and precision of the laboratory's services," Dr. Dorsey said.

The inspection and accreditation program of the college is recognized as one of the most outstanding medical peer evaluation systems in the world, he said. Its goal is to promote the best possible laboratory performance via a program which examines and evaluates all phases of a laboratory's operation.

The Kingston laboratory is under the direction of Dr. Herbert Derman.

Library Sale Slated

WOODSTOCK The Woodstock Library will hold its annual book and apron sale on Saturday, Dec. 6.

Early-bird collectors will find an interesting but limited number of esoterica, many occult, waiting for them. Practically new books as well as mint copies received in generous donations and a large group of artistic, attractive aprons offer great values for Christmas giving.

Library officials noted that the sale is a fine opportunity to discover tremendous bargains while helping a most worthy cause.

Society Awarded Plaque

KINGSTON The Ulster County Unit of the American Cancer Society recently was awarded a plaque for "the newest and most innovative public education program in 1974-75."

The plaque was presented at the recent annual meeting of the New York State Division of the American Cancer Society in Syracuse.

This unique countywide continuing education effort was accomplished through the volunteer work of the Public Education Committee of the Ulster County Unit, local physicians and nurses, and the countywide school administrators and faculties. It reached more than 5,000 high school girls and 2,500 female school personnel and relatives.

In cooperation with the administration and faculties of all county high schools, the local unit conducted three-day programs for the girls, individually teaching breast self-examination as a health habit and education on the health habit of the pap smear.

Included in these programs were discussions with local physicians and nurses. Reinforcing the need for health habits for high school girls, identical programs were conducted for the women in her life, the female school personnel and relatives.

The American Cancer Society encourages learning good health habits in the teen years as an important step forward in the cure for cancer through early detection and prompt treatment. Through knowledge of the physical self, the slightest change can be evident, making early detection more of a reality.

Counter 'Threat' To Need For Male

BOSTON (UPI) — Claiming a rearing, red-maned, white stallion as their symbol, members of MS say they want sperm banks eliminated because they threaten manhood.

MS — in this case — stands for Male Supremacy.

About 30 persons demonstrated outside the Massachusetts General Hospital sperm bank this week, calling for male supremacy and elimination of the depositories.

"There are a group of radical women who want to control everything and eliminate men," said Dick Milano, 40, who organized the group.

"If they got control of sperm banks, they could do both," he said.

"Hey, don't you support male supremacy?" Charlie Perrotta yelled at passersby as he marched in the cold outside the sperm bank.

"Yeah. Right on," called back construction workers, whistling and clapping. "Those broads gotta be put in their place."

Hanging leaflets to auto drivers, the demonstrators carried signs reading, "Reunite the Family" and "Be Proud You Were Born a Man."

"I don't want a test tube, I want a husband," said Lee Antinarelli, 27, a divorcee handing out application blanks which urged sympathizers to join the group. "A lot of women today aren't willing to take care of their men."

Dr. Charles Huggins, head of the sperm bank, told the group the bank is not commercial and is used only by consenting husbands and wives.

Milano said he is primarily against commercial sperm banks. He added, "If a man is sterile, the couple should adopt."

His wife, Sandra, who admits she reads the feminist MS Magazine — "but only to keep up" — supports her husband's cause. She said "some women not only want to dominate men, they want to eliminate them."

"Women are getting nut of hand," added Perrotta, who said he is in the process of getting divorced. "They don't want to do housework anymore. I don't mind women having jobs, but, we (men) should have the final say."

"A man should support a woman financially and a woman should provide him with a good home," Lee Antinarelli said.

Asked why the roles couldn't be reversed, she replied: "Why, it wouldn't be fair for him to stay at home."

An Object Lesson

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Corrections officials thought it was a terrific idea — put 32 prison guard trainees in the lockup for a few days.

By the time they were freed Tuesday, "the cadets realized how much power an officer has and how officers can really aggravate an inmate by little things," Middlesex County Sheriff John Buckley said.

The students began their standard eight-week course Sunday at the state correction training school at Framingham. They were told they were going on a "field trip," then bused to Buckley's new jail, which won't open until spring.

"They thought they were going to be here a couple of hours and they couldn't really believe it when we took their

Need, Not Nostalgia, Brought Back Wood-Burner

ATLANTA (UPI) — Soaring utility bills have brought back a relic from the American past — the wood-burning stove which can cut heating costs significantly.

Pot-bellied cast iron stoves and other models that were America's favorites many years ago are rolling off the assembly line again and selling as fast as they can be shipped.

Riding the crest of the boom is the Atlanta Stove Works, headquartered in an old red-brick building in a section of Atlanta little changed since the turn of the century. The stove works began operations in 1889 and has been owned by the same Atlanta family since the 1890s — "over 86 years of knowing how," as the company's motto puts it.

"It's fantastic what's happened not only here but nationwide," says sales manager Murray Frizzelle. "The energy crisis has caused this thing. Our sales have more than doubled in three years. We expect another increase next year."

At one time, the Atlanta Stove Works was two years behind on orders for its wood-burning stoves. With expansion and automation, it has caught up and now can ship out an order about two weeks after it is received.

The exception is its four-holer wood cook stove, which comes equipped with an oven and a warmer. This stove that graced the kitchens of many American homes in the 1800s is still on allocation; that is, dealers can get only a limited number. In style and design it is much the same as it was 100 years ago.

Prices range from about $100 for the cheapest "two-eye burner" up to $450 for a circulating stove with thermostat. The cooking range sells for about $415.

The company has its own foundry, located in Birmingham, Ala., and has warehouses in Georgia, Alabama, Texas, Maryland, Missouri, Indiana, Iowa, California, and Oregon. It has 15,000 to 20,000 retail outlets across the country.

Frizzelle says companies that make wood and coal burning stoves have dwindled over the years. "I doubt if there's over a dozen or 15 now, nationwide," he said. "But I can remember when there were 50 or 60."

Atlanta Stove Works is probably one of the top three manufacturers of coal and burners nationally, Frizzelle said. But he declined to give any information on dollar volume or the number of stoves sold.

The wood and coal burners are sold mostly to rural customers, he said, with urban householders buying them as backups to their oil or electric heating systems, and to cut utility bills.

"A woman called me from Hixson, Tenn., the other day," Frizzelle said. "She told me she had one of our thermostatically controlled automatic wood burners. They were heating their $50,000 house with it and shutting off the furnace."

The stoves with thermostats, he said, can be fired up at the beginning of the winter season and kept going non-stop through the cold weather, holding their fire overnight with dampers closed.

Frizzelle says it's best to burn hardwood, such as hickory, red oak, beech and hard maple. Hickory furnishes 30.6 million BTUs per air-dry cord, equivalent to 218 gallons of No. 2 heating oil. Red oak supplies 27.3 million BTUs, equal to 195 gallons of heating oil, with beech and maple only slightly less productive in heating units, he said.

He said the fastest-growing sales territory is above the Mason-Dixon Line, although North Carolina currently is No. 1 in sales. Frizzelle listed Massachusetts as second in sales, followed by Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Georgia, Maine, Wisconsin, Virginia, California, and Ohio.

"If the energy crisis continues, this could last for several years," Frizzelle said.

LLOYD LUMBER LEADS THE 1975 POCKETBOOK REVOLT TODAY

HOME IMPROVEMENT 1775-1975

THE SPIRIT OF 1775 was a true American Spirit. It was a dollars-and-cents revolt against an unfair economic situation. People were fed up with The Stamp Act, The Tea Act, and all the unnecessarily high prices.

So they did something about it!

That was the true beginning of the American Revolution. Later the intellectuals, the philosophers and the soldiers got into the act. The Revolution of 1775 really began as a Pocketbook Revolt in 1775.

Lloyd Lumber salutes the spirit of '75 and it appears that history is repeating itself. Today, stamps are more expensive than ever, tea and other food items are at an all-time high, and people are again doing something about it. They're being more demanding in the products they buy and the prices they pay.

Lloyd Lumber is with you! At Lloyds we don't sell stamps and we don't sell tea bags. But what we do sell are nearly 10,000 products that people need for home building and home improvement. We CAN and HAVE done something about them. Look through this big 16 page flyer — you'll find the SPIRIT OF '75 in the prices.

Two Bungling Bandits Botch Paris Bank Job

PARIS (UPI) — Two bungling bandits who couldn't even drive their own getaway car were shot by police today when they got stuck in a traffic jam minutes after fleeing a bank where they held 30 hostages in exchange for a $2.2 million ransom.

Police killed one of the robbers, freed their two female captives and recovered the money in a shootout near the crowded Champs Elysees. The other bandit was wounded in a hail of gunfire.

The robbers' flight came to an end less than two miles and three minutes from the Credit Lyonnais bank, where they held 30 employees and customers at gunpoint for 13 hours Wednesday.

From the outset, the bandits had nothing but trouble. They first tried to hold up a bank in the Clichy district, but were thwarted when a clerk pressed the alarm.

The pair fled to the Credit Lyonnais Bank near the Eiffel Tower where by chance they encountered a squad of Brink's delivery men who opened fire. A brief gunbattle ensued and a passerby outside was wounded.

After warning they would begin executing the hostages one-by-one, the bandits fired some 20 shots inside the building to back up their demands for a car and the ransom. None of the captives — 15 employees and 15 customers — was injured.

Police supplied a Fiat getaway car and the money but the two women taken along as hostages said the robbers didn't know how to drive the Italian automobile.

"One of them even asked me how to shift gears," one woman said.

The end came when the Fiat lurched into a traffic jam just off the Champs Elysees and rammed a taxi.

The bandits opened fire on several carloads of pursuing police, and in a brief but wild gunbattle the gunman driving the car was killed and his companion seriously wounded.

When police opened the rear door of the sedan, the injured man sat slouched on the blood-soaked seat still gripping his submachine gun.

Your Astrograph

For Friday, Dec. 5, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's good to be optimistic, but today you overdo it a bit and stamp "Mission Accomplished" on projects just begun.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful today about telling little white lies. You'll have to fib again to cover your tracks. Things will balloon out of all proportion.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If at all possible, try not to advise friends regarding their financial affairs today. It could complicate matters.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A strong opinion you have probably will not be too popular today. It may only serve to turn others off.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you feel a little sluggish today, it's because you've been neglecting to exercise. A brisk walk could help.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Overindulgence is the main temptation you have to guard against today. Keep the old waistline in mind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't spring any uninvited guests on your spouse today. The last thing that's desired is to entertain a houseful of people.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's better to talk face-to-face with someone you've hired for a special job. You want to be sure that they understand — to the letter.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't pamper your yen to be extravagant. Back away from anything that even appears to be of an expensive nature today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Above all, don't put on pretentious airs to impress anyone today. If they don't accept you as you truly are, it will be their loss.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You have a tendency today to embellish the facts. While you're trying to make others take notice, it may have the opposite effect.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Shy away from a pal who feels that what you have is his as well. He'd be the first to back off if the roles were reversed.

Your Birthday

Dec. 5, 1975

Your chances of accumulating a little surplus this coming year are very good. You'll be even more motivated to acquire materially if you earmark the funds for something special.

TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Ph.D.

HIS HOUSE: (Q.) My parents make me so mad when they refuse to accept some of the things I do, mainly concerning boys. They live in constant fear that I'm going to get myself into trouble.

You see, even though I am not boy crazy I really fell for Shawn. He seemed to like me too, but he quit coming over. The only way I can see him is to go to his house. To do this I have to lie to my parents. If I tell them the truth I'll be punished. What should I do? — 16 in Massachusetts

(A.) I, too, fear that you are going to get into trouble if you continue to chase after Shawn, or any boy.

Going to a boy's house without the knowledge and approval of your parents and his parents is a very effective way to get into trouble. Stop it.

OWN PHONE: (Q.) I am an average 12-year-old girl. I do not date yet and must be home early every day. I understand why these rules are necessary. It is because of my age.

But there is something else about my age. I want my own private telephone. My father says we could pay for it but he thinks I am too young. We have talked about it a lot and he finally said your word on it would be good enough for him.

(A.) I agree with your father that at your age you do not really need a private phone. I would not object to an extension phone or a phone jack in your room so that you could use the family phone in your room for special conversations.

You and your father are smart to discuss your problems freely and frankly. Keep it up.

diamonds and Jim saw that he had 12 top tricks and an automatic squeeze for the 13th. Only West could stop diamonds, only East could stop clubs. Proper timing would make it impossible for either one to stop spades.

He cashed the two top diamonds and clubs and ran off hearts. On the last heart lead, East had to chuck a spade to keep a high club. Then Jim discarded his last club. It had done its work. West also had to go down to two spades in order to keep dummy's deuce of diamonds from being a winner and Jim had three spade tricks and his top score.

By PHIL PASTORET

Already, the 1976 political races are revving up to a crawl.

An executive is a fellow who has had a secretary so long he needs help to dial "operator" when phoning.

Add to your dictionary of collective nouns. A gloom of summons-servers.

Today, our cup runneth over. Our colleague pouring the coffee bath the shakes.

We hate to go to lunch with the boss. All he ever tips is his hat.

By Oswald &amp; James Jacoby

Here is a hand that helped Jim Jacoby and Paul Allinger win the National men's pair championship back in 1956.

Jim sat South and passed over East's preemptive three-club opening. When Paul jumped to four hearts Jim used Blackwood four and five notrumps. Since the five notrump call guaranteed to Paul that they held all the aces, Paul jumped all the way to seven notrump to try for a real top score. Honors don't count in matchpoint duplicate, but 10 points extra for notrump does.

West opened the queen of

Discuss Fire Safety

Edward Eaton (L), fire safety specialist from Cornell University, talks with Wesley Clark, fire coordinator for the Ulster County Volunteer Fire Department, at a recent fire safety meeting. The Ulster County 4-H and many of the local volunteer fire departments are cooperating in bringing fire safety programs to county elementary schools. Schools interested in the program should contact their local volunteer fire department or the Ulster County 4-H.

Library Report Due by Dec. 12

STONE RIDGE The board of trustees of Ulster County Community College and the community college committee of the County Legislature at a special meeting reviewed a report by George Droste, a consulting engineer, evaluating the structural problem of the College Library on the Stone Ridge campus.

This second opinion was called for at a recent board of trustees meeting.

Droste is a member of the faculty at RPI in Troy and also a member of the firm of Cadman, Droste and Thomas. He will submit a written report containing recommendations to the Board of Trustees no later than Dec. 12. This information will also be shared with members of the community college committee of the County Legislature.

President Robert T. Brown indicated that both engineering studies concluded that there is a structural problem with the library and that the board of trustees will keep the building closed as a precautionary measure.

Plans are being developed

Special Courses Slated

STONE RIDGE Ulster County Community College (UCCC) will offer 27 credit courses in Winterlude 1976 running the entire month of January.

A Winterlude brochure has been printed listing the courses and is available at the office for Continuing Education in the George Clinton Administration Building on the Stone Ridge campus.

Among the 27 courses being offered are four being offered abroad and two evening courses.

Winterlude is a mini-semester which offers educational opportunities for students by enabling them to accelerate their college programs or to lighten the number of courses they will have to take in a regular semester.

A student usually takes only one course during Winterlude and thus can concentrate on it with no other courses to worry about. For this reason, students often do better work and learn more in a course taken at this time.

Registration for the courses offered on the UCCC campus will be held on Jan. 2, in the Hardenburgh Building. The hours are 10 a.m. to noon and 6:30 to 7 p.m. Classes for most courses will begin on Jan. 5.

Meeting Site Is Changed

Tonight's 8 p.m. meeting of the Kingston Board of Education has been moved to George Washington School on Wall Street to accommodate the large crowd expected to discuss state-recommended shifts in pupils and school functions to help relieve overcrowding at Kingston High School.

The meeting originally was scheduled to be held in the Crown Street Administrative Center board room, the usual meeting place.

Although it is not on the regular agenda, the proposed state plan is expected to be a hot topic. It has attracted considerable public attention since it was announced in the Sunday Freeman.

Patricia J. Thayer, president of the Edson Parents Organization, in a letter to members expressed concern over the plan, which would convert Edson into a high school or junior high school. She urged members to attend Thursday night's meeting.

Following the period set aside for communications, petitions and hearings, the board will hear a report from the Personnel Committee chaired by W. James Penrose, which will consider retirements, leaves of absence, appointments, resignations, changes in status and other matters for both professional and Civil Service personnel of the district.

The Business Management Committee, headed by Fred Hofbauer, will present the budget statement, statement of vouchers paid, the treasurer's report and the school lunch and milk program report for October and will announce the award of a grocery bid for the district's school lunch program.

Other matters to be presented by the committee include resolutions governing tuition for non-residents, tuition for health services, a transfer of funds from the general fund to the site acquisition fund (Sabino property), tax refunds and adjustments, and extension of the urban renewal contract.

Other reports will come from the Communications Committee, chaired by Ronald Meyer; the Student Services Committee, headed by Mrs. Doris Mulvin; and the Building Committee under Mrs. Evelyn Corsones.
